Lancaster Farming

Serving The Central and Southeastern Pennsylvania Areas - Also Maryland, New Jersey and Delaware

Vol. 22 No. 17 Lancaster Farming, Saturday, March 12, 1977 $4.00 Per Year

With more than 20 public officials seated behind him, and several hundred concerned Lancaster County citizens before him, Lancaster County Agent Max Smith stresses the importance of Lancaster County agriculture. He was one of more than a score of concerned individuals to speak out on behalf of wise land use. The scene of the speech was the Barley Brothers' dairy farm, adjacent to the Creswell garbage dump, southwest of Lancaster. The Lancaster Area Refuse Authority has seized 58 acrees of prime farmland. A campaign is underway to reverse the decision.

Farmers rally to stop garbage dump

By DIETER KRIEG

WASHINGTON BORO, Pa. - An estimated 300 farmers and more than 25 public officials, including the Pennsylvania House Agriculture Committee, came to the John and Abram Barley farm near here on Wednesday to express opposition to a plan by the Lancaster Refuse Authority (LARA), which would turn 58 acres of prime farmland into a garbage dump. House Ag Committee chairman Paul Yahner of Cambria County asked the gathering before him: "Do you want this to be the Garden Spot of Lancaster County, or the garbage spot of Lancaster County?"

The answer was obvious and the crowd erupted with vigorous applause and shouts of approval. One official after another came to the microphone to express disapproval of LARA's actions. Most speakers also expressed optimism that the battle was being won and that the Barleys could retain their land.

But Lancaster City representative Marvin Miller Jr. wasn't optimistic and neither was the Barleys' attorney, James F. Heinley. Both urged more support from the public and a vigorous campaign to keep pressure on LARA and the county commissioners who are responsible for LARA's actions. Miller urged the crowd to send letters to the county commissioners office.

Farmers from the area were swarming to the Barley farm by mid-morninng and kept coming until close to 11 a.m. Last to arrive was a bus chartered by the House Ag Committee.

Representative Paul Yahner, chairman of the House Ag Committee, was first to speak, announcing that this was not a political issue, but a people issue.

Dairy industry facing increasing pressures

By DIETER KRIEG

LANCASTER - The past six months have been the most turbulent in the 20-year career economist Dr. Paul Hand has had at Inter-State Milk Producers. A bout with nuclear fallout publicity came first, then the most severe Winter in memory, followed closely by an energy crisis. Now it's supermarket strikes within the cooperative's prime milk marketing area.

Dr. Hand, who wears two hats at Inter-State - as economist and assistant general manager - addressed Lancaster County dairymen here on Thursday at the annual meeting of District 5 of IMPCO.

While the economist expressed concern over the present situation, he was quick to point out that milk is moving with a minimum impact on the individual producer. As many as nine or ten truckloads of milk are currently being sent to western Pennsylvania and Ohio due to the supermarket

104 York dairymen faced with market loss

By JOYCE BUPP
York County Reporter

YORK, Pa. - Over one hundred dairymen from York, Adams and Cumberland counties received unwelcome news when they picked up their mail last Saturday.

The certified letters carried the message that, on April 5, the milk trucks that haul their production to New Holland Farms Inc., New Holland, would be stopping at the barns for the last time. The cut-off was made on all farms shipping to the milk firm from areas west of the Susquehanna River. Rapidly increasing hauling charges being paid by New Holland on the 110,000 pounds of milk picked up daily was cited as the reason for the cutoffs.

Until December, 1975, many of the 104 farmers had been selling their milk to Graybills, Inc., a pickup plant just west of York. The Graybills station was closed because of Department of Environmental Resources santitation upgrading, and New Holland Farms ab-

Le-Hi members review progress and problems

NEW HOLLAND, Pa. - Members of the Lanchester local of the LeHigh Valley Farmers Cooperative received an appraisal of the improving financial picture of their cooperative at their annual meeting held here Thursday at the Liberty Fire Hall.

President Robert P. Barry, reported that the cooperative will lose slightly less than $300,000 as compared to $1.8 million last year and $3.2 million two years ago. However, Barry said, "Our performance this year is less than satisfactory. Operationally it has not been as good as will appear on the final audited financial report." The reason for this is an interest forgiveness of $900,000 given by Le-Hi's banking institutions.

Barry blamed part of the failure to do better on spending too much attention solving the previous year's problems. However he said, "The fluid milk plants at Lansdale and Schuylkill Haven each made a profit, "while the cheese operation was "less dramatically draining than previously."

You get more milk production when you use more quality ingredients.

Dairymen all around the country . . . and right around here . . . have discovered a big difference in their milk production when they switched to MOL-MIX® liquid supplements . . . and there's one reason why: PERFORMANCE-PROVEN INGREDIENTS like corn distillers solubles, condensed fermented corn extractives, phosphoric acid, and ammonium polyphosphate . . . all quality ingredients that can increase your milk production . . . and yet the very ingredients that many other supplements lack!

And what's more, when you stop to consider the convenience of using a high-quality supplement in liquid form, there's only one conclusion you can reach: YOU GET MORE MILK PRODUCTION WHEN YOU USE MORE QUALITY INGREDIENTS . . . AND YOU GET MORE QUALITY INGREDIENTS IN MOL-MIX!

Performance-proven ingredients.

THE OLD FARMER'S ALMANAC

MARCH 14-20, 1977

Spring arrives on Sunday!

Get your tomatoes going in hot beds now ... General MacArthur arrived in Australia March 18, 1943 ... New moon March 19 ... Spring begins March 20 ... Average length of days for the week, 12 hours, 1 minute (day equals night) ... More than the moon will ride high the night of March 17; it's St. Patrick's Day ... Redwing blackbirds arrive back north ... Every man is the architect of his own fortune.

Ask the Old Farmer: In the old days it was supposed to be bad luck to get out of bed on the left side. Where did this come from? — W.T., Johnstown, Penn.

Yes, and when you got out from the righthand side, you had to make sure you first put your right foot on the floor. Way back when, people used to put their beds against a left wall so they were forced to get out on the right.

Home Hints: If the end of transparent tape is stuck to the roll, place it in the refrigerator for ten minutes, it can then be loosened without breaking fingernails or tape

OLD FARMER'S WEATHER FORECASTS

New England: Week begins with cold and flurries, then Wednesday brings rain and snow through Saturday.

Omaha

March 10, 1977

Weekly 51 cattle:

Compared with the previous week's close: through midweek, slaughter steers were 75-1.00 lower and heifers 75-1.25 lower with late supplies insufficient to reflect the effects of an improved carcass trade. Cows were $1.00-1.50 higher and bulls firm to 50 higher.

Four day receipts 14,100 as compared 11,200 previous week and 16,400 a year ago. The fed cattle trade continued to follow a very erratic pattern. The initial session was characterized by good demand and moderately higher prices. However, trading dulled abruptly on Tuesday and prices were forced sharply downward with outlet growing more restricted as trading progressed: a meat cutters strike along the eastern seaboard was blamed for part of the bearishness which triggered a $2.00-3.00 plunge in carcass prices, but much of this severe break was recovered at midweek only to again turn downward on Thursday. Local supplies were slightly larger than the previous week but were not burdensome. Slaughter steers made up approximately 39 of the week's total and heifers 43 with a fairly liberal percentage choice. Cows comprised 12 and feeders 4.

Steers: Early, several loads choice with end prime predominantly 3 1125-1300 lbs. $38.40-38.75, load choice and prime 4 1240 lbs. $37.50, and load same grade 4-5 1580 lbs. $34.50. At the close, three loads choice 3 1075-1150 lbs. $37.15-37.25, most choice 2-4 975-1275 lbs. $36.00-37.00, load prime 5 1678 lbs. $31.50. Mixed good and choice 2-4 950-1250 lbs. $35.25-36.00. good 2-3 $32.00-35.50. Standard and good 2-3 $30.00-32.00.

Average of 14-214, detailed quotations, for choice 900-1100 lb. steers this week $36.92; choice 1100-1300 lbs. $36.90. Average weight steers first three days 1151 lbs. compared 1141 lbs. previous week. Average weight heifers first three days 991 lbs. as compared 991 lbs. previous week.

Heifers: Early, eight loads choice and prime 3-4 943-1080 lbs. $37.25-37.50. At midweek low time majority choice 2-4 875-1100 lbs. $34.50-36.00, load 1025 lbs. $36.25. Mixed good and choice 2-3 800-975 lbs. $33.75-34.75. Good 2-3 $30.50-33.50. Small lots standard and good 2-3 $28.50-30.00.

Cows: Utility and commercial 2-4 $26.50-28.50, few $29.00. Canner and Cutter $22.50-26.50. Mixed cutter and utility $26.75-27.00.

Bulls: 1-2 1400-2100 lbs. $31.00-34.00, individual 1 $34.50-35.50.

Sustained effort essential to keep garbage off farm

When 58 acres of prime farmland are being seriously considered as the site for a garbage dump, it's time to do something about it. That's just what an estimated 300 people did on Wednesday when they rallied in support of John and Abram Barley and some of their neighbors who had land condemned by the Lancaster Area Refuse Authority (LARA). The challenge before the land owners directly involved, and anyone looking on in dismay, is to have LARA reverse its decision. The point is: LARA already owns the condemned land by virture of eminent domain. It's up to the public in general to mount up a vigorous enough campaign which will make LARA turn the land back to its rightful owners.

It's not an easy battle and it's not one which has a guarantee of victory attached to it. But it is a worthwhile effort and one which merits the full support of anyone who has an interest in agriculture. That's all of us since there isn't a person anywhere on the planet who does not have to depend on food.

LARA's bullheadedness, shortsightedness, and callousness on the matter is deplorable. For the sake of prolonging the life of their garbage dump for five years, they're willing to take 58 acres of prime farmland out of production. Although other ways of disposal are open to them, they haven't directed themselves to those possible solutions. LARA has cried that taking the garbage to other sites, such as the one on the Chester-Lancaster county line near Honey Brook, would raise their costs too much. The mileage difference is only about six miles one way. That's going to increase costs all that much, LARA?

Suspicion is being voiced as to what LARA might have to hide, or what the members of the authority might have to gain personally by insisting on acquisition of the Barley farm and adjacent properties. LARA says other alternatives are too expensive and leaves the issue at that. More details are being asked for. Studies are being suggested. Meanwhile LARA members remain stubborn.

In order to save the Barley farm and the smaller tracts of land owned by several others, public pressure must continue. The rally on Wednesday wasn't the climax to this problem. It was hopefully the beginning of a fight for victory on behalf of wise land use.

It was suggested on Wednesday that concerned citizens tell the County Commissioners how they feel. That suggestion is seconded here. The address of the County Commissioners is 50 North Duke Street, Lancaster, Pa. 17604. Readers could also contact LARA at 1291 (Rear) Old Harrisburg Pike, Lancaster.

Let's not let this opportunity to save good farmland go to waste. It's not just a case involving the Barleys and their neighbors, it could be applicable in many other localities.

Killer bees a real threat

Dear Editor:

On Sunday, Feb. 20, there was a program on TV called "In Search of Killer Bees." The program explained that 26 hives of African bees (which are very tempermental and vicious due to their harsh environment) were imported to Brazil several years ago for experiments in cross - breeding the African strain (which are excellent honey - producers) with a gentle European strain of honeybee.

By accident, the African bees were allowed to swarm; and from there on they multiplied at an astonishing rate. They seem to attack anything that moves, is dark in color, or makes any vibrations near their hives. The African bees have killed livestock and humans in South America while causing many other people to be treated for stings. The African bees also kill the gentle honeybees and take over their hives.

These bees are moving north at a rate of 200 miles per year and are scheduled to reach the U.S by 1990 However, they could arrive at any time from "stowing away" on board ships or other cargo carriers.

If the African bee is introduced into this country,

Lesson for March 13, 1977

Background Scripture: Luke 11:1-13; 18:1-14. Devotional Reading: Luke 13:31-35.

The old Negro spiritual tells us that, although everybody "talks" about Heaven, it doesn't mean everybody's "goin' there." So, also, lots of people "talk" about prayer, but that doesn't mean their experience of it has been very satisfactory. Perhaps there is no discipline in the Christian Church more highly touted, nor poorly taught, than prayer. Described glowingly as one of the most vital resources in the spiritual life, it is more often observed, as Harry Emerson Fosdick once remarked, as "a pious form rather than a vital transaction."

The persistent petitioner

One of the reasons for this failure is to be seen in the erroneous suppostions which many people harbor when it comes to praying. They approach it as if the key in prayer were to be found in their efforts to persuade a reluctant or inattentive God to rouse Himself to do their will. Their efforts are focused on praying in the right way, using the right techniques, saying the right words that will cause God to act on their behalf.

Jesus knew well this popular misconception concerning prayer and he told some parables to try to change these unfruitful attitudes. One of these parables (Luke 18:1-8) tells an interesting story about a persistent widow who finally gets the local judge to defend her rights by hounding him continually. The brief personality sketch of the judge is illustrative of the kind of public official that was recognizable to his listeners: he "neither feared God nor regarded man."

The point of the parable, of course, is this: if an unjust judge will be moved to do justice if he is persistently petitioned, how much more will a loving God do if we bring him our petitions! The contrast could not be more vivid: the judge respects no one, thinks only of his own needs, cares nothing about the plight of others, and wouldn't help anyone unless it served his own interests; God, on the other hand, loves men, cares about them, is concerned about their needs, is sensitive to their cries, and responds to persistance. But persistance is required not because God needs to be be goaded or reminded, but because man must persist in his receptivity! Our persistance enables God to do the good for us that he already wants to do.

Not like other men

The second parable (Luke 18: 9-14) also centers on two readily identifiable personalities. First, there is the self - righteous Pharisee who has all the "right" religious credentials...except for two. He lacks humility and he despises others whom he feels don't live up to his pious standards. The message in this parable is clear: don't expect effective prayer if you are proud and disdainful of others. The problem is not that God will not answer such a person, but that the person himself is blocking the channel through which God's grace would flow. Pride and hostility on the part of the prayer slam shut the doors through which the blessings would come.

TO INCORPORATE MANURE WITH SOIL

This is the time of the year when the aroma of this part of the rural area of Pennsylvania reminds us of the presence of livestock and poultry farms. This waste is a part of agriculture and is very useful in providing plant food and maintaining organic matter in the soil. Some folks may object to the odor at times, but as yet, this odor has not been declared as a definite health hazard. Producers are urged to spread this material on windy and sunny days so that the odor is not as strong; it seems to be worse on cloudy, muggy days. Also, there will be far less complaints if the manure is injected or incorporated into the soil quickly after spreading; this can be done by soil injection equipment with liquid manure, or by plowing or discing the area soon after spreading. Good public relations with ones neighbors may be maintained if some of these items are practiced.

TO PREPARE FOR EARLY SEEDINGS

Some crops need to be seeded into the ground just as soon as possible in the Spring; I'm referring to Spring oats and to strait seedings of alfalfa. Both of these crops do better if they can get well developed before dry, hot weather arrives. This is especially true of Spring oats in this part of the country. New pasture areas that are to be seeded this Spring should also be done just as soon as the ground is dry enough. All materials and machinery should be prepared so that the job can be done quickly when weather permits.

TO FERTILIZE PASTURES

Permanent pastures will respond to Spring fertilizer treatments and give additional forage. The starting place is a complete soil test and lime if necessary. Following the lime treatment, a complete fertilizer such as 10-10-10 can be used where there is a mixture of grasses and clovers. With straight grasses only nitrogen may be needed. Where very early grazing is wanted, then only a part of the area (¼-acre per animal) can be treated early to give several weeks earlier grazing. Just because an area has to be in permanent pasture does not mean that it cannot be productive. Permanent pasture grasses such as bluegrass will yield well both in Spring and Fall, when well limed and fertilized. Extra early grazing may reduce the feed and hay bill.

TO TOPDRESS WHEAT WITH FERTILIZER

The growing season is here; we already note the change of color in Winter wheat and barley fields. This means that wheat stands may need some nitrogen fertilizer yet this month in order to get a good crop. Many wheat fields are a bit slow this Spring and need some help. An application of from 25 to 50 pounds of actual nitrogen per acre is suggested. The lower rates should go on fertiled ground, or on wheat fields that have been seeded down to alfalfa or red clover. Fields with the goal of maximum yields of wheat should get the heavier nitrogen applications. Be careful with nitrogen on barley fields due to the danger of causing more severe lodging of the plants.

HOG PRODUCERS!

Have higher feed prices and lower market hog prices got you down? Are you concerned about how much it costs you to grow a pound of pork? If you are, take a moment to read some facts about the most successful hog feeding program ever developed by Master Mix Research.

DISCUSSION

The primary objective at Feed Research is the formulation of swine feed to produce pork at the lowest possible cost. The protein and energy portions of swine feeds represent 80 - 90 percent of the total feed cost. Therefore, the greatest potential for reducing the feed cost per pound of pork involves protein and energy. The research and development of FARMIX was directed at the protein portion to eliminate excess protein and maintain optimum performance at the same time.

Amino acids are the building blocks for protein in the animal's body. The amino acids are classified as essential and nonessential, but both groups are used for protein synthesis. The pig requires 10 essential amino acids to be present in the feed, but can make the nonessential amino acids. Historically, swine rations have been formulated to meet a certain crude protein level. More recently, total levels of a few essential amino acids, in addition to protein, have been used in formulation. The shortcomings with this type of formulation are: 1) The relationship between crude protein and individual amino acid levels and their availability to the pig are not necessarily in direct proportion; 2) Using a minimum crude protein level to meet the first limiting amino acid (lysine) may result in excesses of some other essential amino acids; 3) Formulation based on traditional protein value will be more volatile in price during periods of rising costs for protein ingredients.

When the above factors were taken into consideration, a new method of computer formulation was developed using the following basis:

1. The requirements for the ten essential amino acids were met and protein levels were disregarded.

2. The requirements for the ten essential amino acids were met according to a certain pattern (balance) to minimize excesses of some amino acids that could be detrimental to performance.

3. The level of Available Amino Acids in various feedstuffs was used in formulation. Total levels of amino acids are determined in the lab whereas Available Amino Acid values are determined with feeding trials.

Available Amino Acid Research

We started with the concept that swine feeds could be formulated on an available amino acid basis. Next came an intensive review of the scientific literature. Much credit should be given the many university and government researchers all over the world for their basic research on the available amino acid content of individual feed ingredients. However, a practical program was needed to supplement this basic research and translate it into usable form.

Three years of intensive research, with approximately 9,000 pigs, were required to refine the values for available amino acids. The thrust of the experimental work at Master Mix Research was directed at three areas:

1. Redefine the minimum amino acid requirements of the ten essential amino acids.

2. Determine the amino acid requirements according to a specific pattern (balance). In addition to meeting the minimum amino acid requirements, we found the ratios between certain amino acids to be very critical for maximum performance. A similar example is the importance of Ca:P ratio. The reduction of excessive amounts of some essential amino acids results in improved performance and reduced cost of gain.

3. Determine the availability of each essential amino acid for every major ingredient using the pig as the ultimate judge. Thus a new set of values (available amino acid levels) were developed and used which are different from the total (analytical) values found in the literature.

4. Determine pigs' requirements on the AAA basis.

With this information at hand, the computer formulation of swine feeds on the AAA basis was feasible. Rations formulated on this concept were tested repeatedly against rations formulated on a protein basis. The results were improved performance, leaner pigs and lower cost per pound of gain.

FARMIX Pork Program

FARMIX represents the first application of the available amino acid concept for swine feeds. Some of the advantages of the new method of formulation (AAA basis) realized in the FARMIX program are the following:

1. Excesses of essential amino acids are minimized.

2. Ingredients are evaluated on their true contribution of amino acids for protein synthesis.

3. Performance of the pig is more consistent.

4. The impact of ingredient price fluctuation is reduced because of increased ingredient flexibility.

5. FARMIX is manufactured in crumblized form for more efficient handling, mixing and distribution.

6. FARMIX is a flexible program since only one concentrate and two pacs (Swine Breeder Pac and FARMIX Starter Pac) are required for the entire herd.

The amino acid density in FARMIX was selected to give excellent performance when mixed at the recommended rates. Under good management, the pork producer can expect average daily gains of 1.72 and feed to gain ratios of 3.08 when pigs are fed from 50 pounds to market weight.

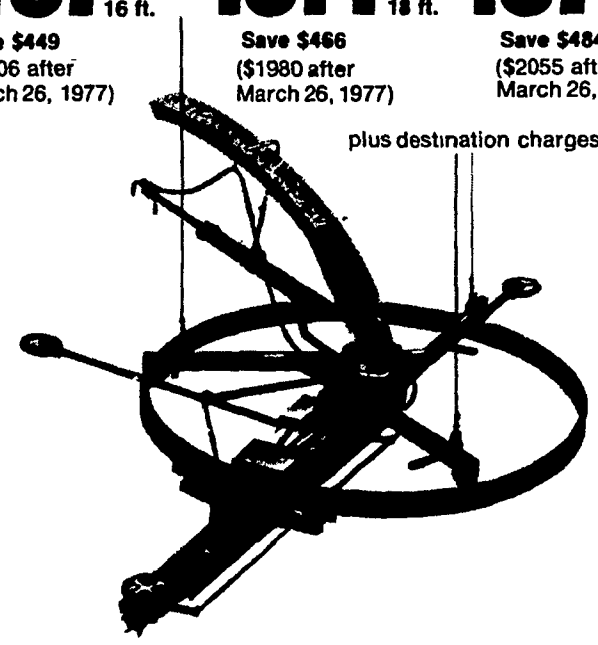
plus destination charges



Here's what you have been waiting for. The new Starline Satellite 70R silo unloader that combines all of the advantages of the popular Model 70 with the special benefits of ring drive. You get the same high-speed auger that rips silage loose at 720 rpm . . . the same tremendous throwdown power . . . the same simple but sound engineering found in the Model 70—plus the advantages of ring drive. The ring holds the Satellite in the center of the silo to keep the pack level and free from coning. Positive ring drive powers the auger through the toughest silage.

Order by March 26 and you pay only the very special introductory price of $1457.00* for a 70R to fit your 16' silo. Comparable low prices on 18 and 20 ft. sizes. In many cases, an easy-to-install conversion kit will let you suspend the 70R from your present straight-leg tripod.

Put a new Ring Drive Satellite in your silo . . . and start unloading silage faster and easier than ever before. Call the Agway Farm Mechanical Center nearest you before March 26.

Low beef spending cited as need for referendum

KANSAS CITY, Mo. - Beef industry leaders expressed alarm over government figures released Feb. 8 showing that Americans spent an all - time low percentage of their disposable income on beef in the last quarter of 1976.

The U.S. Department of Agriculture put the total at 2.27 per cent, and noted industry analyst William C. Helming said "This figure raises a bright red flag for the industry." In fact, the analyst termed it "the most significant single event of the year for the beef industry."

Helming is president of Livestock Business Advisory Services, Inc., Kansas City, Mo. He said every cattleman should be concerned about this drop in consumer spending, and every cattleman has a stake in the proposed beef market development program, aimed at retaining the market for beef, if not increasing it.

He added that the self - help program is coming along "none too early, if not two years too late."

Helming also said "Today's report suggests that a major change in consumer preference for beef may be in the making."

He stressed that he did not want to speculate about future beef demand. But, he said, today's figures "clearly indicate to me a shift from higher to lower priced cuts of beef," and a slight increase in the public's preference for other meat products.

The 29 - year average figure for beef is 2.52 per cent. The 1976 third quarter figure was 2.42 per cent, and the average that year was 2.41 per cent.

Helming said he believes there are "two reasons why people haven't become stirred up over these figures. First, thay have remained relatively constant for so long, they weren't noticed, and secondly, a lot of cattle people don't want to face up to the fact that demand is changing."

John Huston, vice president of the National Live Stock & Meat Board, agreed with Helming's overall analysis, but said the figures may also be a manifestation of many consumer concerns about beef that the Beef Act will try and dispel.

"In the past few years, beef has been the subject of concern in three major areas the health question related to beef, the world food problem and the cost of beef," he said.

Huston noted that beef's part in the cholesterol - cancer - heart - diet controversy has never been proven. And, he said, many people think Americans eat too much beef, or waste grain by feeding it to animals.

"Actually, the world food problem is mainly one of distribution, rather than supply. And cattle eat primarily roughage and waste forms of grain that humans can't eat, and convert this material to usable protein.

"I also believe that beef makes a convenient whipping boy when talking about inflation, primarily because it's an item that most consumers buy every week, so they can keep a close watch on any price changes. The hard facts rare that beef prices are lower than they were a year age." he emphasized.

All these factors, Huston said, "have the effect of eroding dollar demand for beef over a period of time."

The beef industry should be concerned about this drop in spending, he said. "We know we have a wholesome, nutritious product. Passage of the upcoming Beef Referendum will help us begin the necessary research to clear our product of unfounded health scare warnings.

"Then we must have the resources to communicate these resoits to thought leaders, especially in the field of medicine. And we must do the advertising and promotion necessary to take advantage of beef's overall favorable image as a delicious, very wanted food.

"Beef ha s been the subject of much unfounded criticism lately. Passage of the Referendum would raise about $30-$40 million yearly to begin dispelling this criticism," he said.

"That's a lot of money, but it works out to be about 15 cents per capita. That's pretty small investment to protect the $130 a year each consumer now spends on beef - let alone enable us to expand our markets," he noted.

Right off the bat, you re going to say "oh, they're talking about early-maturing hybrids"

Not necessarily so

Because our research people worked long and hard to make all Funk's G-Hybrids start drying down before the others Consequently, we ve gained a reputation for being drier at harvest

And remember, our stalks stay sturdy and strong, and stand right through the end

It's just that our hybrids don't come out of your fields all wet behind the ears

And that's going to save you headaches at harvest, moisture points at the elevator or fuel if you dry down in your own bin

So, if you're lookin' for hybrids that dry down fast regardless of maturity, turn to the ones that turn the tap on early Funk's G-Hybrids

You won t get turned off by the results

Target prices set

WASHINGTON, D.C. - Secretary of Agriculture Bob Bergland has announced the 1977 target prices for wheat and feed grains.

Current legislation requires that target prices be adjusted from 1976 levels to reflect the increase in the index of prices paid by farmers for production items, interest, taxes and wage rates during 1976 as well as changes in the three-year moving average of yields for each crop.

The 1977 target prices are as follows: Wheat ($-Bu.) - 2.47; Corn ($-Bu.) - 1.70; Sorghum ($-Bu.) - 1.62; Barley ($-Bu.) - 1.39

Target prices represent a floor price that eligible producers may receive for their crops. If the national average market price for the particular crop falls below the target price, a deficiency payment is made equal to the difference between the target price and the market price. Deficiency payments have never been made on wheat and feed grains in the four years of the program.

Target prices are also used as a base to determine disaster payments should a natural disaster strike an eligible producer's crop. Under such circumstances, disaster payments are paid if the producer is prevented from planting a crop or if yields are substantially reduced. The disaster payment rate is generally one-third of the target price for each commodity.

The Department also said that the 1977 loan rates it announced October 13, 1976 for wheat, feed grains, and soybeans are being reviewed and a decision on final loan levels for these commodities will be announced at a later date.

National per bushel loan levels announced October 13 were: Wheat - $2.25; Corn - $1.50; Sorghum - $1.43; Barley - $1.22; Oats - .72; Rye - $1.20; Soybeans - $2.50.

Individual state loan rates vary somewhat from national loan levels.

What's good, sensible feeding for one dairyman can be just plain extravagance for another.

That's why Beacon emphasizes "no-nonsense feeding".

By "no-nonsense" we mean profitable feeding, based on the needs of your herd, using as much as possible the feed available on your own farm, along with whatever supplements are needed for a complete nutritionally balanced diet.

How can you be sure you're feeding your herd well, and at the least possible cost?

We urge you to call upon the services of our dairy experts, in the field and at our headquarters in Cayuga. By all means, take advantage of our free roughage analysis.

Your Beacon Advisor will take a sample of your roughage and send it to our laboratory. There it will be analyzed by one of the dairy experts shown above—a man with a great deal of experience in animal nutrition. His analysis will be sent to you promptly, along with feeding recommendations based on your roughage quality and feed requirements.

There's no charge for the service and no one will try to sell you feed or supplements you don't need.

With Beacon feeds and Beacon's advisory service, your herd will get nutrients, not just ingredients.

FCA chief grants local authority

WASHINGTON, D.C. - Donald E. Wilkinson took the oath of office recently as the Farm Credit Administration's new governor and pledged to continue the agency's policy of placing maximum loan-making authority on local levels of the Farm Credit System.

"The Farm Credit System has the credit expertise locally," he said, "and a reputation as one of the most efficient credit delivery systems in the world. We need to build on this experience to give farmer-members better services and greater efficiencies."

Wilkinson cautioned, however, that the System's experience could be tested if drought conditions don't improve in the West and Midwest. "This could be the year when, without even-handed and sympathetic credit administration, thousands of farmers and ranchers could be ruined.

"I recognize," he said, "that credit cannot long be substituted for income." But he assured that System lenders, within their risk-taking capacity, would stick with drought-plagued farmers "as long as they are making an honest effort, are working closely with their lenders and have a basis for credit." He said FCA and the System are already cooperating to work out unified plans such as deferred principal payments - in the event weather conditions worsen.

Wilkinson said that most farmers who have been "seasoned by time" can, with some belt tightening, survive a year or two of bad weather. "Our principal concern is with the starting farmer who hasn't built much equity and with the cow-calf operator who has been suffering from poor weather conditions and low prices for several years. These two categories of producers are in special need of extra consideration," he said.

At the same time, Wilkinson said the Farm Credit Administration would not relax its strong supervisory stance with System lenders - the Federal Land Banks, Production Credit Associations and the Banks for Cooperatives. "Sympathetic and concerned credit administration is consistent with the System's farmer-ownership, with the needs of agriculture and with the national interest," he said. But he said if he encounters "loose credit administration" he would "see to it that FCA exercises its supervisory authority to the full extent, as have my predecessors." Observing that the System is entirely owned and capitalized by its borrower-members, Wilkinson said any unnecessary loan losses simply translate to higher interest rates for other members.

Wilkinson came to FCA from the U.S. Department of Agriculture where for the past 1 ½ years he was administrator of the Agricultural Marketing Service. He also served as interim administrator of the newly created Federal Grain Inspection Service. He is a native of Lafayette County, Wisconsin, and served from 1969-75 as Secretary of Agriculture for Wisconsin. He was a bomber pilot in World War II.

Wilkinson, the 10th FCA governor since the independent Federal agency was created in 1933, was sworn in by Daniel L. Monson, FCA's general counsel, at the agency's headquarters at L'Enfant Plaza. The agency has about 160 employees at its headquarters and 90 bank and association examiners located throughout the country.

The Farm Credit System has nearly $37 billion in loans outstanding to farmers and farmer cooperatives. This represents about one-third of the total amount U.S. farmers borrow and about two-thirds of the financing used by farmer cooperatives. Net worth of the System is $4.7 billion.

Orion Samuelson to be OYF awards emcee

TULSA, Okla. - Orion Samuelson, a vice president of WGN Continental Broadcasting Company in Chicago, has recently been named Master of Ceremonies for the Outstanding Young Farmer Awards Banquet to be held in Bismarck, North Dakota, March 22, 1977.

Orion Samuelson

Announcement of Samuelson's appointment was made by The United States Jaycees, who are coordinating the 221st annual OYF Program along with its national sponsor, John Deere.

Samuelson, who also serves as Agricultural Services Director of WGN Radio and TV, began his radio career in Wisconsin in 1952. In 1960, he became Farm Service Director at WGN Radio, which introduced Samuelson on its "America Farm Power Show" in Illinois. Since then, he has received many honors including "National Farm Broadcaster of the Year" in 1968.

Samuelson has been associated with the Jaycees' Outstanding Young Farmer Program since 1965. As MC of this year's OYF Awards, Samuelson will climax the three-day event (March 20, 21 and 22) by announcing America's Four Outstanding Young Farmers for 1977. The top winners, chosen from among the winners of each state contest, represent the year's greatest achievements by America's young (18-35 years) farmers. Pennsylvania will be represented by Larry Weaver of New Holland, who was featured in the Feb. 12 issue of Lancaster Farming.

problems Barry said, "We took the frozen dessert business for granted, and its performance was not good." Although Barry said management recognized the problem six months into the financal year and took steps to corect it, the turn - around came too late.

Barry added, "The frozen dessert business will be very profitable for this fiscal year. If it wasn't for the ice cream, we would have been on plan."

With the financial status uppermost in everyone's minds, Barry told the membership that their bankers have been heavily involved in reviewing the budget. "For three days we reviewed the budget in great detail, to make sure we didn't make any mistakes."

Barry explained that one problem with Le-Hi is that they have "a lot of square feet that is not being appropriately used. We are looking for things to generate new uses for the space."

Le-Hi has joined with other cooperatives to form the Middle Atlantic Milk Marketing Association, to utilize the "extra" milk in Federal Milk Marketing Order 4. This milk will be processed at Le-Hi's hard cheese plant in Allentown. Participating co-ops are: Valley of Virginia Milk Producers, Maryland - Virginia Milk Producers, Maryland Milk Producers, Eastern Milk Producres, Capital Milk Producres and Le-Hi. Barry said, "The wins and losses are shared according to how much milk they put in the the first 12 months of operation" he said, "All major co-ops who we felt were interested were invited to join."

While the barrel cheese business has shown "a remarkable recovery in the last month," Barry said they are investing in machinery to produce 40 pound blocks of cheese with the excess milk. He said, "We want to have the capacity to absorb all the milk in the market place which doesn't have a home." He said the cheese can be sold to the government and the cooperative will get a "reasonable return."

To utilize space at their Allentown plant, Le-Hi has joined with Eskimo Pie, a division of Reynolds Aluminum, to form Frosco, Frozen Specialty Products Corporation. Frosco is financed by Eskimo and operated by Le-Hi, which will own 50 percent of the stock after the company is in existence for two years. Frosco will have four or five pices of novelty manufacturing equipment and the facility will go on - stream this month, Barry said.

Another company being operated by Le-Hi is Penn-Le-Co, owned 50 per cent by Le-Hi and 50 per cent by Penn Maid, Inc. Barry said Le-Hi has been manufacturing all of PennMaid's cottage cheese. "The company was formed so we jointly could use assets to benefit each other. It is now a partnership." Barry said. Distribution will be through Penn Maid in the metropolitan Philadelphia area, and hopefully will be expanded to the New York and southern Florida market.

In its second month of operation, Penn-Le-Co has made money - "a nice

The driveway to the Barley farm was well travelled

Farmers rall

"It's time we grab the bull by the horns and put this sort of thing to a stop," he proclaimed. His committee currently working on a bill (H.B. 111) which will make the irresponsible taking of land illegal.

Of the 23 members on the House Ag Committee, 17 or 18 showed up at the Barley farm. Those absent had commitments with other committees that day and in all likelihood would have been here if that had not been the case. Secretary of Agriculture Kent Shelhamer was also unable to attend, sending a note of regret along with his aide, Neil Buss.

Buss told the group that Shelhamer has taken an intense interest in the matter, as has the entire House Ag Committee, and numerous farmer organization and agencies.

"The question is," began Buss, "have they (LARA) looked at any alternatives? The answer is fairly obvious. They have not. They are just looking at the cheapest way." To the surprise of nearly everyone there, it was pointed out that LARA officials have not yet talked with Louis Frame, owner of the Lanchester Landfill near Honey Brook. That site is considered to be an easy alternative and Frame himself has indicated he would welcome the additional refuse at his site.

Aside from the comments made by legislators, Lancaster County agricultural leaders also stepped up to the platform to express their opinions. Among them were County Agent Max Smith and Associate County Agent Alan Bair.

Smith presented a short talk on Lancaster County agriculture, stressing the fact that if land such as the Barleys' is taken away, ag productivity is hurt dramatically. He pointed out that soil in this area is among the best in the world and that the County ranks first in the nation among non-irrigated counties. To illustrate his point using 1975 production figures, the 40-year veteran of the Lancaster County Extension Service said that the County's farmers provide 1.5 million people with dairy foods; 3.3 million people with poultry products, and more than 300,000 people with beef, pork, and potatoes.

Bair cited several problems which would come up if 58 acres of the Barley farm is taken for a landfill. Manure handling would become a real burden since an estimated 2800 tons of it would have to be moved for distances of five miles or more to find other land where it could be applied in compliance with DER standards. Then there's the question of milk quality since the activities of an adjacent landfill will most likely have an impact on sanitation efforts within the dairy operation itself.

Aside from the Barley Brothers, at least five other landowners are also involved in the controversy with LARA. One of them, Harry Graham, chose to speak. Visibly emotional as he related his situation to the public, he excused himself with the words "I'm a little shook up." A voice from the crowd shouted: "We're shook up too, Harry!"

'to stop dump

Reno Thomas, minority spokesman on the House Ag Committee, said the case they were viewing was a "classic example of the kind of farm condemnation H.B. 111 would help prevent." Then he warned: "All we need to do is keep taking the best land away from food production and 'Mrs. Housewife' won't like the prices she'll have to pay."

Petitions were made available for signatures, and are probably still open if anyone wishes to place his name on them. One such petition was passed around at the District 5 meting of Inter-State Milk Producers on Thursday afternoon.

Before the rally was over, it was emphasized that the Refuse Authority already owns the 58 acres in question by virtue of the Declaration of Taking they filed earlier. Therefore the battle is far from over. Attorney Heinley said, "Now we have to cisenfranchise them (LARA)."

State Representative Noah Wenger, ended his comments with "We have been paying lip service to conservation of farmland for years, we're going to have to do more than that."

Among the other groups which are actively giving support to the Barleys are the State Grange, the Pennsylvania Farmers Association, the Pennsylvania Farmers Union, the Soil Conservation Service and the Agricultural Extension Service. On Thursday night, at a meeting on the Millersville State College campus, the Conestoga Valley Association also came out in favor of finding alternatives to the Creswell landfill. A resolution was passed by the CVA to try and save the Barley farm through a combination of legislative action, re-cycling and the use of Lachester Landfill on the Lancaster-Chester county line near Honey Brook.

The CVA joined legislators and other groups in encouraging that opponents to LARA's plans attend a LARA meeting this coming Tuesday afternoon; attend the March 23 meeting of the Manor Township supervisors, and visit LARA members personally.

Women Earn

Last year, working women earned a median income of $6,957, compared with $12,152 for men. Since 1962, the number of women lawyers has more than tripled in this country, and the number of women physicians has increased two and a half times. Woman make up 40 per cent of the U.S. Labor force but hold only 19 per cent of the jobs in management.

Starting with rootworm, corn
And blanket control comes only

Flea beetles. They leave scratch marks on leaves. Enough of 'em can kill young corn.

European corn borers. First generation feeds on leaves. Later ones bore into stalk, ear and shank.

Southwestern corn borers. They feed in whorls, damage stalks.

True armyworms. They feed in the whorls and on the lower leaves.

Fall armyworms. They chomp in the whorls and on the leaves.

Nematodes. Many species attack roots. Most common are lance, stubby root and root knot.

destroyers come many ways. with broad-spectrum Furadan®.

As sure as corn damage starts with rootworms, effective control starts with Furadan® insecticide-nematicide. A fact borne out by the experience of thousands of growers.

But while rootworm is your big enemy, your corn yields can also take a beating from many other pests. Pests that only Furadan can control in one fell swoop—European corn borers, Southwestern corn borers, fall armyworms, true armyworms, flea beetles, wireworms, plus eight species of nematodes.

Furadan stops these above and below ground pests because it works two ways. First it controls many soil pests on contact. Then it moves through the plant systemically to protect stalks and leaves as they develop.

What's more, Furadan is easy to use because its free-flowing granules won't lump or bridge. You get uniform application throughout your fields. Without offensive odor.

From rootworm on down, you've got a lot of enemies out there. But with Furadan on your side, you control more pests that get your corn. See your farm chemical supplier, or write FMC Corporation, Agricultural Chemical Division, 2000 Market Street, Philadelphia, Pa. 19103.

AGRI-KING
KEY TO PROFIT

FOUR YEARS WITH AGRI-KING
MARBET FARMS-LEBANON CO., PA.

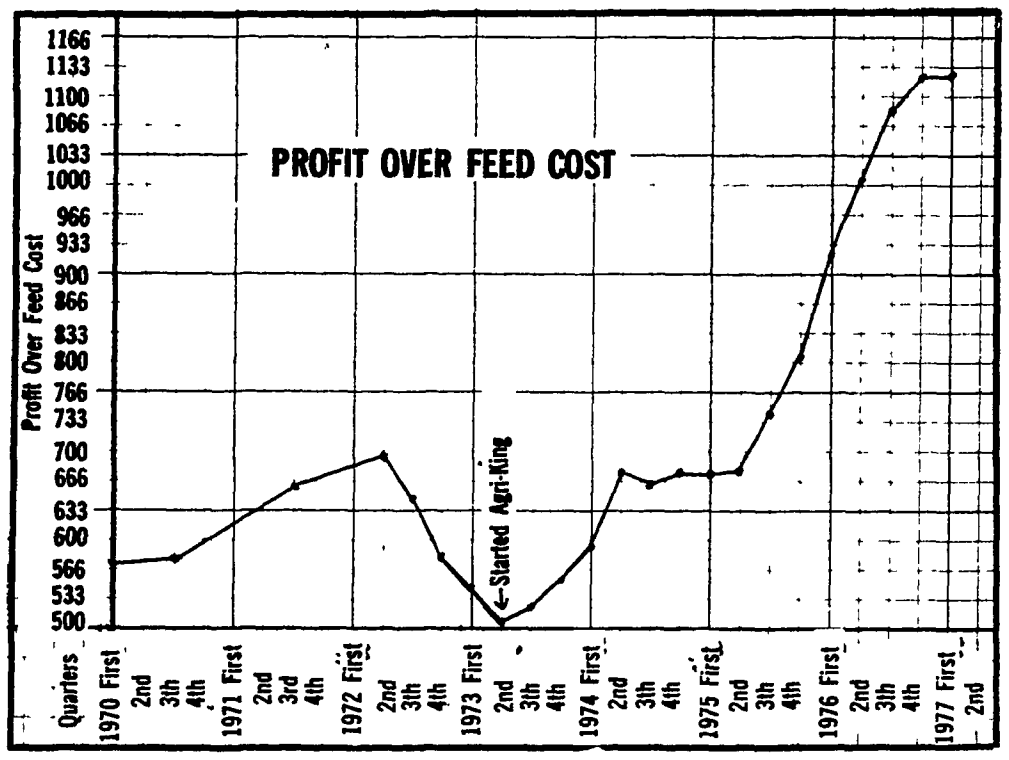
Here are three charts showing how their 70 cows have done over the past seven years. Chart number 1 shows the rolling herd average of milk production. Chart number two shows average lbs. of buttfat over this same period. Chart number three shows average profit over feed cost per cow. And after all this is really what we're interested in, not the cost of a ton of feed or a bag of mineral but the PROFIT OVER FEED COST.



Before starting Agri-King the grain cost was $1.59 per cow per day, hay was 40 cents, and silage was 60 cents. For a 50 lb. producer the total feed cost was $2.59 per day. On Agri-King it costs $1.31 for grain, 56 cents for hay and 60 cents for silage. Total feed cost for that same 50 lb. producer is $2.47. (all figures were done on current prices) It costs less to feed her right than it does to feed by guessing, because now she can utilize more of the home grown feeds. This is what makes the difference - getting the most out of what you have and only buying what you need.

This did not happen over night or even in 60 days. This is over a period of four years, and the future even looks brighter than the past because of the way the 2 year olds and 3 year olds are peaking and holding production.

Yes, it is nice to have cows peak at 80 lb. to 100 lb. or over, but of more importance is how these cows are milking 5 and 6 months into their lactation. Yes, Marbet Farms feeds a lot of Super Microan ounce of prevention is worth a pound of cure. They know that taking good care of their dry cows, their calves, and heifers helps to get the inherited production from the cows.

The secret in profit is not in getting bigger but in getting better with what you have and getting the most out of your home grown feeds.

Agri-King has been pleased to work with Marbet Farms for the past four years. Without their good management and desire to get the job done right, these results would not have been possible.

eeling," Barry asserted. 'hey are manufacturing a rozen dessert product in five lavors which is low in fat and high in protein. Barry said they are seeking not just yogurt eaters, but ice cream eaters and the acceptance of the product has been "excellent."

Chairman of the Board Alpheus Ruth in his report emphasized that a high priorty with the Board is to have Barry selecting people under him who will be qualified to take over should it become necessary. Barry said he has been working to make the organization structure self - generating, and added that his three vice-presidents are fo the caliber to be potential candidates for the job of president. He said, "They too are to develop candidates for their position. We want to have young people see the potential of working their way to the top."

Ruth encouraged members to call their directors or himself to get first hand information instead of relying on rumors which often abound. He called the local meeting "the most important of the year because members are on the same level with management and directors. We want to have every question answered if we can."

William Stout, director of field operations, had to deliver some bad news, saying that on April 1 a milk house stop cahrge of $1.00 will be added. He noted that while 95 per cent of the membership in this area is hauled by the cooperative, overall it is just 40 per cent.

At the business meeting Clyde W. Martin, East Earl, was re-elected chairman of the local. Other officers re-elected were vice chairman Nick Tkaczuk, Elverson R D, and Elmer Rohrer, 1270 Manor Boulevard, Lancaster.

Director - at - large Roy Hetrick, Bernville, reviewed some of the decisions and said, "We've made a lot of progress. Everything that has been done to solve our problems has been done for the future - they are not just stop - gap measures. It gives me conficence we can solve our problems."

John Kreider, local director, said his work with the board has been "real interesting. It is a real education. The board members are putting themselves into it and all take it seriously. He praised Barry saying, "He's trained for the job and is doing his best."

Extension County Agent M.M. Smith congratulated the co-op, saying, "The strengh of any cooperative is working together." He invited dairymen to attend the Penn State Dairy Day on April 6 and the County Manure Storage Tour on March 29. He said agronomy guides - two year versions - will be mailed soon, and are available from the Extension office.

Smith cautioned dairymen on the storage of pesticides and discarding used containers. He said, "Pesticide containers shouldn't be anywhere that pets, children or livestock can get to them"' He reminded

Red meat down from '76

HARRISBURG, Pa. Red meat production in Pennsylvania during January 1977 totaled 85.6 million pounds, down three per cent from a year ago, according to the Pennsylvania Crop Reporting Service.

Cattle slaughter at 86,500 head was down five per cent from January 1976; calves at 28,000 head were down 12 per cent; sheep and lambs at 10,600 head were down five per cent; but hogs at 231,000 head were down 13 per cent from a year ago.

Nationally, commercial red meat production in January 1977 totaled nearly 3.3 billion pounds, about the same as a year ago. The number of cattle slaughtered was down six per cent from a year ago. Sheep and lambs slaughtered was down 15 per cent, but hog slaughter was up seven per cent. Calf slaughter was up two per cent from a year ago.

LIFE on the farm

By Dieter Krieg, Editor

By DIETER KRIEG

It's in the air again and spreading from farm to farm. Every farmer feels it and welcomes the mysterious force to refreshen his spirit.

It's a sense of anticipation and accomplishment, of work and pleasure, of youth and gratitude, of beauty and worthiness.

It comes in the form of sunshine, gentle breezes, singing birds, traces of new vegetation, awakening flowers, and the unique scent which is released from turned soil. The hours of early morning don't seem as lonely now that the sun is peeking through the east windows at milking time. And the evenings are longer.

The earth itself is waking up again!

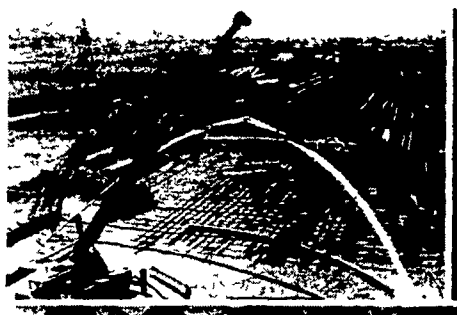
The hard, cold grip of Winter has melted with the ice and snow. And as the waters from the previously frozen masses bubble across the stones of streams, they sing a happy and lively tune. Every farmer has heard it. Fields are thawing and the air above gives all a gentle and warm embrace. Every farmer has felt it.

Facing the day now is an enjoyable experience, compared to the brutalities and discomforts of the Winter we faced. Gone are the heavy overcoats, scarfs and gloves. We can walk into the barn and be confident of not finding frozen pipes. The thought of it all is enough to tingle a person's spine.

In a way, the phenomenon we're experiencing now is unique to farmers. The general public calls it "Spring Fever." Everybody feels happy about it, and for good reason. But I have yet to meet the factory or office worker who's jumping for joy because of "Spring Fever" giving him a real boost towards getting something accomplished on the job. Instead "Spring Fever" is likely to have a depressing effect on the individual who's at work and staring out of his window or maybe has no window at all.

The farmer gets an extra measure of "Spring Fever" which is known, appropriately enough, as "Farming Fever." I hope nobody ever finds a cure for it. It's probably the most powerful driving force in the entire industry.

Yes, with the sun appearing earlier and staying later, the days are definitely friendlier. And "Farming Fever" has struck the hearts and minds and souls of millions.



Laminated Rafters:

The First Choice for Economical Space True Flexibility and Total Satisfaction...

'meets all our needs perfectly...

Dairyman AUSTIN BECK located in York County, Pennsylvania has been pleased with his new 50x 180 foot, 100 Cow Free Stall Barn and Milking Parlor constructed of Rigidply Laminated Rafters

"Our Free Stall Barn has proven to be completely satisfactory for handling cows I could not have built anything else that would have met our needs better

You get a lot more than a quality farm building with Rigidply Laminated Rafters. First, all of your inside space is useful, with a clear span from floor to ridge. Second, you have maximum resistance to wind and snow—because laminated rafters are far stronger than the wood itself; four times stronger than ordinary nailed rafters! Third, the attractive arches provide all of the roof support, while providing complete freedom for many practical interior arrangements. Fully guaranteed against defects in material and workmanship, the perfect shape and accurate size of every Rigidply Laminated Rafter results in a stronger structure—and a better looking building in which you can take much pride for many years.

Game law violations up 275 pct.

HARRISBURG, Pa. - Prosecutions for violations of The Game Law and penalties collected established new records in 1976, according to the Game Commission.

Last year there were 11,108 Game Law prosecutions in the state. Penalties collected totaled $496,624.

In 1975 there were 10,580 prosecutions for violations of The Game Law; and penalties collected totaled $453,562.

Game Commission law enforcement officials have noted a steady increase in prosecutions during the last 30 years. In 1947, for example, there were 4,036 prosecutions, and fines assessed totaled $132,895.

The number of prosecutions exceeded the 5,000 level in the early 1950s, and climbed to the 8,000 level by 1965. Prosecutions crossed the 9,000 mark in 1972.

While there has been a rather steady increase in the number of hunters afield during the past 30 years, the rate of increase for prosecutions is running well ahead of the percentage increase in hunters.

In 1947, for example, there were some 850,000 total licensed hunters in the state. Today there are about 1.25 million hunters, an increase of about 50 per cent compared to 1947, far less than the approximate 275 per cent jump in prosecutions during the same period.

It should be noted that, except for a few species, Game Law fines today are essentially unchanged from penalties set in 1937.

Law enforcement officials list several reasons for the increase in prosecutions. The number of district and deputy game protectors enforcing The Game Law is almost the same in 1977 as it was in 1947, despite the big increase in the number of hunters. However, these officers obviously are doing a better job; the violators today are every bit as crafty and evasive as they were 30 years ago.

Better training of officers is boosting the number of prosecutions. The use of better and more sophisticated equipment, such as state-owned vehicles and an excellent radio system, certainly has helped.

But one of the most obvious elements in the increase in Game Law prosecutions is the growing disrespect for laws. While officers have stepped up efforts to inform and educate hunters, the general disregard for laws by more hunters is reflected in the rise in prosecutions.

Last year the Game Commission revoked the hunting and trapping license privileges of 1,489 persons for serious Game Law violations. The threat of losing one's license seems to be a big deterrent to many individuals who probably would ignore game regulations if only a cash penalty were imposed. The loss of license privileges is of major concern to offenders apprehended by game protectors.

Prices received crawling upward

HARRISBURG, a. - The February 15 Index of prices received by Pennsylvania farmers increased nearly two per cent from the previous month and one per cent above a year earlier according to the Crop Reporting Service.

Higher prices for hay, potatoes, apples, hogs, lambs, broilers and eggs more than offset lower prices for grains, cattle,and milk cows. The purchasing power of prices received in February was one percentage point above January, but three percentage points below February 1976.

Nationally, the Index of prices received increased two per cent from January, but is unchanged from a year ago. Contributing most to the increase since mid - January were higher prices for cattle, broilers, hogs, soybeans, vegetables,and cotton. Lower prices for corn and milk were partially offsetting. The purchasing power at the U.S. level was two percentage points above February 1976.

Enliven meals with seafood cookery

By LAUREL SCHAEFFER
Berks County Reporter

LEESPORT, Pa. - Addressing well over 100 women and a group of vocational-technical school students, Arlene Joyce, home economist for the National Bureau of Commercial Fisheries, demonstrated some of the many ways to prepare seafood on March 1 at the Berks County Agricultural Center, here.

Mrs. Joyce, also a dietition and seafood consumer specialist, prepared several seafood dishes with the aid of Fay Strickler, Berks County Extension home economist, and Judy Witmer, nutrition aid supervisor, during her presentation. After the program, the prepared dishes were sampled by the audience.

When advising the group on purchasing seafood, Mrs. Joyce said to look for fish in season because the price is more reasonable and the fish will be fresher at this time of the year than at others.

"Look for pink gills, clear and bulging eyes, and feel the fish to see if the flesh is firm and fresh - it should spring back when touched," she said.

"Fish is a perfect protein food which is easily digested and low in calories, she continued, "fresh, frozen, or canned."

Mrs. Joyce showed that fish is versatile - it can be used as an appitizer, main entree, or even as a breakfast food. "Try something different," she added.

The seafood specialist emphasised the use of herring. Herring is an economical fish which is just coming onto the market in a form suitable to be used on the dinner table. "Herring is always thought of as being smoked or marinated, but it is a very good fish to cook with," Mrs. Joyce stated.

In continuing, the specialist said that several kinds of fish can be used for the same recipe. "You don't necessarily need the kind of fish which is specified in the list of ingredients," she told the women.

In preparing the seafood dishes, she demonstrated her point by substituting several kinds of fish other than what the recipes called for .

Mrs. Joyce also gave the women some cooking tips. The specialist stressed the use of all the liquids which drained from the fish because they were full of nutrients. Continuing, she said, "Use the carcass and the skin to make a fish stock if you are going to fillet them, if not, it is better to leave the head and tail on the fish until after it has been cooked to help retain the moisture." The head and tail can be removed after cooking if desired. Overcooking the fish was also discouraged.

Mrs. Joyce then demonstrated how to prepare squid for cooking. She then proceeded to tempt everyone present to try some squid which was already prepared.

After the cooking demonstration, three short films from the Bureau of Fisheries were shown. They were entitled: "Versatility of Form", "Appitizers", and "Fish for Breakfast".

The following are some of the recipes Mrs. Joyce prepared:

PORTUGUESE FISHERMAN STEW

2 lbs. striped bass fillets or other fish fillets, fresh or frozen
1 tablespoon margarine or butter
1 cup chopped onion
1 clove garlic, crushed
2 cans (1 lb. size) tomatoes, undrained, cut up
3 cups water
1 teaspoon leaf basil
1 teaspoon leaf thyme
¼ teaspoon crushed red pepper
1 teaspoon salt

Pseudorabies symposium to be held

NEW YORK, N.Y. - A fact-finding symposium on pseudorabies - the herpes virus disease which is increasingly plaguing the nation's swine herds - will be sponsored by the U.S. Department of Agriculture (USDA) and other organizations on April 4-5 in Ames, Ia.

Purpose of the symposium is to develop information about the disease which can be used by the USDA's Animal and Plant Health Inspection Service (APHIS) in studying an industry request for a control or eradication program. Interstate regulations governing the shipment of swine, and other proposals will be discussed.

Scientists from Europe, Canada, Mexico and the United States, as well as swine producers, have been invited to speak at the symposium, to be held in the C.Y . Stephens Auditorium, Iowa State University, in Ames. Swine producers throughout the country are urged to attend and express their views.

Outbreaks of pseudorabies - also called Aujeszky's disease or "mad itch" - have increased alarmingly in the last few years. Some 700 cases were confirmed in 1976, compared to only 125 in 1974.

The disease primarily affects swine, but can be transmitted to other animals. It can cause death losses of up to 100 per cent in pigs less than two weeks of age. After three weeks, young pigs usually develop some resistance to the disease. Pseudorabies is not known to affect man.

Farm labor force down from '76

HARRISBURG, Pa. - The number of workers on Pennsylvania farms totaled 107,000 during the survey week of January 9-15, 1977, a decrease of 1000 workers from the comparable week a year age. The survey, conducted by the Pennsylvania Crop Reporting Service, found that farm operators and family workers totaled 76,000, the same as last year, while hired farm workers at 31,000 were down 1000 workers from January 1976.

The average workweek for Pennsylvania farm operators during the survey week was 40.3 hours and that of other unpaid family members averaged 38.2 hours. Hired workers averaged 37.5 hours during the survey week. The weekly average for all workers was up from a year ago, reflecting the time and effort required to accomplish Winter chores this year.

Family workers in the survey includes farm operators working on farms one hour or more plus other family members who work 15 hours or more without receiving cash wages during the week. Hired workers include all persons working one hour or more for cash wages during the survey week.

Pennsylvania farm wage rates for all methods of pay converted to an hourly rate, averaged $2.94 per hour during the survey week. That average showed an increase of 28 cents per hour from last year's rate of $2.66. Field and livestock workers were paid an average of $2.68 during the survey week, an increase of 40 cents from last year.

Nationally, the total number of workers on farms January 9-15 was 3,229,700, a drop of 250,000 from last year's figure. Of that total, family workers and operators totaled 2,412,400, a decline of 181,600. Hired workers declined from 885,800 in Jannuary 1976 to 817,300 in 1977.

The average weekly hours worked by farm operators in the U.S. was 26.6 hours and that of other family members averaged 32.1 hours. Hired workers averaged 36.1 hours of work during the survey week.

U.S. farm wage rates for all methods of pay, converted to an hourly rate, averaged $2.96 during the survey week.

York County pork producers elect officers

By JOYCE BUPP
York Co. Reporter

MENGIS MILLS, Pa. - Historic Colonial Valley in Menges Mills was the site of the annual meeting of the York County Pork Producers on March 5.

Following the family style dinner, President Roger Bankert presided over a brief business meeting. Several outgoing directors were reelected for another term and the county - wide pork barbecue was scheduled for June 11 at the Elickers' Grove park.

Mrs. Carolyn Rutter, Dover R1, is heading the promotional activities of the Pork Producers part in an upcoming York Mall Ag Day display on March 18 and 19. Two baby pigs will catch the eye of visiting shoppers and help draw potential interest in the Association's upcoming Pork Cookout King contest.

The evening's program included two films arranged by Asst. Co. Extension Agent Tony Dobrosky. "Surprise Me!" is produced by the National Pork Producers Council, an organization of 80,000 independent pork growers from across the country. Funds for the support of the advertising activities are raised through a completely voluntary market place checkoff of 10 cents per marketed hog.

The colorful menu suggestions included in the film cover the variety of ways to serve nutritional pork. Attractively cooked and arranged, the serving suggestions almost put the smell of ready - to - eat pork in the air. Cartoon characters help to sell the food - buying housewife on the outstanding qualities of pork as a source of high quality protein that is both lean and highly digestible.

"The Covenant," produced by the American Veterinary Medicine Association, detailed the wide range of subjects that must be mastered by students in veterinary science colleges. And once graduated, the new "vet" can enter a diversified field of jobs in private practices, military positions, research, food testing and certification, zoo health, and wildlife management.

Dobrosky alerted the hog producers to the mounting problem of "psuedorabies," a hog disease that attacks the brain centers. When found in cattle, the affliction is known as "mad itch." He recommended bloodtesting all hogs brought into established herds as a regular management practice. Government action of some type to bring the disease into control is expected in the near future.

Elected directors heading the organization are: Roger Bankert, president; Arlie Cornbower, vice-President; Richard Luckenbaugh, secretary-treasurer; James Parlette, Preston Bankert, Ronald Trostle, William Shirey, L.C. Wambaugh, Donald Lanius, William Strausser, Larry Seitz, and Joel Stern. Directors - at - large include Tony Dobrosky, Guy Naugle, and Norwood McGuigan.

Cow herd in better balance with beef demand

DENVER, Colo. - U.S. cow slaughter is continuing at a rate which is putting the basic cow herd back into better balance with demand for beef, the American National Cattlemen's Assn. pointed out this week.

The nation's cow herd totaled 52.4 million head on Jan. 1, 1977 - down four per cent from a year earlier and 8 per cent from the peak in 1975, according to the government's latest cattle inventory report. This reduction in herd size resulted primarily from a record large cow slaughter of 11.6 million head in 1975 and 10.6 million in 1976.

The numbers reduction phase of the current cattle cycle is expected to continue (although at a slower rate) in 1977, and the cow herd may drop to about 51 million head on Jan. 1, 1978, it was noted by economists with Cattle-Fax, the market analysis arm of ANCA.

However, they said, if severe drought conditions continue in midwestern and western pasture and range country, there could be further severe herd liquidation, and the basic cow herd could decline even further this year.

At this time, Cattle-Fax is expecting a nine million head cow kill in 1977. In January, the total was 920,000 head, down 18 per cent from a year earlier. The February total is estimated at 800,000 head, down 5 per cent from the same month in 1976. While less than the high levels a year earlier, the 1977 monthly cow slaughter totals so far still are relatively large.

The comments on the cow herd were part of a continuing Cattle-Fax-ANCA program to help keep the industry posted on trends in cow herd size, including apparent relationships with beef demand.

ANCA President Wray Finney noted that there has been a long-term upward trend in U. S. cow numbers as beef production has increased along with increases in population and income. However, the 10-year cattle cycles have brought sharp swings in herd size above and below the upward trend line.

"With the past two years' large cow slaughter - resulting from drought in some areas as well as extreme financial losses - the cow herd has now returned to the trend line," Finney said. "A further drop in cow numbers is likely, though, because of herd liquidations and reductions brought on by current adverse economics and weather. In fact, the cow herd could decline somewhat in 1978 as well as 1977.

"The tendency for cow numbers in each cycle is to go lower than desirable from the standpoint of stability and then, as profits improve, to go too high to sustain profitability for more than a few years."

Although the cow herd is now back at the trend line, Finney said, it may be that, in today's economy, the cow herd will have to decline at least another one to two million head before the total industry can expect favorable returns. If production costs continue to climb, if per capita dollar demand for beef continues to lag behind historic levels, and if population growth slows, a slower average rate of growth in cow herd size may be required in future years.

One thing to keep in mind, ANCA said, is that the beef supply from a given size cow herd does not reach the market until one and a half to two years after birth of the offspring. Thus, the recent reductions in cow herd size will not be fully felt in the market place until 1978 and 1979 - just as the large 1974 calf crop was not fully reflected until 1976 (when there were record large beef supplies as a result of herd liquidation as well as the record large calf crop two years earlier.)

Cattle-Fax said that, based on current economics, annual per capita beef supplies may have to drop to around 115 pounds or less before industry returns will be generally favorable (although reduced feeder cattle numbers could put many producers back in a break-even or profit position by late 1977 or early 1978).

Prospects now are that per capita supplies will decrease from 129 pounds (carcass weight) in 1976 to about 121 pounds in 1977 and 116 pounds in 1978, with a further decline in 1979 and perhaps 1980, before cyclical increases in per capita supplies resume.

Finney went on to point out that, during past cycles, beef production was increasing not just because of larger cow numbers but also because of significantly rising output per cow. The increase per cow resulted from (1) a shift from dairy to beef cows; (2) an increase in fed beef as a proportion of the total; (3) decreased calf slaughter and more feeding out of calves; (4) improved calving rate; (5) improved technology and management.

In the foreseeable future, he said, these same gains in beef output per cow are not likely. Therefore, beef production will depend more on cow herd size, and it will be possible to monitor herd size and longer range supply trends more accurately.

4 cups pumpkin or winter squash, cut in 1 inch squares
2 ears corn, cut cross into 1 inch pieces

Thaw fish if frozen. Cut fish into one-inch cubes. In a large saucepan melt butter. Add onion and garlic and cook until vegetables are tender. Add tomatoes, water, basil,thyme, red pepper, salt, pumpkin, and corn. Cover and bring to boil; simmer for 10 or 15 minutes or until pumpkin and corn are done. Add fish and continue to cook for five or ten minutes or until fish flakes easily when tested. Makes 12 cups.

NEW BEDFORD WALNUT FRIED FLOUNDER

2 lbs. flounder fillets or other fish fillets
1 teaspoon salt
¼ teaspoon pepper
1½ cups fresh bread crumbs
1½ cups walnuts
1½ teaspoon crushed rosemary
1 teaspoon marjoram leaves
½ teaspoon leaf thyme
1 cup flour
2 eggs, beaten
One-third cup margarine or butter
One-third cup cooking oil
Lemon wedges

Thaw fish if frozen. Sprinkle with salt and pepper. Combine bread crumbs, walnuts, rosemary, marjoram, and thyme. Roll fillets in flour dip in egg, and roll in crumb mixture. Heat margarine and oil in a fry pan until hot, but not smoking. Place fish in pan and fry at a moderate heat for four or five minutes or until browned. Turn carefully and fry four or five minutes longer or until fish is browned and flakes easily. Drain on paper. Serve with lemon wedges. Makes six servings.

PILGRIMS CLAM PIE

3 doz. shell clams or
3 cans (8 oz. size) minced clams
1½ cups water
¼ cup margarine or butter
½ cup sliced fresh mushrooms
2 tablespoons minced onions
¼ cup flour
⅛ teaspoon liquid hot pepper sauce
¼ teaspoon dry mustard
¼ teaspoon salt
⅛ teaspoon white pepper
1 cup reserved clam liquor
1 cup half and half
1 tablespoon lemon juice
2 tablespoons chopped parsley
2 tablespoons chopped pimiento
Pastry for 1-crust 9 in. pie
1 egg, beaten

Wash clam shells thoroughly. Place clams in a large pot with water. Bring to a boil and simmer for eight to 10 min. or until clams open. Remove clams from shell and cut into ¼'s. Reserve one cup clam liquor. (OR: if using canned clams, drain and reserve one cup liquor). In skillet melt margarine. Add mushrooms and onion and cook until tender. Stir in flour, mustard, hot pepper sauce, salt and pepper. Gradually add clam liquor and half and half. Cook, stirring constantly, until thick. Stir in lemon juice, parsley, pimiento, and clams. Pour mixture into a nine in. round deep-dish pie plate. Roll out pastry dough and place on top of mixture in pie dish; secure dough to the rim of the pie plate. Vent pastry. Brush with beaten egg. Bake at 375 degrees F., for 25 or 30 minutes. Makes six servings.

He also explained the proposed beef promotion program, saying that many dairymen should be interested because of raising dairy - beef animals or selling cull animals. Interested farmers can register with the Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service. He said he would like a large amount of people to vote and express their feelings on the referendum.

Directors for the Mount Joy Farmers Cooperative were recognized. It was noted that the Mount Joy Co-op was formed in 1930, and now has just under 100 producers. In 1974 they began shipping milk to Le-Hi and are now a block member with members receiving the same prices as Le-Hi members.

Greenhouse energy may be conserved

By Doris Henrique
Asst. Agricultural Editor
University of Delaware

NEWARK, Del. - Commercial nurserymen and homeowners with hobby greenhouses are both faced with a critical problem today - the conservation of energy in greenhouse operation. The best way to do this is with better insulation, says Dr. David Mears, an agricultural engineer at Rutgers University who has been working for several years on ways to solve the problem. He has developed some simple techniques which can cut fuel consumption in the average greenhouse by as much as one half.

Mears talked about some of these techniques recently, during the Delaware Nurserymen's Short Course in Dover, Del. This is an annual event sponsored jointly by the Delaware Cooperative Extension Service and the Delaware Association of Nurserymen.

He told his audience there that it's irrelevant to talk about how much longer fossil fuel supplies are going to last. "The fact is, these are limited and running out. Whether it's a matter of five years or fifty, we'd better get crackin' on some answers."

The engineer and his colleagues at Rutgers have been tackling the knotty problem of energy conservation in greenhouses from two directions: improved insulation to cut heat loss, and improved heat sources, including the use of solar energy.

By far the easiest way to save energy in a greenhouse is to find a way to cut heat loss, he explains. Insulation isn't as glamorous a subject as solar energy or nuclear power plants or windmills, but it's far more practical. This is largely because greenhouses are notoriously poor in design from this standpoint.

In one of their first efforts at improving insulation, the Rutgers team came up with a procedure which they say can reduce fuel oil consumption by 33 per cent. The idea is simple - you just take two sheets of polyethylene, seal them together, blow air inside and use this "pillow" to cover your greenhouse frame. For every 100 units of fuel oil you'd burn in a fairly tight single covered house, you'll use only about 67 with this treatment, states Mears. This is because of the insulating effect of the dead air space between the sheets of plastic. The idea is adaptable to many types of greenhouse and is currently being used by one commercial nursery operation in central New Jersey on a structure that covers six acres.

Another insulation treatment being studied is the use of curtains which can be raised at night inside the greenhouse. The material used doesn't matter - clear polyethylene, black polyethylene, aluminized mylar, fabric or something else. What is important is the dead air space that's created. When Mears and his colleagues installed such curtains inside a greenhouse with the plastic pillow treatment, they were able to further reduce fuel consumption to half of what it would have been in a conventional house.

Greenhouse operators can also economize on fuel by improving the method of heat distribution in their buildings. The Rutgers team is now working on an experimental design where heat is provided by warm water under the floor of a house insulated in the ways described above. This water can be heated either by conventional fuel or by solar means.

The idea is to spread a vinyl swimming pool liner over a three-quarter inch cushion of slab styrofoam and partially fill this liner with crushed rock. This is then capped with a layer of porous concrete to provide a surface to walk on. Warm (75-80 degrees F.) water is then circulated through the crushed rock. The result is equivalent to having a large, warm lake under the floor of the house. The entire installation costs about 80 cents a square foot, says Mears, and it distributes heat much more evenly than systems where water pipes are buried under regular concrete.

In the prototype design being developed at Rutgers, the water for this heating system is warmed most of the time by a nearby solar collector which stores heat on sunny days. An oil burner provides backup heat for cloudy weather when not enough solar heat is collected. The collector used is a simple one built of wood and plastic for about $1 a square foot. Though not as efficient as more expensive commercial types, the unit provides adequate heat for the needs of the greenhouse.

A further refinement of the heating system is to introduce what might best be referred to as a temporary "warming wall" inside the greenhouse. To do this, a clothesline is strung across an aisle. A piece of perforated plastic tubing is attached to this and a large sheet of plastic is then draped over the line so that it hangs down to the floor on both sides. Warm water is next pumped through the perforated tubing. This runs down inside the plastic sheet and drains through the porous concrete floor back into the water stored there.

The effect is to warm the air space around the plastic "wall" to the same temperature as the water flowing inside, without saturating the atmosphere of the house with humidity, as would happen were the warm water to be simply sprayed into the air. When the warmer is not needed, the clothesline is simply lowered to the floor.

Some of the devices being developed by Mears and his associates to reduce fuel consumption may remind the reader of the once-famous inventions of Rube Goldberg. But the fact is, these ideas really work.

Between September 1 and January 3, using all the above procedures and in spite of extremely low temperatures and a record number of degree days, the researchers succeeded in heating their experimental greenhouse with about one-fifth the fossil fuel they would have had to use in a conventional, single glazed structure of the same size.

Lest commercial nurserymen and home greenhouse buffs think that all these energy saving ideas must wait for some future application, along with the solar energy, it is well to remember Mear's initial point - that half of their overall fuel savings resulted from insulation improvements alone. Solar energy may someday become the routine fuel in greenhouse operations, but for the present there's a big savings to be made just by locking in the heat, no matter what its source.

Lebanon Co. Extension holds 60th dinner meeting

By JOANNE SPAHR

MT. ZION, Pa. - For 27 years Jacob M. Smith, Annville R2, has been working closely with the Lebanon County Extension office, and on Tuesday evening, at the Extension Service's 60th annual meeting, he was honored for his support of that organization. Marion Deppen, assistant director of the Capital Region, presented a certificate of recognition to him. Smith served on the executive committee of the organization in 1950 and has been closely lined in other capacities since then.

Deppen was also called on to give the Capital Region administrator's report. In that report he noted that Lebanon County farms produce enough milk for 400,000 people, enough eggs for 300,000 individuals, and enough poultry for 200,000.

Individual staff members also gave short reports of the past year. Greg Solt, county agricultural agent,made note of a dairy project he has started in the county in the past few months. Stemming from extensive research he did at Penn State University, Solt believes that calves can be successfully fed once a day, and with the help of several farmers from the county he has set up a pilot project to corroborate that fact.

"At last report, there were 15 animals on test, and so far, farmers seem happy with it," he said. "If this works out, Lebanon County could beat the nation to the punch, so to speak, because this research hasn't been published in journals, as yet."

At Penn State, this program of feeding the calves fermented colostrum once a day did prove successful, but as Solt observed, the test herd at the university is different than an actual on-farm herd. He will be able to judge how the program has succeeded by this Summer.

Dennis Hoke, county agricultural agent, spoke on Johnsongrass control. He said that the county began to focus in on this problem last season, and that a demonstration plot was set up with the aid of a county farmer and a chemical company. He also noted that the county agricultural Stabilization Conservation Service is initiating a cost sharing program for Johnsongrass control, and that the Extension Service will hold a training meeting to teach proper cultural practices and use of herbicides for control of this weed.

Jacob Smith, (second from left) receives a certificate of recognition from Marion Deppen, assistant director of the Capitol Region Extension Service, for his support of the organization over the years. Looking on are Alletta Schadler, Lebanon County Extension director, and Alfred Brandt, president of the Lebanon County Extension Association.

Pat Krall, 4-H agent, told of the county's pilot 4-H program for the mentally retarded children. That program meets during school days in the Cedar Crest Middle School with the children doing two beginning projects. Miss Krall also expressed the hope of starting a club for children with Cerebral Palsy.

Aletta Schadler, Lebanon Co. Extension director, spoke briefly on Lebanon Co.'s new nutrition program. The county now has two nutrition aids who go into homes and teach families how to get the most nutritional value from foods.

Following the staff reports, Dr. Jerome K, Pasto, associate dean of Penn State University, and Dr. James E. Van Horn, professor of agriculture and home economics Extension, presented a program on the life of Evan Pough, first president of the agricultural college of Pennsylvania. The program began with slides on the background of Pugh's life, and concluded with the acting out of Pugh's speech to the Cumberland County Agricultural Society, Carlisle, in 1860. Pasto, who researched the subject off and on for a period of two years, played the role of Dr. Pugh. This particular program has been enacted over 40 times in the past year.

At the close of the meeting, the results of the voting for this year's officers were announced. All incumbents were reelected with Alfred Brandt, Lebanon R2, president; Richard Kreider, Lebanon R1, vice president; Clair Gerberich, Jonestown R1, treasurer; and Orpha Bomberger, secretary.

sorbed the production. Some dairymen at that time spent considerable amounts of cash to upgrade their facilities, adding milk tanks and in some cases building milk houses, to qualify for the Grade A New Holland market.

New Holland Farms is a subsidiary of Queens Dairy, Brooklyn, New York, owned by Jules Kotcher. Kotcher also operated the former Graybills plant. The farmers hit by the area cutoffs report that Queens Dairy just a few weeks ago closed down a similar operation in northern New York state, which affected 200 shippers. And, about four years ago, several small dairies in the northern tier counties of Pennsylvania were bought up by the Brooklyn firm, and then shut down within a year. Eastern Milk Cooperative absorbed the farmers hit at that time with the loss of their market.

Pennsylvania Secretary of Agriculture, Kent Shelhamer, contacted in his office Tuesday by Lancaster Farming, indicated deep concern over the plight of the dairy farmers.

"I'm always unhappy and distressed when I see any farmer losing his market," said Shelhamer. "Could these shippers get together and see if providing their own hauling would be feasible? I would hope that they may be able to work something out through joint efforts."

Shippers among themselves are questioning the hauling charge reason given by New Holland Farms for pickup stoppage. Under the Federal Order 2 regulations which govern this market, shippers were only paying ten cents per hundredweight toward hauling costs which were actually costing 35 cents to the dairy. But, there is a good deal of speculation that a major contract for manufacturing milk might have been lost to the parent company.

Dairymen indicate that they have been in touch with representatives of several cooperatives and independents, but no concrete plans to take over the block of shippers had been formulated. Federal Order 2 markets were being deemed more attractive because of the yearly milk base structure in Order 4.

"This is a bad time of the year to be looking for a market," admitted Earl Fink, head of the Pennsylvania Milk Marketing Board. "And this year seems to be exceptionally bad because of heavy production." Notification of the farmers about the cutoffs was well within PMMB regulations, which require a three-week notice of pickup stoppage.

Area independent dairies were not looking around for milk either.

"We certainly don't need any extra production," indicated M. Ebert Rutter of Rutter's Dairy in York. "We have to take a loss of 75 or 80 cents a hundredweight on our excess milk now."

Meanwhile, 104 anxious southcentral Pennsylvanians milk their cows and await word of the future of their livelihood.

"If you've dropped out of a cooperative, get back in!"

That advice comes from Edwin Zeigler, Seven Valleys R1, on the heels of the letter from New Holland Farms, Inc., informing him and 103 other dairy farmers that after April 5 they would no longer have their milk market.

Zeigler is the District 18 director from Federal Order 2 to American Dairy Association. Included in his area of representation are the three counties affected by the discontinuance of milk pickups by the Lancaster dairy west of the Susquehanna River.

We're just sitting and waiting now," indicated Zeigler earlier this week. "There is just no market at the moment." He, and other farmers active in the Order 2 market, were uncertain whether they should all begin looking for milk buyers on an individual basis, or try to hold out collectively for a market that will accept the entire group.

"I contacted Senator Ralph Hess immediately to let him know what had happened," offered Nelson Brenneman, Spring Grove R1. Brenneman had located a market that was willing to take him on immediately, but he was waiting to see if it was possible to find an outlet for the other farmers who had also been notified of the impending market loss.

"Even the cow dealers in the area are upset," added Brenneman. "Orders were being cancelled for replacement animals because of the uncertainty of finding new outlets for the production.

John Krone, Glen Rock R2, milks a herd of 26 cows. He recalled that when the Graybill plant in York County was closed about 14 months ago, there was some discussion that the milk transferred to New Holland Farms, Inc. might only find a market for a year.

"But we haven't heard that possibility mentioned since that time, and indications were that as long as we had the milk, there would be a market for it," said Krone.

The Glen Rock dairy farmer places most of the blame for the market loss on the fact that there is "just too much milk." But he also feels some of the problem traces to current consumer trends.

"The public seems to have forgotten that, when labor was earning one dollar an hour, farmers were being paid six dollars a hundredweight for milk. The price for milk in comparison to the rise in wages has not kept pace. But people still say milk is too high priced and they refuse to buy it," added Krone.

In spite of the seriousness of the market loss, Krone had not lost his sense of humor.

"Maybe we could go in the hog feeding business," he quipped.

Edwin Zeigler had one final word about the future of the Order 2 dairy industry.

"These guys who aren't contributing to advertising checkoffs had better wake up and start paying promotion funds or they'll wake up and find they've lost all their markets for good," he concluded.

The PROVEN Fickes
MASTER—MATIC SILO SYSTEM

Master-Matic is the proven automatic silage handling system first introduced in the eastern United States by Fickes over a year ago There's no longer any need to enter the silo Once filled, the silo can be unloaded from top to bottom—automatically The Silo-Matic Continuous-door Unloader moves down the continuous doors to unload haylage, corn silage or high moisture corn It operates effectively, efficiently and without mechanical problems

The Fickes-Master-Matic Silo System offers you:
CONVENIENCE—Puts an end to the chore of climbing the silo every few days
TIME-SAVING—Keeps you out of the silo so you can spend your time to more profitable advantage
CLEAN ENTRY CHUTE—Continuous door chute used for unloading Second chute doors remain in place always clean

SILO-MATIC CONTINUOUS-DOOR SILO UNLOADER
This exclusive unloader design has been in use on continuous-door silos for more than a year It has been thoroughly tested and proved under farm-operating conditions with haylage corn silage and high moisture corn The Silo Matic Continuous Door Silo Unloader automatically moves down the silo from door to door The gooseneck stays in perfect alignment with the chute doors and hood remains in ideal position for maximum silage carrying efficiency
There are no springs, ropes, cables or pulleys to adjust since the downward movement of the unloader operates by gravity The electric cable is plugged into a power source at the top of the silo The electric cable automatically uncoils as the unloader moves down the silo

Silo-Matic TRAVELING BELT FEEDER

FAST, HIGH VOLUME CATTLE FEEDING WITHOUT SEPARATION

- Smooth, Slip-Proof, Fixed Speed Drive
- Even Distribution—No Feed Build-Up
- Belt Glides on Plywood Trays
- Self Tightening, Self-Cleaning Feed Belt
- Low Horsepower Requirements
- No Separation of Mixed Feeds
- Optional Automatic Reversing Switch For Continous Feeding

Clean Chute—This photograph shows the clean chute side of the Fickes silo This system provides clean entry to the silo at all times Doors are "refrigerator fit" Fickes Swingbeak hinged doors

Unloading Chute—The continuous door column chute shown here with continuous door covers in closed position for loading silo

CONTINUOUS DOORS—The Fickes Continuous Doors can be placed at almost any location desired in the circumference of the silo They require no special rods or spreaders The small doors (8 ½ wide x 15 long) are wedged tightly against a 2 steel jamb The silo is loaded with doors in place

What's New

HAND-HELD SPEEDOMETER

A new slow speed hand-held speedometer which registers as low as one-quarter mile per hour has been announced.

It is used to calibrate slow moving farm machinery such as tractors, sprayer rigs, beet thinners, planting units and the like.

The instrument has a dial 2-¾ inches in diameter which registers from 0 to 6 miles per hour in ¼ mile increments. It is six inches long with a rubber tired wheel 3-¼ inch in diameter and weighs one pound.

The instrument also reads in feet per minute, 5-600 feet. It is available from Sjostrom Electronics, Box 1482, Boca Raton, Fla. 33432.

Penna. gearing up for metric system

HARRISBURG - The people who regulate standard weights and measures make up the oldest consumer advocate operation in existence, according to Kent D. Shelhamer, Pennsylvania's Secretary of Agriculture. "Most people take accuracy of weights and measures for granted, but it actually takes many thousands of man - hours by our department personnel each year to inspect, test and checkweigh items offered for the consumer, to insure that accuracy."

Shelhamer said that the Bureau of Standard Weights and Measures made over 28,000 inspections during the fiscal year 1975-76, which resulted in outright savings of over $200,000 for the Commonwealth's consumers. In addition, the bureau's inspectors checked thousands of large and small scales, tank and LPG meters, gasoline pumps and bulk milk tanker calibrations during the same period, resulting in even more savings for producers and consumers.

The theme for this eyar's Weights and Measures Week, held earlier this month, reflected the national Metric Conversion Act of 1975, which provides that each sector of the economy will convert to the metric system at its own speed, based on its needs and limitations. Some signs of this changeover are already evident.

The conversion to metric provides a number of opportunities for the careless consumer to go astray, with some confusion coming from suspicions that producers are using the change to metric sizes to conceal price increases. Shelhamer says that it's not a matter of producers knowing all about the metric system and using it as an entry into the consumer's pocketbook. Manufacturers are in a learning process, too, and a wrong decision involving a cent or two per unit could spell economic disaster for them.

Many familiar measures will be affected by the change to metric. Weather reporters are already giving temperature readings in both Fahrenheit and Celsius. Manufacturers are marking the weight of their products in both grams and ounces. Road signs in some parts of the country are giving distances in both kilometers and miles.

Mail rates will soon be based on grams rather than ounces. Clothing sizes will be measured in centimeters. Carpeting will be sold by the square meter and television sets will be measured in centimeters. Speed limits will be expressed in kilometers per hour and gasoline will be sold by the liter. A 220-pound man will be weighed in at 100 kilograms.

With all these changes, Shelhamer says that once people get used to the metric system, measures will be much simpler. "The system that we've been using is so complicated that it's a wonder we have been able to cope with it. Our system for measuring length has six basic units, none of them related in any reasonable mamer. In fact, most people couldn't tell you what the six are: inch, foot, yard, fathom, rod and mile.

"Our system for measuring mass is alomst as bad with five basic units of measure: grain, dram, ounce, pound and ton. And worst of all is our system for measuring volume with nine basic units: fluid ounce, teaspoon, cup, pint, quart, gallon, barrel, peck and bushel."

The metric system has only one basic unit for each type of measure: the meter for length, the gram for weight, and the liter for volume. "The fact that the metric measures are related to each other in multiples of ten is the key to the system's simplicity," Shelhamer says.

The conversion to metric is a challenge to the Bureau of Standard Weights and Measures, according to Shelhamer. "Our job is to protect consumer and producer alike. The benefits of the metric system will greatly outweigh the rough spots in conversion,"

Rishels on top again

"Kick" up corn profits with Unipel® Starter Special 13-34-10.

This is the "corn-popper" special...the most imitated pop-up fertilizer on the market. As part of a Unipel corn fertility program, it suits perfectly the young corn plant's immediate craving for nutrients to develop a good root system, the starting point for top yields.

Yet, it's also a complete fertilizer with these key nutrients available in each Unipel pellet:

* quick-acting, non-volatile nitrate Nitrogen that starts working immediately, even in cool, wet, early-season soils;
* slow-acting ammonic Nitrogen that provides continued feeding through the growing season;
* both quick and slow acting Phosphorus to resist fixation, team with Nitrogen to become more efficient and feed plants for solid growth, help develop strong root systems;
* vital Potash to furnish young plants with building blocks for strong roots, tough and hardy stalks to resist weather and stress of pests and disease.

We can recommend to you the program details for a sound Unipel fertility program —which, on Starter alone, has returned over $30 an acre above fertilizer investment more than blend "bargain" programs.

Letters to the Editor

the agricultural effect could be disastrous. There will be no way to control their movements for specific pollination, etc.

I would like to suggest that you consider an article for Lancaster Farming concerning African bees and their threat. As far as I have checked, there is not much literature on the subject.

I personally do not raise bees, but I handle the "Beekeeper Indemnity Program" for the Chester - Delaware County ASCS office. We receive Lancaster Farming at the office. There have been some very interesting articles in the past about honeybees in your paper.

Sincerely,
Mark Gerasim

A potpourri of opinions

Dear Editor:

Since we are still in the midst of the weather prophesized by the groundhog on Feb. 2, I thought I would write a line. I like reading Lancaster Farming. It gives a lot of current news and prices of commodities. And the news items such as the one in the last issue (Feb. 26) telling of the land grab that is on foot in our nation. To begin with, we should all realize that Russia is in back of many of these moves. The communist touch is all around us. I hope President Carter has gumption enough to realize this. Now is the time to stand up to them and let them know we are fed up with their doctrine and want none of it. He has no business telling them how to handle the people over there. A lot of people are fools to visit these areas, in my opinion. As to this land grab, the Grange has spoken out as it has for over 100 years on matters that ruin the family farm. We need more dedicated men in the USA like John Scott. I have been a Granger for 55 years and have seen many beneficial things that the Grange has stood for and accomplished.

THe NFO (National Farmers Organization) is very smart to themselves and works for prices that will not stand up in most cases and then dumps their milk or kills calves to gain their end. These demonstrative antics do not pay off in most cases. The Farmers Association runs around trying to get members for a high rate of dues. All I have seen them do is have a good meal a couple of times a year for a select few.

I realize we will all have to fight for our cause and stand up for what we know is right. Many of these meetings do not get a lot done because the average guy will not write and express himself after he comes from the meeting or will not speak out when he has the chance. I have noted that Lancaster Countians are especially noted for that attitude. Many are indutrious and feel they have made theirs so let the other fellow do likewise.

THe 4-H is doing things and going places. Our youngsters were all in 4-H. From capon projects in 1935 on for several years through four children.

We are having our farmland taken from us and have been for several years. The planning groups are working as individuals and of course have determined and unqualified people on some. The realtors are still in the saddle. It is very evident in most areas of the county. The good farmground is gobbled up for some other use. We seem to sit back and let it happen and cannot stop the trend. Who is going to slow this down, except the Amish?

The IRS has entirely too much say about many things, I have found out to my sorrow the past couple of years. They are just crooked human beings like many other groups turn out to be and it costs money to hire a good lawyer to convince them their tactics are wrong. Thanking you for your efforts, I am, yours truly,

Melvin Boyce

Poultry summary now available

UNIVERSITY PARK, Pa. - A new summary from the 1976 Symposium on the Conversion of Poultry Waste to Energy, Feed, or Fertilizer is now available. It includes papers on ensiling poultry litter, using poultry manure for vegetables, and hydro-seeding to prevent erosion. Also, included are papers on heavy metals in DPW, marketing converted manure, methane generation, references on research done with poultry waste and tables of chemical tests of manure amples sent to the agronomy laboratory.

This summary is 33 pages long, includes an evaluation of the meeting, and sells for $4 per copy. It may be obtained by sending a check for $4 made payable to The Pennsylvania State University and sent to 410 J.O. Keller Building, University Park, Pa. 16802. Ask for the "1976 Poultry Waste Summary."

A Hydro-Heater Franklin will cut your fuel costs...
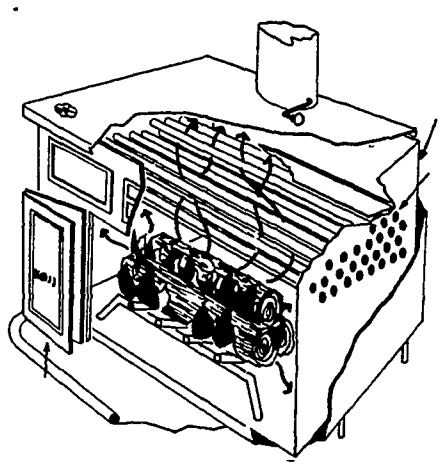
Can heat your whole house, even when it's zero outside!



A 1¼" water jacket surrounds the fire on back, sides and bottom. This allows you to place the Hydro-Heater Franklin within 6" of any wall or partition, because the outside temperature never exceeds 210°.

Directional flow tubing captures the heat that is normally lost up the flue. 65% of the heat collected in Hydro-Heater is absorbed by the tubing section. This heat is then transferred to your existing heating system.

AVAILABLE ARE HOT WATER HEAT EXCHANGERS FOR DOMESTIC HOT WATER SYSTEMS

Also Available Are Fireplace Units

A Hydro-Heater Franklin gives you a 300 to 500 per cent increase in heat output over normal Franklin-type stoves. In fact, you get a 175,000 BTU output with a Hydro-Heater Franklin! And with a Hydro-Heater, you don't put up with the "freeze or fry" situation experienced with ordinary Franklin-type stoves. That's because Hydro-Heater transfers its heat to your existing home heating system to warm every room in your house. Why settle for just any conventional wood-burning stove when you can have a beautiful, efficient Hydro-Heater Franklin.

Meat industry to be heard

WASHINGTON, D.C. - Apparently in response to the outcry from cattle and meat industry people about their recent controversial report, the Select Committee on Nutrition and Human Needs has scheduled one day of hearings on March 24 to hear witnesses from the meat industry.

"We fully recognize the problems the Committee report might have cause to your industry,' a staffman said. "The Committee is not trying to put anyone out of business. It is trying to bring about better nutrition knowledge that will help everyone.

"The Committee has acted upon advice it has received from leading nutritionists from around the country," the staffer explained. "Their advice has been that these recommendations may be helpful but they certainly will not be harmful. The diet we eat today is not doing us any good. It is better to be safe than sorry."

United Egg Producers requested that the egg industry's side of the cholesterol story be heard by the Select Committee. The aide promised that if additional time is allocated for hearings, the egg industry would be given an opportunity to be heard.

UEP members are asked to take special note of this schedule of hearings for the meat industry and apparent refusal to hear the egg industry. A letter to senators should express personal feelings on this matter, suggests the UEP. The Select Committee is made up of the following Senators; Senator George McGovern, South Dakota, chairman; Herman Talmadge of Georgia, Hubert Humphrey of Minnesota, Robert Dole of Kansas, Henry Bellman of Oklahoma, Edward Kennedy of Massachusetts, Alan Cranston of California, Richard Schweiker of Pennsylvania, Charles Percy of Illinois and Mark Hatfield of Oregon .

Applications due for leader's school

ANNAPOLIS, Md. - Maryland rural leaders are invited to attend the 10th annual USDA "National Rural Development Leaders School" to be held April 24-30 at Pocono Manor, Pa.

Applications for the school are due by March 18, and those seeking to attend or learn more about the program should call Dr. Jerry Clement of USDA in Washington at 202-447-2573.

The school will be limited to 120, and draws its participants from 14 northeastern states running from Maine to Virginia. Cost of the school is $80, which includes meals, lodging and incidental costs. Participants must furnish their own transportation to and from Pocono Manor.

Topics to be covered include setting area priorities, marshalling resources, design, and implementation of programs. The school is tailored to provide local leaders with an understanding of the rural development process.

"This program can help Maryland local leaders learn how to utilize rural development resources, particularly those on the Federal level," said Marvin Benoff, executive secretary of the Maryland Rural Affairs Council.

Special loans considered for condemned livestock

WASHINGTON, D.C. - Sen. Robert P. Griffin ( R. - Mich.) has introduced a new proposal (S. 751) to authorize the secretary of agriculture to make financial assistance available to agricultural producers who suffer losses as the result of having their agricultural commodities or livestock contaminated by toxic chemicals dangerous to the public health, or whose agricultural commodities or livestock have been contaminated so as to adversely affect the economic viability of the farming operation.

According to a spokesman for the senator, the new legislation proposes a system of special loans to affected farmers not to exceed $250,000 per farm at a three per cent interest rate. The new bill would extend these benfits to farmers whose livestock are not only condemned or quarantined, but also to those whose livestock are declared to pose a possible danger to the consuming public if slaughtered. The decision on possible danger could be made by state or federal inspectors. The secretary of agriculture could also extend the loan benefits to farms "whose economnic viability has been affected."

Currently, the proposed legislation does not include poultry. The spokesman noted that this exclusion was an oversight by the sponsor and would be corrected when hearings are called. (Note: Most people believe the term "livestock" includes poultry. This is why poultry is not currently included in S. 751.)

Mini-Barn

FOR MORE OUTDOOR LIVING, LARGE STORAGE NEEDS; BEAUTY and CHARM

A combination of quality and beauty that will add charm with utility to your yard all year. Unlike a steel building, THE MINI-BARN will not gather inside condensation—and it will not be blown away.

SPACIOUS GAMBREL ROOF DESIGN

More overhead storage space than with a gabel roof building having the same floor area. Large double entry doors provide 5-feet, 2¼-inches of width and nearly six feet of height. Doors are complete with large hinges, an easy opening latch that may be locked and spring-loaded inside door latches.

DEPENDABLE QUALITY CONSTRUCTION

Unitized construction—with metal gusset plates for rigidity—is employed on gambrel roof rafters, door framing and the gable ends. Like a one-piece construction these strong units reduce twisting and breaking of roof shingles under stress and strain. Your MINI-BARN will be enjoyed not only for the warmth and beauty that only wood imparts—but for all the pride you'll take in its fine workmanship.

Massey-Ferguson Inc.
1901 Bell Avenue Des Moines Iowa 50315

Dear Friend:

If you've had to delay your plans to buy needed new equipment because of less than acceptable farm income caused by weather or other adverse conditions.. Massey-Ferguson may be able to help you.

We've authorized Massey-Ferguson farm machinery dealers to provide special financing to help farmers in Federally declared disaster areas buy the machinery they need, when their major source of income has been impaired by the disaster.

This unusual MF Machinery-Purchase program also has a provision allowing you to defer payments if your major source of income should fail again, and your locale is declared a disaster area in 1977

Why are we doing this? Frankly, when your business suffers, we all suffer It's that simple

So if your plans and your future have been greatly altered by circumstances beyond your control, we're ready and willing to help as always. Get all the details now about this special program for farmers of 1976 Federally declared disaster areas. See your Massey-Ferguson dealer. He wants to help you, and so do we strikes here in the East. The situation has left Inter-State with a problem, but one that is being answered Hand assured the dairymen.

Dairy industry

"The strike now will have a slight impact on earnings, but won't create a loss," Hand exclaimed. Inter-State allocates funds for unexpected marketing costs, such as the movement of milk out of the immediate area. Lancaster Farming contacted the cooperative's headquarters earlier this month in regards to the energy crisis which had producers, haulers and processors in an even worse bind. "We're experiencing larger than normal marketing costs," general manager Dr. James Honan reported. Throughout the energy crisis and now during this critical strike situation, the cooperative has not had to dump a drop of milk, an IMPCO spokesman said.

But the pressures are on in more ways than one. A direct effect of the long hauls to Ohio and western parts of the state is that trucks are not as readily available for on-the-farm pick-ups. Equipment is tied up for longer periods of time, both on the roads and at plants.

The latter is a special concern to dairymen and IMPCO management who take note of milk plants closing their doors. Last week, for example, the Koontz Creamery in Baltimore went out of business. This has forced producers' milk to other dairies. Storage facilities at the processing plants are limited, yet new supplies of milk are arriving daily. On top of that, milk production is significantly higher than it was a year ago and the trend has numerous top officials a bit nervous.

On the other side of the spectrum are regulations which require milk to be sold by a certain date. Caught between the dated cartons and the limited storage space is record-high production. The dairyman is faced with a two-pronged problem.

"The balancing of milk supplies is becoming more and more difficult," Hand emphasized, leading into a brief report on the cooperative's plans to build its own manufacturing plant near Mount Holly Springs in Cumberland County. IMPCO's and private studies have shown that such a move would be productive. Pennsylvania Secretary of Agriculture Kent Shelhamer, however, has expressed doubts over the matter, claiming he is interested in knowing what impact the proposed facility would have on Pennsylvania's dairy industry as a whole. He has asked Penn State University to conduct a study.

While that may be an issue which basically concerns only members of Inter-State, other marketing developments take on a regional, national and even global scope.

As an indication of the serious problems facing dairymen now, Lancaster Farming has received word from James C. Behney, president of the Adams County Farmers Association. The message: "An urgent meeting for all Adams County dairymen has been called for Monday evening, March 14, at 8 p.m. at the West Street Branch of the Gettysburg Bank in Gettysburg. A spokesman from the Pennsylvania Farmers Association will be there to discuss the dairy situation and its present problems.

Milk production last year was the highest since 1965, according to USDA figures released on March 4. A gain for 1977 is already underway, and herein lies the reason for concern. Production is outstripping demands.

The dairy situation on a world-wide basis looks like this, according to USDA:

"World milk production was record high last year, despite decreased output in the USSR, the long-time leading producer. Output was up two per cent from a year ago, 2½ per cent above 1974, and nine per cent above the 1968-72 average." Total production was pegged at 390 million tons last year, and for 1977 world production is expected to hit 397 million tons.

IMPCO economists have taken a wait and see attitude toward the future, especially in view of the fact that support prices for milk are due to be revised on April 1. In addressing himself to that topic, Hand noted that USDA Secretary Bob Bergland has given consumer groups additional weight in the decision making process. Considerable speculation has therefore been aroused as to how Bergland will guide the agriculture department. Consumer interests are reportedly balking at moves which would maintain an 80 per cent parity level for milk. Some farm organizations would like to have the support price moved to 85 per cent of parity or higher. Dairy industry leaders in this region, however, are hoping that milk prices will not go up significantly since high prices at a time of high production may be difficult to get past the consumer. A real problem situation could develop, industry spokesmen say, including Agriculture Secretary Shelhamer.

Hand did speculate on the dairy industry future in saying that the trend to fewer and fewer plants is likely to continue. It amounts to less handling space and less flexibility, he noted. That's why IMPCO and Maryland Cooperative Milk Producers of Baltimore would like to go ahead with plans for the manufacturing plant at Mount Holly Springs. According to Hand, no formal contract to begin construction had been signed as of Thursday.

The economic conditions throughout Inter-State's 60 years of existence have caused the cooperative to take on different challenges, Hand indicated. The cooperative itself has changed, following a trend which is true of the entire dairy industry. Whereas milk was at one time delivered door-to-door, it's now being handled primarily through supermarket chains. As their suppliers, IMPCO and other cooperatives have a big stake in these marketing channels. The developments over the years have caused Inter-State to change with its programs and scope, Hand said. Emphasis, however, has continuously been on integrity, honesty, service, and membership relations, IMPCO members pointed out.

Loyalty of members was singled out as being one of the keys to success of a cooperative, and four District 5 members were called forward to be recognized for their years with Inter-State. Receiving a 50-year membership award was John Breneman and his son, Arthur. The father and son team has been working with an Inter-State affiliated dairy business since 1917, it was pointed out. The 50-year plaque was 10 years late in coming, but the elder Breneman joked it didn't much matter since he was only two years old in 1917. He could remember selling milk for $1 per hundredweight.

The 25-year membership recognition went to Clyde and Harvey Heller.

In concluding business of the District 5 membership meeting, the following officers and delegates were chosen:

In the Witmer local, Harvey Heller and Mervin

...the home-grown feed that can help make your farm more profitable 8 ways!

Harvestore haylage, medium-moisture hay silage stored between 40 and 50 percent moisture may be one of the most efficient and profitable ways ever devised to store and handle forage Here are eight ways that Harvestore haylage can boost profits on your farm

Reduce losses in the field. When hay is baled, many protein-rich leaves are lost You're at the mercy of the weather too—one spring shower and your valuable first-cutting can be gone forever With haylage, you chop when the hay is still moist enough to retain leaves, and get your crop in ahead of the weather

Plug the drain of storage losses. Spoilage can have a significant effect on farm profits It happens whenever moist feeds are stored where air can attack them You can expect to lose about 3 percent of your feed each month if it's in conventional storage But in a Harvestore, oxygen is limited so your feed investment is protected Using Harvestore haylage can be just like adding acres to your farm only without the labor or expense

Escape the high costs of purchased feed. Your forage supply goes farther with haylage so you'll be less likely to have to buy feed Nutritious haylage can reduce the amount of grain you need—and its high protein content will often reduce or even eliminate the need for purchased protein

Solve your labor problems. When you harvest haylage you eliminate the backbreaking work of bucking bales that unpleasant chore that s driven so many sons away from the farm You won t have to worry about trying to find hired help at harvest time, either—because you can do most of the work of haylage-making right from your tractor seat

Make feeding more efficient. Harvestore haylage is made for automated feed handling, so feeding chores can be a snap You can feed your livestock with a touch of a button control rations better, too And with Harvestore, it's easy for family members to handle feeding chores

Reduce waste at feeding time. We re all familiar with the trampling and loss of stems that takes place when we feed dry hay and the refusal that often accompanies the use of soggy feeds from conventional silos, trenches or bunkers With Harvestore haylage, every bite is palatable and easy for animals to consume so waste is nearly eliminated Just think—that's like stretching your acres again!

Help your livestock perform better. University studies and on-farm experience have repeatedly demonstrated that Harvestore haylage is superior to other feeds Beef animals will gain faster and more efficiently dairy cows will produce more milk at lower cost That puts more dollars in your pocket, too

Use the most flexible forage management system. With its top filling and bottom unloading a Harvestore is a continuous feed processing system not just a place to store feed You can harvest haylage whenever it s ready—without interrupting your feeding program Top off with cornlage or other late-season forage to help stretch your feed supply With Harvestore there s no sudden change of feed—ever

Want to know more about Harvestore haylage?

Read what university authorities have to say about the benefits of Harvestore haylage Just fill out and mail the postage-paid card below to receive a free copy of the in-depth research report, "Haylage—A Short Course in Print

"When we started feeding haylage, our feed costs dropped . . .

"Not only that, but even though our herd has increased from 100 to 165 cows, milk production is up 3,000 lbs. per cow to 18,000 lbs per year. We put up a corn unit . . and with the haylage, the high-moisture grain brought our butterfat up 2 points We got our first Harvestore to cut down on labor, and so we could ensile limited quantities of alfalfa at a time without the spoilage you'd get in a conventional silo It's done that and more."

— Richard Herrmann, Jr., dairy farmer, Appleton, WI

"We can fill our Harvestore with haylage about eight months out of the year . . .

"Our 2059 Harvestore lets us make three different kinds of haylage, taking the best advantage of our existing acreage—and that's important in this hilly country We put up alfalfa haylage, oatlage and ryelage in our Harvestore. We bought the structure because we were fed up with the labor problems and waste we had with trench silos. It's done away with those difficulties—and paid off other ways besides."

— Edwin Moore, dairy and stock farmer, Frazeysburg, OH

"Haylage lets me produce 1,130 lbs. of beef per crop acre without buying any protein or corn . . .

"I feed a real high-forage ration, with my cattle getting no more than 10 lbs of corn per head daily at the heavy finish end Haylage gives my cattle plenty of energy—and they don't need any protein supplement while I'm putting on 550 to 600 lbs of gain per head. My alfalfa haylage program, along with a Harvestore Slurrystore System, has made me really independent I don't buy feed, fertilizer or weed killer "

— Jack Penticoff, beef feeder, Hampton, IA

"The good nutrition of Harvestore haylage helps make A.I. work in our cow-calf operation . . .

"I was one of the first cow-calf operators in my area to use artificial insemination. You must have good nutrition for A I. to work with brood cows . and Harvestore haylage gives us that. It puts pounds on the calves, too. The rate of gain for the 600 calves I background each year has gone from only 1 lb. per day on pasture to 2 lbs on a haylage-based ration "

— Don Pimperton, cattle rancher, Ft. Benton, MT

"With haylage we made enough money right off the bat to cover the Harvestore payment three times over . . .

"We're feeding our cows a Harvestore ration that includes alfalfa haylage, cornlage and high-moisture ground ear corn Our h gh-producers are making us about $2 93 a head, better than they ever did before All in all, our haylage feeding program has replaced enough protein to save me $16,000 per year This isn t surprising. We tested Harvestore haylage against conventional hay silage and found that the Harvestore feed was as much as six percent higher in crude protein after processing "

— Tom Trinder, dairy farmer, Pompey, NY

"The cows told me there was a big difference between Harvestore haylage and hay silage from a concrete stave . . .

"Just after we put up our first Harvestore we decided to 'see for ourselves' We chopped alfalfa from the same field and filled both our Harvestore and our concrete stave silo At the time we were milking 55 cows—and we lost 200 lbs of milk per day when we fed silo 'haylage'. When the herd went back on Harvestore haylage, milk production jumped right back. To me that says a lot for the value of Harvestore. Now I've got three of them"

— Ron White, dairy farmer, Scotts, MI

"We get three to four cuttings of alfalfa for haylage; and I could only bale hay twice . . .

"Now I can always be sure of getting good haylage With baled hay, it was a matter of luck more than anything else Haylage has really cut back on the protein supplement, too I'm paying a sixth as much for protein as I did when we fed baled hay and conventional silage We operate on a government production quota here in Canada—so you have to produce more milk at less cost if you want to be successful With haylage that's what we're doing."

— David Cleghorn, dairy farmer, Ariss, Ont , Canada

as we did before—but we get about four times as much done . . .

"Now we don't have to hire any labor at all to harvest our crops. Before we got the Harvestores, finding and paying workers was a real problem. Now my son and I can do everything by ourselves . . we have no extra labor at all. We have two forage Harvestores, with haylage in one and lower protein forages in the other. That way we can balance our rations by blending—without adding supplement. It works real well with high-moisture milo in our total beef ration."

— Art Stranm, cattle feeder, Sabetha, KS

"When you're feeding 300 cattle a year, you could spend a lot on supplement—but with haylage you don't have to . . .

"Our Harvestore haylage and high-moisture grain has let us increase the number of cattle we finish without a big boost in labor. That means we have more gross income and a more positive cash flow Those factors, along with reduced feed costs, are giving us a 10 to 15 percent return on our investment. Now we have the flexibility to change with the market. When corn is too expensive we can cut back and feed more haylage to our cattle

— Emerson and Steve Busick, beef feeders, Melvin, IL

"Switching to Harvestores made us an additional $21,196 in one year —but there are advantages figures can't show . . .

"The haylage is so much better than baled hay In the old days we couldn't get into the fields early enough, and we lost wet hay from combustion Now, we are chopping by June 1st about every year—and those inevitable late spring rains just help start the second regrowth Our Harvestore total ration really does the job Not long ago, our 49 cows were returning $1,103 above feed cost for the year with purchased feed amounting to only $11,81 per head

— Charles Bates, dairy farmer, Elmwood, WI

Here Sandy cares for some of the many plants throughout her farm home.

Sandy Yocum looks over some of the weather records she keeps for the United States Weather Bureau.

Sandy and John Yocum go over some of the records which must be kept to make the research information useful to farmers. Although born a city girl, Sandy has learned to appreciate agriculture and is on the staff of Penn State University as a part-time employee.

Homestead Notes

Sandy Yocum quickly learned to appreciate agriculture

By SALLY BAIR
Feature Writer

"There are definite advantages to living where we do. People are terrific around here." These enthusiastic words come from Sandy Yocu, Manheim R7, who lives in a 200-year-old farm house on 88 acres of land, and is a Lancaster County farm wife-of-sorts.

Sandy is married to John Yocum, assistant professor of agronomy, who is in charge of the Southeastern Field Research Laboratory of the Pennsylvania State University. She works closely with her husband and enjoys being involved with his work, just like a great many farm women in this area.

A city girl from Bloomsburg in Columbia County, Sandy confesses that she has learned a lot about farming since marrying John and moving to the research farm at Landisville 15 years ago. Now, she says, "I wouldn't want to move back to town. It is really pretty out here."

She also admits to being very vocal about the farmers' situation sometimes. She said, "Town people just don't realize the problems farmers have. They think when they go in a store the products will be there." She begins to say more, but checks herself and says, "I don't want to get on my bandbox.

Sandy is on Penn State's payroll, and works about four hours daily on research farm business. She said her own involvement helps her have an understanding of her husband's work.

Sandy is deep into a long term project of organizing a "working library" at the office, which means collecting and organizing all the booklets and pamphlets from Penn State and from the United States Department of Agriculture.

A big part of Sandy's job is taking care of the weather records which go monthly to the United States Weather Bureau. The research farm is headquarters for an official weather station, which is used heavily by local industry. The station records rainfall, relative humidity, high and low temperatures, and other important aspects of the daily weather scene.

Sandy also does calculations on yields and other information which is recorded faithfully from field experiments.

Payroll is a part of Sandy's work, and involves records of two full time bilogical technicians, and two part time Summer workers. Sandy praised the full time workers as being "very conscientious and very careful" in their work in the field. She explained, "Everything must be recorded - it is very tedious."

Sandy laughs when she talks about some of the comments they receive from friends and neighbors when they see some of the research that goes on at the farm. The research plots are given lots of close attention, sometimes using strange apparatus.

Sandy explained that all of the work which goes on at the Landisville farm is designed to find varieties which grow and yield well in southeastern Pennsylvania. Finding disease resistant varities poses a constant challenge, since, Sandy says, "Plants keep getting new disease just as humans do."

The research lab grows a wide range of crops, from a corn nursery where new varieties are developed, to soybeans, small grains and potatoes. Tobacco is a speciality at the Landisville laboratory and the information they have on tobacco is the most up-to-date anywhere. There is a vineyard and there is some research presently being done on flowers. The number of crops grown has tripled since the Yocums first arrived there.

Sandy notes that all the research is a "cooperative thing," with professors from Penn State working on planting and harvesting the test plots. Plant pathologists and weed specialists are frequent visitors to the lab. She said John spends a lot of "planning time," but also likes to "work right along with the plots. He is really devoted."

Sandy takes great pride in the accomplishments of her husband, and notes that he received six awards in the last four years from young farmer groups and others. She said he frequently speaks to groups about the research being conducted at the research lab, adding that all of the results get passed right along to farmers through the Penn State Extension Service.

One of Sandy's jobs is answering the phone, and she's had some interesting calls. She said they get a high percentage of calls from people who really are trying to contact the Extension Service at the Farm and Home Center. For these calls, she just gives the proper phone number.

Some calls are not so easily handled, however. Many people do not know the work of the research lab, and so calls come which belong to other agencies. Without qualification, Sandy says the most unusual call she ever received was from a woman who asked, "Do you buy bodies?" Sandy just laughed and said she assumed the woman was trying to locate the Hershey Medical Center, also a branch of Penn State.

The research station is open for pre-arranged tours, Sandy said. "We have had people from Japan, Rhodesia, France, and Germany. They are all nice people. John is the host, but I usually go and talk with the women and answer as much as I can," she remarked.

She said they get a lot of school groups. "Young students are very inquisitive. There is a lot more interest than there once was," noted Mrs. Yocum.

The Yocum's two daughters, Jennifer, 15, and Jeanne, 12, are both students at Manheim Central, and both enjoy meeting visitors who come to the farm.

Sandy is currently president of Farm Women Society 5 even though she has been a member only five years. Modestly, she says, "People just assume you can do things like being president." She said she feels her Society is "happy mixture" of older and younger women. "The young ones feel they can learn from the older members and the older ones feel they can learn from us."

Singing is a true talent of Sandy's which she used a lot as a teenager, but which was dormant until a few years ago. As a senior high school student in Bloomsburg she had sung soprano with a dance band. She also sang at many weddings which produced, "oodles and oodles of jewelry from brides."

Reluctantly, Sandy confessed to another singing venture as a tenager. She sang hymns as part of an early morning farm program and was followed by the County Extension agent's report.

And so, with a background as rich as that, Sandy volunteered to organize a singing group when her program committee at the Parent Teacher Society needed some entertainment. The result of that is a gospel group called the "Glory Heirs," which entertains at meetings and church functions. Mrs. Albert Fry and Mrs. Gerald Emrich are the other members of the trio.

Sandy is a regular volunteer with the Manheim Farm Show, taking entries for vegetables. The family belongs to Salem United Methodist Church, Manheim. She formerly was very involved with the Shared Holiday program at the Lancaster YWCA, was a Girl Scout leader and taught Sunday School. She gave up those things because, "I gave my all. I needed a change."

In her spare time, Sandy enjoys playing the organ and the piano and likes to sew. A craft which she developed is decoupaging old slate shingles, which results in an attractive wall decoration.

The Yocum's have a large vegetable garden, but Sandy gets asthma so this limits her involvement to freezing and canning the produce.

Sandy joked about being from the same county as Pennsylvania's new Secretary of Agriculture Kent Shelhamer. She said she knew Shelhamer when she worked in the Boy Scout office in Bloomsburg, and he was a scout master. When she left he said he hoped they would meet again, so she is hoping he will attend one of the many functions sponsored by the research farm so she can renew his acquaintance.

For Sandy Yocum the research farm is home - and a happy home. Sandy is justifiably proud of the work which is carried out there, and in the ultimate way in which it helps farmers, and contributes to the whole southeastern Pennsylvania community.

Some types of last year's seed can still be used this Spring

Most gardeners have some seeds left over from last year and are faced with the question, should I use this seed or buy new?

The cost of seed is usually a small item compared to the loss or delay in starting vegetables or flowers in a garden. Yet most people are reluctant to throw away good seed. University of Delaware extension horticulturist Dr. Charles Dunham says two things influence the ability of old seeds to germinate - the kind of plant they're from and the way in which the seed has been stored.

The life of most common flower and vegetable seeds can be greatly prolonged by storage in a dry, cold atmosphere. But for most home gardners, last year's seeds are still sitting in a box in the garage or basement where storage conditions are anything but idea.

Some kinds of seeds will tolerate this type of storage much better than others, explains Dunham. Among vegetable seeds, those of cucumber, endive, melons (both cantaloupe and watermelons), squash, pumpkin, cabbage, cauliflower, eggplant and radish are usually perfectly good. Bean, tomato, beet, pepper, celery, carrot, lettuce and pea seeds are usually safe to use if they are planted a little thicker than normal. But corn, onion, parsley, and parsnip seeds should be thrown out and new ones purchased.

Among flowers, most of the common varieties keep very well - those like alyssum, calendula, cosmos, petunia, marigolds, zinnia, pansy and nasturtium. China aster, strawflower, and dusty miller seeds will probably be safe to plant if sown heavier than normal. Seeds of delphinium, candytuft, and burning bush (Kochia) should be thrown away.

The surest way to know the viability of seed is to run a germination test. Take an 11" x 14" section of paper towel. Moisten it and space the seeds along one side so that they will be covered as the towel is rolled up. Space more rows of seeds along the towel as it is rolled.

Roll the towel loosely to make about five layers. Fold it in half and place it in a quart jar. A little bit of water (perhaps an eighth of an inch) in the bottom of the jar will keep the towel moist. Cover the jar and place it in a warm place (70-80 degrees). When the seeds germinate, count them to determine the per cent of germination.

For the thrifty - minded gardener, the National Garden Bureau has come up with a new idea for storing leftover garden seed. It's a simple approach that keeps seeds dry while keeping them cool. Simply take a paper towel and roll up a few tablespoons full of powdered dried milk from a freshly - opened package. Secure this with a rubber band. Place the roll of dried milk in the bottom of a wide mouth jar and immediately drop in packets of leftover seeds. Seal the jar tightly using a rubber ring to exclude moist air. Store the jar in the refrigerator, not the freezer.

Use seeds as soon as possible. Discard and replace the dessicant once or twice a year. Dried milk is "hygroscopic" and will soon soak up moisture from the air when the bottle is opened. So be quick when removing seed packets: get the lid back on the jar without dalay.

Gardners who try this approach with this year's leftovers may find seed viability improved the second time round, notes the horticulturist.

On being a farm wife - and other hazards

By Joyce Bupp

The Brookfield Zoo in Chicago has recently begun a plan of having area citizens "adopt" their exotic animals and pay set fees to cover the feeding costs of the orphans.

After the look on Leroy's face when the last feed statement arrived, I decided that here was an idea whose time had come here on the farm. Therefore, we are wondering if any animal lovers out there might want to join our "take a cow to lunch" foster parent plan.

Most of our cows eat at least a good three dollars worth of feed daily. However, some of the more colorful, lovable individuals in the herd have certain characteristics which require sponsorship beyond that average fee.

For instance, there's Millie. She's a good ole pet, who might nudge you in the back if you happen to forget to scratch her head. She, and other members of her family, have a most wasteful habit. Every first-bite of feed they take gets pitched over the shoulder and across their backs. They can't be missed in the feed bunk lineup, because of the invariable heavy dusting of hay or silage across the topline. Sponsorship of Millie, or her daughters, would require an extra 75 cents each day for wasting resources.

Or how about Amy? Her biggest fault is that she is basically a white cow, covered with Appaloosa-type spots. And white cows usually aren't white, they're assorted shades of barnyard brown. For an extra 50 cents daily, maybe we could arrange with the herdsman to scrub Amy's "whitewalls" once a week.

Now, if you've always had a yen to own an interest in a racehorse, but can't afford the drain on your pocketbook, sponsorship of a cow like Bet might just be your thing. Bet is a show cow. Last year she returned from the Farm Show with a new acquired talent. She has learned to jump. Soon she progressed from leaping over bridges and low barbed wire to hurtling over the four foot pasture page fence. Foster parent fees for Bet might include gate and fencing repairs, damage to corn fields, vet fees for hock underside injuries wrought by low altitude crossings and combat pay for anyone unfortunate enough to be working around the barn when Bet zooms down the runway and leaps for the moon! I'd say double the usual fee would not be at all unreasonable for this multitalented milker.

York Co. 4-H Council plans family fun night

BAIR, Pa. - The York County 4-H Council completed plans for a family fun night at their monthly meeting held March 2 at the 4-H Center, here. Family Fun Night will be held March 12 at the 4-H Center from 7-10 p.m. The evening will begin with a covered dish meal. Families whose last name begins with "A" through "K" are to bring a vegetable and dessert, and those with "L" to "Z" are to bring a meat and salad dish. Drinks and utensils will be provided by the county council.

After the meal, a square dance will be held. Caller is Fred Hutschenreuter. Bingo will be played. Those intending to participate are asked to bring a small prize. The poster contest will also be held. The top five posters will be sent to state competition. All members are encouraged to make a poster. Prizes will be awarded.

Laurie Dobrosky and Jonathon Myers also presented their state medal-winning demonstrations during the county council meeting, "Wool Wins" by Miss Dobrosky focusses on wool and its characteristics, While "Wheelin' and Dealin'" by MNyers concentrated on bicycle safety and maintenance.

On March 9, at 7:30 p.m. at the 4-H Center, an educational meeting on Pennsylvania Farm Co-operatives will be held. Members interested in learning about the American business system are urged to attend.

The next County Council meeting will be April 6 at 7:30 p.m. at the 4-H Center. The program will be presented by a foreign exchange student from Chile.

Ladies Have You Heard?

By Doris Thomas
Lancaster Home Economist

CHICORY: A COFFEE SUBSITITUTE?

If you're looking for a way to beat the rising costs of coffee and still satisfy your taste buds, chicory could be an answer.

Coffee with chicory has been served in Europe and parts of the United States for years. You can even cultivate chicory in home gardens.

Roasted and ground chicory is available in your specialty and health food stores and costs about $1.50 to $1.75 a pound. Pure food laws prevent a commercial mix of coffee and chicory or any other additive, unless the label is clearly marked.

Extension specialists at the Pennsylvainia Sate University representing foods and nutrition and consumer management, conducted some taste acceptability tests using chicory alone and in combination with regular coffee. Based on these experiments, they offer the following suggestions for using chicory as a coffee substitute:

Try a mixture of four parts ground coffee to one part chicory to begin with. Then keep increasing the chicory to find the blend you like best.

Chicory flavor is strong, so also try decreasing the amount of grounds used per pot.

Brewing chicory as you would tea results in an acceptable but different - tasting hot beverage. The aroma could also be a deterrent.

Perked chicory used in the same proportions as recommended for coffee, was not acceptable in flavor or aroma. But using half as much chicory as called for is acceptable.

No evidence exists that chicory contains caffeine; therefore, it would not provide the stimulation coffee does. Chicory does have some laxative effect, however.

TIPS ON GROWING CHICORY - A COFFEE SUBSTITITE

Using chicory as a coffee substitute has real possibilities. Home gardeners can even grow their own as it is a plant native to Pennsylvania.

Extension specialists at Penn State University working in foods and nutrition and horticulture, say the chicory plants grow wild through the state. But they don't recommend harvesting the wild plants for several resons. Aside from the important fact that harvesting chicory involves destroying the plant to use the roots, there is added risk of additional, possible toxic additives such as exhaust fumes, rubber residue, and pesticide sprays. Inexperienced persons may also incorrectly identify the plant and get one that is not chicory and not edible.

A better alternative to economic coffee substitutes is growing chicory in your home garden. It's an easy plant to grow and requires a deep, rich, loamy soil.

The garden variety has several common names: Witloof chicory, French endive, and Belgium endive. Seeds for growing chicory are available from many commercial seed producers. Generally, the seed packets contain specific growing instructions.

Chicory leaves are also edible and recommended for use in salads or blanched as a vegetable green. The leaves are high in vitamins A and C.

In late Summer or Fall after the leaves of the plant have been harvested, roots can be dug. Scrub roots well, chop in small pieces and roast them in the oven until they are hard and coffee - colored. Roasted pieces can then be ground to the consistency of coffee grounds.

Ground and roasted chicory is also available at many health food and specialty stores.

Holstein meeting set

STREET, Md. - The Harford County Holstein Breeders Association will hold their annual meeting and banquet on March 17 at the Emory United Methodist Church, here. The activities begin at 7 p.m., according to Mrs. Charles Glasgow, secretary of the county organization.

John Hall, program director of the Holstein-Friesian Association of America, will talk and show slides about the national organization. Tickets may be obtained at the door the evening of the meeting.

Recipe Swap

This week "Recipe Swap" is featuring the replies to the request for uncooked macaroni salad. Now that Spring and Summer are coming up, knowing how to make this dish will be a must. Before we know it, we'll be out in the park pavilions holding family reunions and get-togethers where this food is an all-time favorite.

And, the request we received this week for the "Recipe Swap" column came from a relatively new subscriber to Lancaster Farming. She asked for a good "Black Forest Cake" recipe, if anyone out there has a good one. If you do, send it to "Recipe Swap" care of Lancaster Farming Newspaper, Box 266, Lititz, Pa. 17543. Attach your name, address, and phone number to the recipe, and we will send you a pot holder for your efforts.

Junior Cooking Edition

Our first recipe this week isn't exactly the kind of thing you would want to serve to a hungry family, but it sounds like something fun to try. That recipe is for play dough, and it sounds as though it could be a money saver.

Again, this week we have a wide range of foods to choose from.

PLAY DOUGH

1½ cups water
½ cup salt
½ teaspoon food coloring
2 tablespoons powdered alum
1 tablespoon cooking oil
2½ cups flour

Mix first three ingredients and bring to boil. Remove from heat. Add alum and cooking oil. Pour over flour. Knead while very warm. To keep from drying out store balls of dough wrapped in tin foil in a closed jar.

John Stoltzfus
Gordonville, Pa.

xxx

TROPICAL PUDDING

Juice from one large can pineapple cubes
½ cup sugar
1½ cups water
1 small can orange juice
3 tablespoons corn starch
3 eggs (beaten)

Cook all ingredients until thickened, then cool. Add nuts, marshmallows, pineapple cubes and bananas.

Curvin M. Zimmerman
Fleetwood, Pa.
Age 9

xxx

DINNER IN A DISH

5 or 6 sliced raw potatoes
4 medium onions
1 bunch carrots, diced
1 can cream of mushroom soup
2 pounds ground hamburger meat
Salt to taste
1 can peas
1 bunch celery

Butter large casserole, put potatoes in bottom. Then layer of carrots, then can of peas with juice. Pour mushroom soup over top. Fry meat, brown celery and onions, and put over other vegetables. Cover with buttered bread crumbs and sprinkle with grated cheese. Bake 1½ hours at 350 degrees.

PEANUT BUTTER APPLE CRISP

5 cups sliced apples
¼ cup water
1 cup sugar
1 cup flour
½ teaspoon salt
One-third cup peanut butter
2 tablespoons butter

Place apples and water in buttered dish. Make crumb mixture from remaining ingredients. Sprinkle over apples. Bake at 350 degrees F. for 35 minutes. Serve warm.

FROSTY STRAWBERRY SQUARES

2 unbeaten egg whites
1 cup white sugar to fresh berries
2 or 3 cups of strawberries
1 cup of whipped cream

Beat egg whites, berries, and sugar for 10 minutes at high speed. Fold in cream. Topping:

1 cup of flour
¼ cup brown sugar
½ cup English walnuts
½ cup margarine

Place topping on top and bake 20 minutes at 350 degrees F. stirring occasionally.

FRUIT PUNCH

3 cups sugar
3 quarts water
4 cans frozen orange juice
4 cans frozen lemon juice
1-½ cups strong tea
4 quarts gingerale
Water

Boil together sugar and water. Let stand until cool. Then add orange juice, lemon juice, strong tea, and gingerale. Add water to taste. This recipe makes enough punch for 75 people.

PEANUT BUTTER COOKIES

¾ cup peanut butter
1 cup shortening
1 cup brown sugar
1 cup white sugar
½ teaspoon vanilla
3 cups flour
2 eggs
2 teaspoon baking powder
½ teaspoon salt

Combine ingredients and form into small balls; put on cookie sheet and press with fork tines. Bake at 375 degrees F. for 10-12 minutes.

Beekeepers plan year

YORK, Pa. - The York County Beekeepers Association met recently to elect officers and schedule a variety of activities for the coming months.

Heading the Association is newly - elected President, Jere K. Sullivan. A husband - wife team fill two other offices, with Richard H. Lehman serving as vice-President and Mrs. Richard Lehman heandling secretary - treasurer duties.

Dr. Clarence Collision, Penn State University, was guest speaker for the evening meeting. His informative talk covered aspects of the Winter cluster and tips on Spring management of the hive.

The list of upcoming events for the beekeepers includes a Summer picnic on July 10, at the Rocky Ridge State Park, Mt. Zion Hill, and the Association's annual banquet on November 4, at the Dover Fire Hall.

Regular monthly meetings are set for 7:30 p.m. and will be held March 25, at the Farm Credit Building; May 11, the 4-H Center; June 8, at the home of Quay Minnich, Red Lion; and September 22, at the Farm Credit Building.

Your cattle will like Nutrena Controlled Release CLS and you'll like the benefits behind this new development in liquid supplements. The patented process controls the release of protein-building ammonia nitrogen in the rumen compared with a conventional urea-based liquid supplement. This improves the feeding efficiency of the urea. And, the slow-down means an extra margin of safety from urea toxicity—that's important when self-feeding liquid supplement.

Nutrena Controlled Release CLS liquid supplement—a product of Cargill research. It's great for dairy herds as well as beef cattle on range, pasture, stalks, stubble or in the feedlot.

An Important Message About Energy From PP&L Chairman, Jack K. Busby

After years of unheeded warnings, severe shortages of natural gas finally occurred, precipitated by the prolonged winter cold. One more signal that we have a serious long-term energy supply problem in this country. It is now beyond debate that when energy shortages hit, our society is crippled. The harsh evidence of lost employment and lost production is indisputable.

The winter weather conditions also created a large number of operating difficulties for generating units. Even so, electric loads were generally met, though capacity margins were tight. The so-called excess generating capacity of some utilities — criticized here and there a few months ago — totally disappeared in the winter cold. One bright spot was the good performance of nuclear power plants, reflecting their freedom from the limitations of conventional fuel supply and delivery.

If it had not been for industrial plant shutdowns because of natural gas curtailments, which reduced electrical loads that would otherwise have been on line, there would have been critical shortages of electricity.

This is a reminder that the basic issue of building ahead to have adequate generating capacity and fuel to meet tomorrow's electrical needs is very much with us. Lead times for power plant siting approvals and construction are lengthening. PP&L's most recent look indicates that, as things now are, we have to allow about 13 years to bring a new coal-burning power plant on line at a new site. The implications are scary. This means that, apart from capacity now in service plus capacity under construction, there is nothing that can be done to add more coal/nuclear-based power supply for 1984/1985. Indeed, we are practically at 1990. Every day is increasing the hazard of future shortages of electric power supply. Yet action is inhibited and constricted by a complex amalgam of uncertainties and risks. The need for clarifying and supportive governmental energy policies is overwhelming.

The adoption of effective new energy policies depends on whether Americans have the will to do what is required.

The geologic and economic realities underscore the need for more investment for facilities, fuel and advanced research, as well as more investment for conservation. It is going to be an expensive process, with quick payoffs being unlikely. For the time being at least, all signs point to continuing higher prices for energy.

This is not the answer people are looking for. It seems they would prefer to hear that higher prices for energy are caused by some kind of energy fraud or fix, or by the heedless actions of uncaring managements, notions which carry the comforting thought that if "the scoundrels" can be identified and properly dealt with, consumer energy problems will disappear. So, all too often this is what people are told, frequently coupled with a few rousing denunciations of "obscene profits." Although such talk has an unmistakable popular appeal, it is pernicious nonsense. It obscures reality and promotes cop-out attitudes. It discourages new investment and frustrates the development and implementation of the basic long-term energy decisions that are necessary.

We want our investors and customers to know that while we think it is misleading to give people false hope that some way can be found to protect them from the reality of higher costs of energy, we recognize that it is our job in PP&L to run a taut ship and to exert every effort to hold down costs and to improve our performance. We appreciate that we are living in an ever-changing world where new opportunities for better performance regularly occur. We understand that it is our responsibility to seek them out and put them to good use.

We realize that we cannot see ourselves as others see us. Therefore, we believe in the concept of outside audits to monitor management effectiveness and operating efficiency. While no one is perfect, and no one likes to be criticized, our aim is to have a constructive attitude about the outside audit process in which we welcome suggestions and advice on where and how we can do better.

We also want our investors and customers to know that outside forces, over which we have little or no control, are the main causes for the higher costs and prices of energy. For example, we do not have control over the fact that the exploration and development of energy resources in more remote and more difficult locations, and at greater depths, is bound to be more costly. We do not consider that we are responsible for the national policies and decisions that have caused inflation with all its consequent cost increases. Nor did we establish the host of new and costly environmental standards that now have to be met, with inevitable reflections in higher prices for electric service. Our ability to get things done promptly and at low cost has not been helped by the endless stream of new governmental requirements which have proliferated reports, hearings, investigations and all kinds of technical studies.

The saving grace in this outside-imposed cost situation is that it does not arise from any intention to increase costs. On the contrary, the difficulty rather stems from an excess zeal to do good things for people without sufficiently considering the cost consequences beforehand. This is really a problem of inadequate systems management.

Over time, energy has become afflicted by too many laws, regulations and programs which have different purposes and priorities, and which are nonconnected and unrelated even though they exist side by side. We have now come to the point where we are bogged down in an unacceptable mishmash of crosscurrents and conflicts. Some government management housecleaning is in order.

It is most encouraging that President Carter has proposed to establish a comprehensive, restructured federal energy department headed by Dr. James Schlesinger. We urge investors and customers of PP&L to support action to this end. We take this position because we are convinced that a central obstacle to the nation's working its way out of the energy crunch is the present fragmentation of energy jurisdictions within federal departments and agencies and within the Congressional committee structure. The proposed federal energy department could be a most significant first step towards establishing an adequate management system for energy. Other counterpart housecleaning steps involving the Congress and federal-state relationships in energy could then be pursued with some reasonable chance of success.

Without further delay we must face the fact that our patchwork quilt of piecemeal energy management is not working Certainly we need natural gas, but natural gas cannot meet all our energy needs. The same is true for our other major fuel sources — oil and coal and uranium. All form intermeshed parts of the nation's overall energy supply. The unavailability of any one is disruptive of the whole That wasn't always so, but it is now. The management of energy as a total system is the only safe escape route that still remains open to us.

Ida's Notebook

Ida Risser

Everyone needs a few minutes of peace and quiet when they can be alone to collect their thoughts. It might be after supper when you've been left alone in the kitchen to clean up the dishes, or maybe you can find time to ponder over the ironing board.

My favorite time is after the rush of getting two youngsters off to an early bus a mile from our house. Then I like to sit down with a magazine or even yesterday's newspaper and sip a cup of tea. It can also be a time to write my diary and plan the order of work for the day. You see, I do feel a bit guilty relaxing, as the "work ethic" has been firmly implanted in my mind. As the oldest of seven girls raised on a farm, at an early age, I became both mother's and father's constant helper.

Judy and I have just finished papering and painting a bedroom. Of course, we had to remove the old paper first and then to slow things down, we had to return to the store for another roll of paper. We are anticipating a small family reunion this weekend and it takes something like that to urge us to tackle this job.

Our daughter and husband will be here a few days from Indianapolis, our son and fiancee will also come. Another son and friend are driving from North Carolina and Judy is home from Penn State and so we'll have a full house.

One of my neighbors told me she would have a-shuttle service from McDonalds if she had all that company. But feeding them is the least of my worries - rather it is trying to keep things on a semblance of a schedule with everyone running a different direction.

N.J. youths to meet

FLEMINGTON, N.J. - The annual North Jersey Youth Conference will be held on March 18, 19 and 20, at the Holiday Inn in South Plainfield, N.J. near Piscataway.

The conference is for teens involved with any youth organization, such as: 4-H, Scouts, Church, etc. The theme for the conference is "New Thoughts, New Visions." The purpose of the North Jersey Youth Conference is for an experience designed to provide teen youth the opportunity to speak out in issues affecting today's living; to understand these issues, so as to later make decisions for helping themselves and others.

farm sale of Paul Seitz, Columbia R2.

Society 4 will entertain Society 23 at a luncheon at the United Methodist Church in the village of Ironville. A progressive dinner for members and husbands of Society 23 is scheduled for April 16. Hostess homes will be: Mr. and Mrs. J. Clayton Charles, appetizer; Mr. and Mrs. Richard Rohrer, salad; Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Kauffman, Jr., main course; and Mr. and Mrs. Edgar Funk, dessert. After the meal, the group will have a game time.

On May 21, mothers and daughters of Society 23 will be honored at a luncheon at Hostetters Dining Hall, Mt. Joy, after which they will tour Donegal Mills.

During the last meeting, it was voted to give $10 to the Multiple Sclerosis fund. Mrs. Clayton Charles and Mrs. Lester Newcomer reported that they had visited Mrs. John Herr with a gift of money which was greatly appreciated. Mr. Herr died in a robbery during December.

York Co. Society 1

York County Farm Women Society 1 held its February meeting at the Barley Convalescent Home on East Market St., York, where one of the group's members, Mrs. Lida Bear, is a resident. Two special events were ovserved - the 47th anniversary of the Society and the 90th birthday of Mrs. Bear.

The meting was chaired by the president Mrs. Pauline Rishel. The program consisted of some old-time remembrances and included a vocal duet by Alverta O'Neal and Amy Miller.

Mrs. Bear was presented a decorated birthday cake and a sunshine box full of gifts.

Mrs. Charles Bupp, county president, was a guest and encouraged everyone present to attend the state Spring rally to be held at Memorial Hall on the York Fair Grounds, May 11.

The next meeting will be held at the home of Jessie Grass and will begin at 9 a.m. The group will make favors for the Spring Rally. Everyone interested is to bring a sandwich for lunch and the hostess will provide the coffee and dessert. The regular meeting will convene at 1 p.m. The monthly quilting party will be held on March 16.

York Co. Society 16

Dover Society of Farm Women Society 16 made plans for a dinner-theatre party March 27 at Limestone Valley.

The groups will leave at 2:30 p.m. from Salem union Church. A bus trip is planned for May 7-8 to Williamsburg, Va.

York Co. Society 33

Stewartstown Farm Women Society 33 voted at its February meeting to make donations to three local service groups.

Donations of $50 each were made to the Eureka Fire Co. and the Stewartstown Ambulance Club, and $75 to the Mason-Dixon library, all of Stewartstown.

The action followed a 1976 decision to give money locally rather than to nationally sponsored charities.

In other business several members volunteered to help with the Eureka Fire Co. survey of the local area. The group will continue to make and sell mints. A silent auction netted $15.73.

The Farm Women met at the home of Mrs. Sylvania Manifold, Stewartstown RD3. The March 9 meeting will be at the home of Mrs. Sheila Von Lange, Stewartstown R3.

Cowbelles looking for beef recipes

DENVER, Colo. - You won't hear the old complaint of "too many cooks in the kitchen"around members of the American National CowBelles. They say they'd like to see their kitchens full for the 1977 National Beef Cook-Off.

The CowBelles, the women's auxiliary of the American National Cattleman's Assn., are currently accepting entries for the annual national beef cooking contest to be held Sept. 15-16 in Columbus, Ohio.

According to Mrs. Marvin Berschet, national cook-off chairman, approximately 40 states will be sending finalists to Columbus.

"The contest is designed to stimulate new recipes featuring the less familiar, less expensive cuts of beef - brisket, round, chuck and rump," Mrs. Berschet said. "Too often, these cuts are forgotten as hamburgers or other steaks and roasts take the number one lead in beef eaters' daily diets. We belive a little friendly competition can help develop unique recipes utilizing these other cuts."

To be eligible, contestants must be over 21 years old, and they cannot have professional status within the food industry. Dishes must contain a minimum of two pounds of beef and not more than five pounds of beef. Meat used in the recipes must be exclusively beef. Cooking time cannot exceed four hours.

Prizes for the contest are: first place, $1000; second place, $500; and third place, $250. In addition, five honorable mention places will be named.

Mrs. Berschet said the beef cook-off is different from most cooking contests because it receives no commercial sponsorship. Wives of cattlemen, agribusinessmen, and women who own and operate their own farms and ranches sponsor the contest.

State Cow Belle organizations in 39 states will be conducting state cook-offs to select winners to participate in the national contest. Persons who are interested should contact their state beef cook-off chairmen. In Pennsylvania she is Mrs. Marie Cooper, R2, Box 57, Tioga, Pa. 16946.

Doesn't Help

Strolling down the street, the curious young man passed the headquarters of an established men's club. Crepe had been strung around the building. The stroller asked the doorman what the crepe was for. "One of the older members died recently," was the explanation. "Well," the young man replied, "that crepe livens the place up a bit."

Protects 4 more miles of corn between hopper refills

Dyfonate® 20-G insecticide does it. At 30 pounds of rootworm insecticide per hopper, Dyfonate protects 15 miles of corn row from rootworms. Compared to 7 miles to 11 miles for most other rootworm insecticides.

Dependable Dyfonate 20-G has other important benefits

- Economical—lower cost per acre than most rootworm insecticides.
- Granules of Dyfonate don't wear out metering equipment.
- Dyfonate doesn't have an offensive odor. And it's easy handling.
- Dyfonate controls rootworms for sure in early and late-planted corn.
- Dyfonate also controls symphylans—tiny soil pests that destroy much corn in this area.

Get better corn yields without lodging. Use Dyfonate for rootworm and symphylan control. Always follow label directions carefully. See your Stauffer supplier now. Stauffer Chemical Company, Agricultural Chemical Division, Westport, Connecticut 06880.

Home on The Range

St. Patrick's Day is fast approaching. Next Thursday, the whole nation will be honoring the patron saint of Ireland. His death on March 17, 461 has been observed in America since colonial days with the shamrock serving as the symbol of this day. According to legend, St. Patrick used the shamrock, which is the national flower of Ireland, to illustrate the Holy Trinity.

From this religious beginning, the holiday has evolved to hold secular significance, as well, with people wearing green and hosting St. Paddy's Day parties.

Thanks to several contributors to the "Home on the Range" column this week, you should have no trouble thinking of foods to serve on a buffet table for your St. Patrick's Day gathering of friends. There is a wide range to choose from, starting out with a holiday punch, breads, pies, potatoes, and gelatin salads. They are all great St. Paddy's day ideas and we want to thank the ladies who took the time to look through their recipe files to come up with foods that fit the bill.

Beverages

ST. PATRICK'S PUNCH

1 pint milk
1 pint lime sherbet
Few drops green food coloring
1 quart carbonated grapefruit beverage

Mix milk and sherbet together in punch bowl until sherbet is soft; stir in food coloring. Pour carbonated beverage slowly down side of bowl; stir carefully. Garnish with mint or green cherries. Yield: 12 servings.

Mrs. Lucy Weber
Mohnton, Pa.

Breads

IRISH SODA BREAD

4 cups sifted all - purpose flour
1 tablespoon baking soda
1 tablespoon sugar
2-½ teaspoons salt
1-¼ teaspoon cream of tartar
1-½ cups buttermilk
1 tablespoon butter or margarine, melted

Preheat oven to 375 degrees F. Grease well a large cookie sheet. In large bowl, combine flour with soda, sugar, salt, and cream of tartar; mix well. Add buttermilk; with fork, stir just until dry ingredients are moistened. Turn out dough onto lightly floured board. Knead lightly until smooth - about one minute. Shape dough into a ball; place on cookie sheet. With hands, flatten into a seven-inch circle. With sharp knife, cutting ¼ inch deep, mark into quarters. Bake 30 to 40 minutes, or until top is golden brown and loaf sounds hollow when rapped with knuckle. Remove loaf to wire rack. Brush top with butter; cool completely.

Desserts

IRISH COFFEE PIE

1 envelope unflavored gelatin
Two-thirds cup sugar
¼ teaspoon salt
¾ cup milk
1 egg yolk beaten
1 egg white
1 envelope whipped topping
1 tablespoon instant coffee
2 tablespoons Irish Whiskey
1 baked (9-inch) pie shell, cooled

Mix gelatin, sugar, and salt in a saucepan. Add milk. Cook over low heat until sugar and gelatin are dissolved, stirring constantly. Stir a little of this mixture into egg yolk, then add rest of yolk to this mixture. Continue cooking and stirring one minute. Chill until slightly thickened. Beat egg white until stiff peaks form. Prepare whipped topping as directed on package - adding instant coffee before whipping. Place pan of gelatin in bowl of ice water, add whiskey and beat until light and foamy. Remove from ice bath then quickly fold in beaten egg white and 1½ cups whipped topping. Pour into pie shell, baked and cooled. Chill until set. Garnish with rest of whipped topping.

Correction

In last week's "Home on the Range," a misprint was made on the amount of sugar to be added to the Mecklenburger Duck recipe by Dieter Krieg. Two tablespoons of sugar should be added for each apple used, and not the amount that is printed.

XL-78

STALK AFTER STALK FIELD AFTER FIELD

DEKALB XL-78...The hybrid that stands and yields...Stalk after stalk, field after field. Offers excellent foliar disease resistance and exceptional stalk quality. Merle and Martin Ressler of Quarryville, Pennsylvania say, "It held its lush greenness until maturity. With no disease and insect damage, it had a well above average yield." Husky, rugged, healthy-looking plants. Does an outstanding job at both high and low populations.

XL-54

An earlier hybrid that produces excellent quality grain.

XL-64

Stands great. Weighs heavy. Yields big. A little earlier than XL-78.

Main dish

IRISH MASHED POTATOES

1 medium head green cabbage (about 1-½ pounds)
Instant mashed potatoes (enough for eight servings)
½ cup thinly sliced green onions
⅛ teaspoon pepper

Prepare and cook four cups shredded cabbage. Prepare instant potatoes as directed for eight servings. Stir in onions and pepper. Fold hot cabbage into potatoes. Makes eight to ten servings. Note: The addition of another vegetable to mashed potatoes is call "champ" by the Irish.

Salads

LIME AND PEAR GELATIN

1 package (3 ounce) lime gelatin
1 cup boiling water
¾ cup cold water
1 can (8 ounces) pear halves

Dissolve gelatin in boiling water. Add cold water and pour into 8 or 9 inch square pan. Chill until set - at least three hours. Then cut in cubes, using sharp knife which has been dipped in hot water. To remove cubes from pan, apply warm wet cloth over bottom of pan. When cubes are slightly loosened, remove with spatula, or quickly dip pan in warm water and invert on wax paper. Serve in dessert dishes with pears that have been diced. Makes four servings. For very firm cubes, reduce cold water to ½ cup. For softer cubes, increase cold water to one cup.

Mrs. Sylvia Quesenberrry
Blain, Pa.

xxx

EMERALD SALAD

2 tablespoons gelatin (plain)
1 cup cold water
1 cup sugar
½ cup water
½ cup vinegar (scant)
1 medium size can of pineapple, crushed, plus juice
1 cup nuts, finely chopped
1 cup sweet pickles, sliced thin
½ cup celery, chopped
Dash of onion juice, if desired

Dissolve gelatin in cold water and soak for five minutes. Cook sugar, water, and vinegar to a thin syrup. While hot, but not boiling, add gelatin and stir until dissolved. When it begins to set, add pineapple, nuts, pickles, celery and onion. Let set for two hours. Serve in lettuce with mayonnaise. Serves 12.

Mrs. James L. Coombs
Gardners, Pa.

ST. PATRICK'S FRUIT SALAD

1½ cup boiling water
1 (3 ounce) package lime gelatin
1 (3 ounce) package cream cheese, softened
1 medium apple chopped
½ cup finely chopped nuts
1 cup crushed pineapple with juice
12 pecan halves

Stir boiling water into gelatin until gelatin is dissolved. Pour into electric mixer bowl; add cream cheese. Beat at medium speed until cheese is dissolved. Add apples, nuts and pineapple; pour into mold. Cover and chill in refrigerator until partially congealed. Stir, then place pecan halves on top of salad for decoration. Chill till set. Yield: eight servings.

Mrs. Lucy Weber
Mohnton, Pa.

UNDER-THE-SEA-PEAR-SALAD

1 can (16 ounces) pear halves
1 package (3 ounces) lime flavored gelatin
¼ teaspoon salt
1 cup boiling water
1 tablespoon lemon juice
2 packages (3 ounces each) cream cheese
⅛ teaspoon ginger

Drain pears, reserving ¾ cup of the syrup. Coarsely dice pears and set aside. Dissolve gelatin and salt in boiling water. Add pear syrup and lemon juice. Measure 1¼ cups into an 8" x 4" loaf pan or a four - cup mold. Chill until set, but not firm - about one hour.

Meanwhile, soften cheese until creamy. Very slowly blend in remaining gelatin, beating until smooth. Blend in ginger. Stir in pears. Spoon over set gelatin in pan. Chill until firm - about four hours. Unmold and garnish with chicory or watercress, if desired. Or this can be left right in the dish and served from there. Makes 3½ cups or six servings. Note: recipe may be doubled, using a 9" x 5" loaf pan.

Mrs. Ruth Ruoss
Blain, Pa.

13 Hogs

First known hogs brought to the United States were the 13 animals which arrived on the coast of Florida in 1539 with Hernando de Soto and his conquistadors. Hog numbers have come a long way since then. Last year, it is estimated that some 63 million hogs were marketed Hog production, however, was down slightly last year due to high production expenses. The record for hog marketings was in 1971 when some 94 million hogs were marketed.

Model 370 — 350 bu cap
Model 570 — 600 bu cap

Two Basic Processes are involved in drying grain with a GT TOX-O WIK Recirculating Batch Grain Dryer These two processes function independently, yet simultaneously to dry grain as evenly and gently as possible

One of the Processes is the movement of the grain itself The round bin and cone shaped bottom are a part of the GT TOX-O WIK Dryer design for making this process more efficient The patented agitator arms keep the grain constantly moving downward As the grain reaches the bottom it is picked up by the recirculating auger which carries it to the top of the dryer and discharges it back into the dryer

The Other Process involved in drying is the movement of the heated air Heat from the burner combines with air supplied by the fan This heated air is then forced into the plenum chamber and out into the moving grain

The GT TOX O WIK Dryer, simple in design and operation, is built of high quality materials and factory pre tested for years of trouble-free drying It s your assurance of dependability and service for years to come

"Shopping bag" prices high third straight month

HARRISBURG Pa - Pennsylvania's average retail "shopping bag" price jumped 51 cents to another record high in February, according to the monthly supermarket survey report, released today by the Pennsylvania Department of Agiculture.

The average retail cost of 15 "shopping bag"items sampled throughout the Commonwealth during the second week in February was $10.91, a 51 cent increase from the Jaunuary shopping bag cost of $10.40. The average retail price of the 15 items in December was $10.21.

The survey results show record high prices for the shopping items for the third consecutive month. For the first time in the history of the survey, regional prices climbed above the $11 mark in two regions of the state. The survey reflects a steady climb in the average shopping bag cost as prices continue to rise.

According to the survey prepared by the department's Bureau of Rural Affairs, the average retail price for February was highest in the northeastern part of the state at $11.27, an increase of 66 cents from the previous month. Lowest prices were recorded in the southeast central part of the state at $10.59, where prices declined one cent from the January figures.

Five of the six regions surveyed reported an increase in shopping bag averages during February. The most dramatic jump in the retail price of the shopping bag was in the northwestern part of the state, an 80 cent boost from $10.14 to $10.94. The one cent decrease in the southeast central region was the only decline recorded in the survey.

The difference in cost of the shopping bag in urban and rural stores decreased to about four per cent in February. The average price of the shopping bag items in urban supermarkets rose 58 cents to $10.77, while rural stores showed a 54 cent increase to $11.25.

The spread between storebrand and namebrand items remained about the same, at eight per cent during February, according to the survey. A comparison of nine of the 15 shopping bag items showed the average price of storebrand items to be $7.14 compared to $7.75 for namebrand items.

Items increasing in price were potatoes, from 13 to 16 cents a pound; cabbage, 23 to 41 cents a pound; shortening, 53 to 54 cents a pound; coffee, $2.43 to $2.67 a pound; bread, 37 to 38 cents a pound loaf; cornflakes, 58 to 59 cents a pound; chicken, 51 to 55 cents a pound; eggs, 97 to $1.01 a dozen large eggs; ground beef, 94 to 95 cents a pound; and toilet paper, 82 to 83 cents a four roll package.

Items deceasing in price were fresh pears, 40 to 39 cents a pound; canned corn, 35 to 34 cents a pound; and sugar, 22 to 21 cents a pound.

Canned peaches and American cheese remained about the same in price.

Stand-by dairy princess is busy too

Berks County Reporter

DOUGLASSVILLE, Pa. - Being the Berks County Dairy Princess Alternate may not seem like it involves much work but Tammy Hafer knows better. At first, Tammy thought it wouldn't include much activity either, but time has certainly shown her differently. This pretty young lady has been in the limelight more than she had imagined.

Between working as a secretary for a fertilizer company, her position as dairy princess alternate, and helping on the family farm, Tammy doesn't get much time for herself.

When she does find the time, Tammy likes to bake and sew. Presently she is working on a quilt. When she is finished embroidering the detailed pattern for the cover, she hopes her grandmother will teach her how to sew it together on an old loom. "I have been working on this quilt a long time" Tammy told Lancaster Farming, "I can't always find as much time to work on it as I'd like."

Among other large projects Tammy has sown her own prom gown, and when time permits, prefers to make her own clothing. While in school Tammy made all of her own outfits.

Tammy has spoken at banquets and farm women conventions promoting dairy products. She has also attended fairs in place of the dairy princess Nedra Yoder. The alternate feels that promoting milk is a good cause. "Not only does it help the farmer," she says, "but it is a very healthy, nutritious food." At times Tammy has given out her own recipes which use dairy products. Some of her favorites are:

PIMIENTO-CHEESE SPREAD

1 2-oz jar pimientos
2 hard - boiled eggs
1 sm. onion
½ lb. med-sharp or mild Cheese

Grind all together.

For the dressing:
Melt: 1 tbls. butter
Stir in. 1 tbls. sugar
1 tbls. flour
2 tbls. vinegar
½ cup milk

Cook until thick. Beat in 1 egg. Mix ground mixture and sauce together.

SHRIMP DIP

1 Pkg. Good Seasons Italian Dressing mix
1 sm. can shrimp, drained and chopped
1 cup sour cream
1 3-oz pkg. cream cheese
1 tbls lemon juice
Chopped green pepper optional.

Combine. Make several hours ahead of serving time.

BAKED MACARONI & CHEESE

2 tbls butter
2 tbls flour
1 tsp salt
1 tsp dry mustard
½ cup buttered bread crumbs
Paprika
2½ cups milk
2 cups shredded cheese (8 oz. mild or sharp)
2 cups macaroni

In sauce pan, melt butter. Remove from heat, blend in flour, salt and mustard, add milk: heat stirring constantly, until sauce thickens a little and is smooth. Add 1½ cups cheese; heat until melted, stirring occassionally. Meanwhile cook macaroni as directed, drain. Combine with sauce in a 2 qt. casserole; top with the remaining cheese, breadcrumbs, and paprika. Bake at 350 F about 20-25 min. Makes 4 to 6 servings.

CHEESECAKE CUPCAKES

12 cupcake papers
12 vanilla wafers
4 3-oz. pkg. cream cheese
2 eggs
½ cup sugar
½ tsp vanilla extract
canned pie filling, cherry or blueberry

Place one vanilla wafer into each cupcake paper, set into muffin pans. Beat together the cheese, eggs sugar, and vanilla. Fill each paper two-thirds full. Bake at 350 F 15-20 min. Remove and let stand 15 min. before topping with pie filling. Refrigerate 1 hr. before serving.

Among her other interets Tammy enjoys growing plants. "My room is full of plants" she said, "I also enjoy helping with the family garden but unfortunately I didn't find much time to do it this year."

Stand-by princess

Tammy can always find time to help with the evening milking, and on Saturdays she also helps her mother with the housework and cooking.

"Sometimes I take care of the calves", this busy young lady said, "but now my 14 year old sister, Tina, usually takes care of them. Tammy also has two younger brothers which help with the chores. In addition she finds time to help her mother with the record keeping. The Hafers milk about 80 cows and farm 500 acres.

Tammy encourages eligible girls, to try for the upcoming dairy princess pagent. "The contest was fun", Tammy reminisces, we went down to Philadelphia and were on "Dialing for Dollars." "In all it was a very rewarding experience," Tammy continued, I met a lot of interesting people and I learned also."

Performance tested bulls for sale

UNIVERSITY PARK, Pa. - The gross income from a beef cow herd is based primarily on three things: percent calf crop, weaning weight of calves, and quality of type score, says Ben Morgan, Extension animal scientist at Penn State University.

He askes: "If you are a cattleman, are you satisfied with your production in these three areas? Do your calves grow rapidly? Do they keep growing after weaning? Are they the type of cattle that will continue to grow and go to market at preferred market weight and grade choice with a maximum of muscle or lean meat?"

"If your answer to each of these questions is yes, you are a most fortunate cattleman," says Morgan. "If the answer to any or all of the questions is no, then you should be considering a bull for the coming breeding season that will improve your calf crop," he adds.

These above factors are affected by genetic make-up and environment. The only way to get bulls of known genetic background is to select bulls that have definite records, explains Morgan.

Pennsylvania cow-calf producers will have the opportunity to select bulls with definite growth records at the 4th Pennsylvania Performance Tested Bull Sale. This sale will be held on Friday, April 1, at the Meat Animal Evaluation Center on the Penn State Campus and begins at 12:00 noon.

The Bull Testing Program is sponsored jointly by the Pennsylvania Department of Agriculture and The Pennsylvania State University, with the cooperation of Pennsylvania cattlemen. Additional information can be secured by contacting Pennsylvania Meat Animal Evaluation Center, University Park, Pa. 16802.

My Thoughts

And welcome to them

By JOANNE SPAHR

"Hey, lady, look at me!"

"Lyle, watch me, I can disappear!"

"Hey, where are the pigeons? I can see they were here, sometime."

With these rambunctious shouts, four boys were running, jumping, and playing in our hay mow the other day, when a friend of mine who works at a home for boys brought out four of his best-behaved charges for some time on the farm.

Awk, they're going to kill themselves, I thought, as thick dust jumped off the bales when the boys slammed and slid around on them. Or else, I realized, they are going to kill me through suffocation. My hand went to my throat and I started choking from the 10-year-old dust that was having a hay day in my nose, throat, and lungs. It had been so long since I'd played in the hay mow that I'd forgotten what it was like. But, these boys were bringing it all back.

One got particular pleasure by jumping in the space under some stacked bales, and playing hide and seek from his friends. I could just tell that he thought that particular fortress was his, because he had been the first to find it. Therefore, the other three were only allowed to stand and watch while he jumped in and out of the straw fort, time and time again. But, this hogging of the straw castle was only tolerable for a short time before Kevin, the leader of the bunch, got the bright idea of how to top the 12-year-old king of the castle.

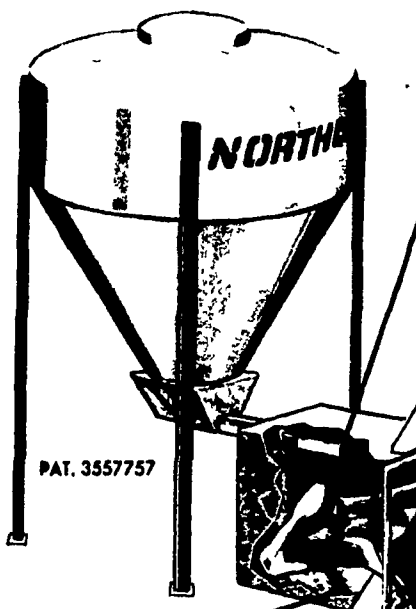
Kevin's idea was to slide from the top of the mow down to the floor on the gradually sloping stack, which he found, when he reached the bottom, was a little tough on his own bottom. But, that didn't matter - it was fun, and the other guys wanted to try it, so they did it about three times.

There was more playful hopping around, and then Kevin got the bright idea to walk on the rafters. When I saw this, acid hit my stomach, and I envisioned a giant stone lawsuit hitting my parents right on the head.

It was time to get the boys out of the barn before something disasterous did happen. When they heard the news, of course, they were upset. No 12-year-old mind grasps danger, much less the concept of a lawsuit. But, we took them into the house for something to drink, and in no time, three of the four were sacked out on the couch and chairs. They were all content and pooped and ready for dinner - all except Kevin, that is. We all know that leaders are invincible.

The point to be made here, is that although these boys are considered juvenile delinquents by the state, allow them just a short time of good, honest fun on the farm and they are as behaved and content as any other 12-year-old.

One asset that many city children no longer have that farm children always will, is a constructive, entertaining outlet for their energies. We can be thankful for that.



NORTHCO
Serv-O-Matic
Dairy Feeder
TWO MODELS AVAILABLE

The Model 101 Serv-O-Matic may be mounted through the wall in a loose housing system or through the fenceline for open lots. Side braces are also provided for mounting and installation.

The feeder opening is designed to permit only one cow to eat at a time. A 2 inch auger drops approximately 1 lb. of concentrate per minute into the feeder . . . this is the same rate the cow eats . . . no feed remains in the feeder when she moves away.

A simple magnet around the cow's neck will activate the feeder motor as she places her head into the feeder. Cows without a magnet are unable to get feed

"Selectively" Provides More Feed to Top Producers

The Serv—O—Matic Dairy Feeder enables you to feed additional grain and concentrates only to the top producing cows in your herd! It eliminates the labor problem of separating the herd in a loose housing system to give individual attention to top producing animals.

The Serv—O—Matic is activated by a simple magnet fastened around the cow's neck. This way, only the cows you select can activate the feeder and receive additional ration . . . yet all animals can still be housed together.

Each cow producing 10 lb. or more over the herd average should receive extra feed. In actual trials, cows on the Serv—O—Matic consume an extra 10 lbs. of grain per day [while eating some less in the parlor]. Milk output shows an average increase of 1 lb. of milk for each pound of concentrate fed through the Serv—O—Matic . . . some as high as 5 lbs. of milk per pound of feed!

One Serv—O—Matic will normally handle 20-30 cows in an 80-120 cow herd. Normal procedure is to put fresh cows on extra ration and remove the magnet when production drops to a predetermined level.

Kentucky farm show ranked on top

The rear end of a huge articulated 4-wheel-drive tractor afforded a perfect place to watch shows featuring IH products and professional models. The tractors were displayed on plush carpeting, while floor space anywhere was nearly immaculate.

By DIETER KRIEG

LOUISVILLE, Ky. - The Pennsylvania Farm Show might be the daddy of all such agricultural events, but there's one in Kentucky from which Pennsylvanians might be able to extract some good ideas if and when they finalize plans for a new exposition center. The Kentucky Fair and Exposition Center, a relatively new and spacious complex in Louisville, stands as a model for such facilities.

The International Harvester Company last month sponsored its second annual "Spirit of Red Fever Tour" which included visits to the National Farm Machinery Show, the National Invitational Tractor Pull, and the IH foundry. It was all here in Louisville, home of the world-famous Kentucky Derby.

Among visitors to the exposition this year were Pennsylvania Secretary of Agriculture Kent Shelhamer, and House ag committee members Paul Yahner, (D. Cambria Co.) and Reno Thomas, (R. Snyder Co.). Unlike most other observers here, the trio of Pennsylvania officials was in town to study the facilities and administration of an event which annually gets high marks from visitors and exhibitors alike.

Not that the Pennsylvania Farm Show is something to be passed over lightly, but it is being widely acknowledged that Louisville wears the crown today for machinery expositions.

There are a number of differences between the Kentucky show and the annual big event in Harrisburg. To begin with, the Farm Show is an all-inclusive extravanganza which features everything from eggs to four-wheel drive tractors and dresses to cucumbers. Louisville's show features equipment only, with the tractor pull thrown in nightly as an extra attraction.

As anyone who has ever visited the Farm Show knows so well, it's wall-to-wall people. That's an indisputable fact. In terms of drawing power, the Pennsylvania Farm Show is the unquestioned king. The same holds true for its wide scope of exhibits.

Visitors to Louisville notice almost immediately, however, that the crowd is not only smaller, it's also more respectful of the surroundings. A quick explanation is that people don't generally come here unless they have an interest in farm equipment. It's not just a place to hang around at, or as was the case this year at the Farm Show, for an off-eat religious sect to peddle lowers.

The Kentucky Fair and Exposition Center is practically spotless. Even around he eating areas, which are omplete with tables and hairs, there's hardly a trace f litter. In similar areas at he Pennsylvania Farm how, there's hardly a trace f floor. That in itself makes he Kentucky facility highly mpressive.

Exhibitors here like the dea of attracting the crowds hich they feel will do them he most good. They're interested in showing and elling and believe that a most nearly perfect environment can be found here or that purpose. Of all indoor shows in the country, his is the one they like best. t has the facilities they eed, as well as a location hich draws Northeastern, Midwestern and Southern armers.

The centerpiece of this huge exposition center is the 15,000 seat arena which boasts marble columns and enough roominess to easily hold tractor pulls on a 300-foot track. It was built in 1956 for the State Fair. It wasn't until 1966 that the National Farm Machinery Show came here. It started out as a very modest thing put on by local people. Gradually it grew. And it hasn't stopped growing yet. For years it has been the largest show of its kind in the country.

So popular is this show, that exhibit space is sold out for years in advance. As the show grows, so grow the facilities. Two brand new halls were completed recently and were in use for the first time this year. That brings to four the number of halls which flank the arena. The entire complex is filled with equipment for the National Farm Machinery Show. The aisles between exhibits are spacious and clean. Very few litterbugs visit this farm equipment extravaganza.

Built 21 years ago, this marble columned arena seats 15,000 and has space enough to easily conduct tractor pulls on a 300-foot track. Large exhibition halls have been added over the years, all of which flank the centrally located arena. The entire complex is filled with equipment during the National Farm Machinery Show, held here annually during mid-February.

In spite of the growth and expansion projects, 95 per cent of the exhibitors here would like to have more space yet, according to exposition officials. This writer was here for the second year in a row, and decided to find out for himself what exhibitors might have to say about the National Farm Machinery Show.

A small Michigan manufacturer was here for the first time this year. Renting a 10 foot by 10 foot space for $250 for the duration of the four-day show, he thought the facilities were adequate. An Indiana exhibitor told Lancaster Farming he has been coming here for 14 years. His 10 by 20 foot space costs him $825. "A lot of manufacturers are beginning to feel we have too many shows," he said. We have to move our equipment, staff our exhibits, find rooms to stay overnight, it can be a hassle," he commented.

As one of the larger exhibitors of the show, White Motor Corporation pays $6000 for a space which measures about 30 feet by 150 feet. Eighteen people wear the uniform of the company and stand ready to assist the browsers. They had a crew in two weeks before the show to prepare the exhibits. Space was satisfactory. A spokesman for the company prophesized that small shows around the country would be on the way out, adding that "Harrisburg and Louisville are very valuable to us among indoor shows."

Harrisburg received high marks from every exhibitor questioned, but it never quite measured up to the Louisville program. One of the reasons a spokesman for Owatonna cited is that the hours at Harrisburg are far too long. He said he stayed on duty from 9 a.m. to 9 p.m. at the Farm Show, while in Louisville it's 9 a. m. to 5:30 p.m. "But we get very good response from both shows," the company representative

We're fresh.

The Mix-Mill automatic grinder/mixer makes fresh feed. It grinds and mixes up to five different ration ingredients, automatically. It's accurate, too. 98% to 99% accuracy on recipe proportions.

A remote electrical control panel gives you finger tip command of all mill functions. Operates unattended too, controlled by modern electrical timers and switches.

Mixing is by auger proportioning, driven by trouble free steel gears. Just dial in the proportions desired for your feed rations and let Mix-Mill do the rest. Select the exact amount of feed required day-after-day at the push of a button.

A daily ration of fresh feed generally gives dramatic increases in rates of gain. So make your next move to Mix-Mill.

added. He considered the Louisville show to be the best of all and space adequate. "But in Harrisburg we're cramped," he said.

Rich Watts of International Harvester told Lancaster Farming that he is satisfied with the space his company has here, but that additional space would be welcome and taken if offered, particularly if it was near the entrance of the hall. Reservations at area hotels have to be made a year ahead, he noted. IH rents a space measuring 60 feet wide by 106 feet long and pays approximately $8000 for it. Ten trucks of various sizes haul in the tractors and machinery the company displays. Props, including floor coverings, are all rented and put up by a Chicago firm.

At the Allis-Chalmers display, the situation was similar. Nobody complained about the space made available to them, but they would take more if they had it offered. The future here is seen as nothing other than bright.

The Louisville show also differs from the Harrisburg event in the gimmicks or extra attractions which are used to catch the visitor's attention. Pretty girls rank high on the list as attention getters. Although sales-minded men are around to discuss the nuts and bolts of the equipment industry with interested and prospective buyers, it's the girls who oftentimes cause the casual observer to stop in the first place. Visual aids such as slide shows and movies are popular with manufacturers and dealers. Some have "miniature theatres" set up and attendance is generally very good.

The Harvestore people had a unique attention getter of their own - a magician who baffled young and old alike. All in all, the equipment and various "crowd stoppers" were also crowd pleasers.

A story about the facilities here wouldn't be complete without mentioning the high degree of efficiency which is evident in the way the tractor pull is conducted. No sooner has one tractor finished pulling before the track rollers and levelers are out to smooth things over. In three minutes' time the next tractor comes roaring down through the 300-foot track, and the cycle starts over again. All along, the 15,000 spectators stay enthusiastic, awed by not only the performing tractors, but also the supporting crews and equipment which keep things going rapidly and smoothly.

Cookware Efficiency

When choosing cookware, look for signs of energy efficiency, convenience and durability. Energy efficient pans have straight smooth sides and close-fitting lids for quick and even heating. Cookware that is convenient to use has heat resistant handles and knobs that won't loosen with use. Smooth, rounded interiors are important for easy cleaning Durability is determined by the material used to make the cookware For example, thick metal pans are more durable than thin

Milk price lowest in 1½ yrs.

ALEXANDRIA, Va. - Middle Atlantic Order Market Administrator Joseph D. Shine announced on March 4 Class I milk price of $10.94 per hundredweight for April 1977. Shine said that this price is down three cents from March and is nine cents below the April 1976 Class I price. The Market Administrator observed that the April Class I price will be at the lowest level since October 1975. Order No. 4 prices are announced for milk testing 3.5 per cent butterfat, f.o.b. plants located within 55 miles of Philadelphia, Pa and also within 75 miles from the nearer of Washington, DC or Baltimore, Md. There is also a six-cent direct - delivery differential applicable to producer milk received at plants located within 55 miles of Philadelphia.

Shine also announced a Class II milk price for February 1977 of $8.20 per hundredweight and a butterfat differential of 10.4 cents for the month.

These class prices are based on the February 1977 Minnesota - Wisconsin manufacturing milk price of $8.16 per hundredweight adjusted to 3.5 per cent butterfat content.

The USDA reported that the wholesale price of Grade A butter at Chicago for February was 90.82 cents per pound and the nonfat dry milk price was 62.50 cents per pound f.o.b. plants in the Chicago area.

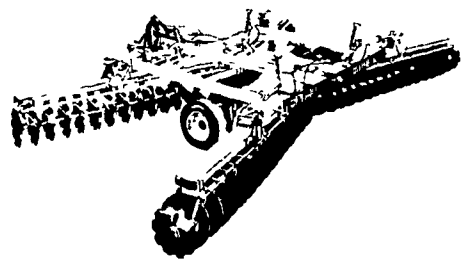
Secret to long life superiority?
Unit-built disk gangs



International Disk Harrows

Unit-built gangs help make our disk harrows the strongest of any Big, square spring-steel arbor bolts are high-torqued to make a rigid exceptionally long-life assembly of the cast spacer, bearing spools and blades Crimp center blades mean long wear, less breakage Triple-sealed self-aligning bearings are rubber mounted so they are free to flex in their housings to absorb shocks Bearings mount on wide steel sleeves that spread bearing loads over a wider area to virtually end arbor bolt breakage
- Massive main frames—structural steel welded into rectangular tubing
- Extra-strong structural steel gang bars keep disks cutting, gangs in alignment
- Unit-built gangs on all IH disk harrows mounted, wheel-controlled tandems, and wheel-controlled offsets All are available in a wide range of sizes and subtypes

CHECKLIST for buying a gutter cleaner

☐ One-piece chain link with hook and-eye for heavy-duty, 4-way flexibility
☐ Angled flites for added efficiency
☐ Wear shoe on each flite a full half-inch thick for longer flite life
☐ Flites welded to links — fewer parts to corrode
☐ Easy link removal in 10 seconds — without tools
☐ Removable corner wheel assemblies to eliminate cement break-out
☐ Flanged corner wheel to guide chain and protect gutter floor
☐ 4 Tooth drive sprocket reduces strain on reducer
☐ Sprocket and roller chain reducer for complete dependability
☐ Flite cleaner engineered to serve right and last long
☐ Automatic chain tightener works with full or part load
☐ Continuous duty motor eliminates motor overheating
☐ Telescoping slide legs for easy slide adjustment.
☐ Chilled cast hold down shoe for longer shoe life
☐ Chain oiler for lubrication and corrosion resistance

The only gutter cleaner which gives you ALL these vital features and more is the PATZ Gutter cleaner. Designed by a farmer for farmers, this unit will provide years of labor-saving, trouble-free service

Jefferson Yoder, the 1976 DHIA champ, reaffirmed his position as a strong contender for the 1977 crown, by having three of his 60 cows complete lactations last month which exceeded 1000 pounds of butterfat. Leading the trio was Number 39, with a record of 24,309 pounds of milk, a 4.3 per cent test, and 1037 pounds of butterfat. Number 35 placed second with 1012 pounds of butterfat, while Number 1 checked in third for butterfat (1005 pounds) and first in milk production (26,421 pounds). All lactations were completed in 305 days.

Brucellosis plan okay

WASHINGTON, D.C. - The U.S. Department of Agriculture (USDA) has approved a plan, developed during two years of field trials, for innoculating adult female cattle with Strain 19 vaccine in "problem" brucellosis - infected herds - herds in which standard procedures for eliminating infection have proved unsuccessful. Examples could be herds with chronic, long - lasting infection or herds experiencing exceptionally rapid spread of the disease.

Under the approved plan, adult vaccination procedures may be initiated with written approval of state and federal animal health officials directly responsible for brucellosis eradication in the state where the herd is located. Animals so vaccinated will be hot - branded with the letters "AV" on the right jaw and they may move only under permit, to slaughter or to a quarantined feedlot.

Meat from cattle slaughtered because of brucellosis is safe for human consumption since the disease - causing bacteria are readily killed by normal cooking temperatures. Also the bacteria tend to concentrate in a cow's inedible organs.

Dr. Paul Becton, in charge of brucellosis eradication for USDA's Animal and Plant Health Inspection Service, said guidelines for the plan were developed in cooperation with members of the U.S. Animal Health Association's brucellosis committee and state officials. Dr. Becton noted that these guidelines will make the plan available to problem herd owners while assuring its proper use.

Adams Co. 4-H has top safety program

GETTYSBURG, Pa. - A 4-H safety program that emphasized emergency procedures has won top state honors and a cash award for Adams County.

County agricultural agent Jared Tyson received a $25 check provided by General Motors to be used for the advancement of 4-H safety activities in the county.

About 25 counties nationwide were selected by the Cooperative Extension Service for their outstanding 4-H safety programs.

Adams County encouraged 4-H clubs to include activities on proper procedures for handling emergencies. Leaders were encouraged to involve local fire departments, county civil defense personnel, and local fire equipment dealers in their safety programs.

Each 4-H member learned how to put out a large fire using an extinguisher, how to use the phone properly in an emergency, and how to give directions clearly.

One 4-H club simulated emergencies in which each member used a dummy telephone to call for aid and to give directions to the emergency site.

4-H'ers also toured local fire departments to learn about emergency equipment available in their areas.

General Motors, sponsor of the national 4-H safety program, also offers recongnition to 4-H members and clubs for outstanding safety projects and activities. Awards are arranged by the National 4-H Service Committee.

Adams County dairymen trade ideas

NEW CHESTER, Pa. - The Adams County Dairy Day program sponsored jointly by the Cooperative Extension Service and Atlantic Breeders Cooperative was held Friday, Feb. 18, 1977 in St. John's United Church of Christ, here.

"Chaos or Cooperation" a movie on the development and role of marketing cooperatives in bringing stability to the dairy industry opened the program. Beginning with the commercial development of the milk production - distribution system, the movie revealed how dairymen banded together in cooperatives have been successful in bargaining for fair prices, provided facilities for processing milk into storable products and encouraged the constant production needed by consumers across the country.

Attention to the calving interval of problem cows will improve breeding efficiency and herd production said Harvey Shaffer, Extension dairy specialist from Penn State. Some cows are not bred back soon enough after calving, resulting in a prolonged dry period void of milk production. He cautioned against breeding back too soon and said that dairymen should direct their attention to the problem cows in the herd.

Before deciding that a cow is not coming into heat, dairymen should take every step to observe for heat symptoms. A high percentage of problem cows are really bred when they are not in heat. Presence of standing heat is the sure signal. Proper time for breeding is from 10 to 12 hours after the onset of standing heat, up to 6-8 hours after the end of standing heat. Shaffer encouraged the keeping of permanent heat and breeding records as a valuable guide in breeding.

Proper mineral balance inthe ration is important to the health of the reproductive system in dairy animals.

A panel of dairymen shared experiences of how they observe and report the presence of heat in their dairy herds. Robert Keller, technician supervisor for Atlantic Breeders Cooperative was first speaker reviewing for the dairymen the steps they take in training A. I. technicians and the improvements made to assure strong line semen delivered to the farms. Efficiency reports on the bulls and the technicians provide a guide to improving services.

Keeping records chronologically of freshening date and heat periods plus individual health cards on each cow has been of greatest help to me, said Samuel Stoner, East Berlin. He makes frequent vistits to the barn for observation and finds a late evening observation especially valuable. Occasionally we'll breed a problem cow on two consecutive days.

"We use a breeding wheel for record keeping, have regular veterinarian check - ups on cows and breed only when he reports them clear," said Stanley Weimer, New Oxford. "We also use heat detector devices attached to cows as they approach breeding time."

"The veterinarian checks problem cows for us them we attach the heat detector after a 50 day reat period following calving," reported Alan Zepp, New Oxford, "We also use the breeding wheel for records and make frequent observation of the herd throughout the day and evening."

"When we see a cow in standing heat we call the breeding technician immediately," said Roy Weaner, Gettysburg. "Since they have an answering service in constant use, we do this promptly before we forget. Use of good breeding records is vital although sound nutrition and good health must come first," he said. "When a cow is a high producer and producing well we fight nature to have her bred."

In response to a question, Weimer said that keeping daily milk weights provides a good clue to the onset of heat as this usually causes a depression in milk production.

The panel revealed that some cows, mostly first calf heifers, have been bred at 45 days following freshening although most cows care bred after 50 to 60 days rest.

Mile-a-thon planned

LANCASTER, Pa. - United Cerebral Palsy of Lancaster County has announced plans for a Spring "Mile-A-Thon," scheduled for May 1 at the Lancaster County Park.

Like other "thons," the purpose is to have participants obtain sponsors for each mile they travel. The event has been dubbed a "mile-a-thon" this year to indicate that each entrant may choose his own means of completing the course around the County Park, which runs for five miles. Participants will be walking, jogging, running, biking, skating, beginning at 2:00 p.m., and they are encouraged to complete the course as many times as they are able, for a total of up to 20 miles. The mile-a-thon is open to interested persons of all ages. As in past years, school, business, and professional groups will enter and compete against each other for special awards, and an award will also go to the most unusual method of covering the course.

Enrollment sheets are available through the U.C.P, office, 226 W. Chestnut Street.

Stark in appearance, the Hans Herr House is an example of Medieval Germanic architecture and is the only structure of its type in Lancaster County.

In this picture Earl Groff, administrator of the landmark, points out the exterior characteristics that make it medieval.

Hans Herr House continues to develop as landmark

By JOANNE SPAHR

WILLOW STREET, Pa. - The 1719 Hans Herr House has not long been an historic landmark in Lancaster County as other dwellings there have - even though it is the oldest existing building in the county as well as the oldest meeting house. Instead, it was only opened to the public in 1974 after four or five years of restoration. Those responsible for the work were mainly interested in the property because of its role as a Mennonite meeting house for approximately 130 years. Hans Herr was a bishop in the early Mennonite church, and therefore, a key figure to that religious sect in this area.

The land on which the Herr House is standing formerly belonged to the farm of D. Mark Huber, which was earlier owned by his father, David H. Huber, and by his father, David Huber. The Hubers are known descendents of Hans Herr. Knowing of the interest in the old meeting house, in 1969 Huber agreed to sell the acre of land containing it, which the Lancaster Mennonite Conference Historical Society eagerly bought.

Then began the restoration - and quite a restoration it was. The home had stood vacant for nearly 100 years when it was used as a storage barn for the operating farm on which is was erected. Tobacco was hung in the upstairs, potatoes in the arch cellar, and it was just generally used as a utility building.

Says Earl Groff, administrator of the Hans Herr House, "It was a blessing in disguise that they used the house for this purpose, because they kept the roof restored, which kept the entire building in tact." But, of course, the work of returning it to its original state was monumental and it took from 1969 when it was purchased to 1974 to get the house ready for visitation.

"We tried to make it as authentic as possible," says Groff, adn tells of reroofing the building in the authentic manner.

"A lot of hand work and research had to be done," explains Groff, and, we were also limited in funds." They did hire a restoration architect to help them with the work.

The Hans Herr House has a marked style of central Europe, and according to the architect,—a "most marvelous example of Medieval Germanic architecture."

"If you would go to central Europe, you would find any number of homes over there just like this," explains Groff. "In fact, our visitors from those countries sometimes say how much fun it is to visit the house because it brings back memories of their childhood."

While most people think of knights and castles as "medieval", this is not necessarily so. Medieval structures were very substantial and remained as functional dwellings for a long time. In this case, the Hans Herr House did, because it is the only structure of its type standing in Lancaster County.

Medieval homes are characterized by three basic structures. First of all, they have extremely steep roofs. The owners could get maximum use of space from the roof shape, and the shingles lasted longer because the snow slid off faster and the shingles dried off quicker.

Another medieval characteristic is that the windows have cut stones framing them on the exterior. "Everybody else used wood as an exterior window frame, except those building medieval type houses," says Groff.

The third characteristic of a medieval home is a massive stone fireplace for cooking and central heating in the home. Because of the way in which the home is built, every room has one wall in touch with the fireplace, therefore acting as space heaters for each.

The Hans Herr house meets these requirements stringently, and although it is efficient in structure, this type of dwelling did not "catch on" in popularity in the region, and for this reason, the Herr House is the only one of its type to be found.

"I don't know why it didn't catch on," says Groff, who is baffled by the change in architecture through time, "but you just don't see these European style homes anywhere else in the county. They just didn't stick to the purity of European styling for some reason."

"This house is really one of a kind," he continues. "The next younger house was probably built 25-30 years later.

To underline the change in architecture

LOOKS EVEN BETTER AFTER YOU USE IT.

This is the business end of a factory-fresh Avco New Idea 10-Ton Manure Spreader. One glance tells you it's a rugged, high-quality machine.

But until you own one, and spread a couple thousand tons of manure with it, you won't really know how good one of our spreaders can look. Because after you work it good and hard, you'll see how tough it really is, and how long it's going to last.

That's when you'll appreciate the rugged durability of tandem axles, A-frame hitch, steel flareboards and extra-heavy-duty gearbox. And, with exclusive Penta-treated wood box and five unloading speeds, our spreader's bound to look better when you look for real value.

Especially after you've spread a few years' worth of manure with it.

Avco New Idea's a leader in spreaders for other materials, like fertilizer and seed. And they're just as tough as our big manure spreaders, for the same kind of long-life service.

Hans Herr House

through the years, the Hans Herr House has another building on its property which is currently being reshaped into a visitor's center for the Herr Home. This visitors' center is an 1892 farm house which is typical for its age. The exterior lines have never been changed and little has been done to the interior of the home.

Originally, this dwelling had been the homestead of the Huber family, and the only major changes make were on the first floor.

In the 173 years which separate the Herr House and the visitors' center, quite a few changes took place. Most notably the 1892 farm house is quite large.

"It is a Victorian dwelling," says Groff, "and, the Victorian age is known for its grandioseness." Everything was large and gaudy, although the Swiss German Mennonite influence in the house kept its design plainer than most Victorian homes at the time.

The kitchen was quite large, because the farm families back then were quite a bit bigger than now, and often times employed hired help. So, the eating and assembling room in the house had to be large enough to accommodate the amount of people who would be using it.

Also, central heating had changed. There were two original chimneys on the farm house on the Huber property, and those chimneys were on opposite ends of the home instead of directly in the middle as in the Herr House.

Groff says that the Victorian farm home won't be restored to its origional form. Instead, it will be made to serve as a launching point from which visitors to the Hans Herr house get a basic understanding of what they are about to see. Already, there are special educational displays set up housing artifacts found by Franklin and Marshall students on an archeological dig and studied by the state Historical and Museum commission.

There are also plans to add gift shop sales to the home so that the Hans Herr House can be kept in its unadulterated state. At present the Lancaster Mennonite Conference Historical Society is in need of funds to help with the construction of this visitors' center. They hope to include large color transparencies and translities of etchings and drawings all of which will be backlighted to give a feeling of depth and reality.

Since the Hans Herr House opened to the public, visitors have come from 50 states and 25 foreign countries. In 1976, alone, there were [illegible] paid admissions.

So, although it only opened three years ago, it has been enjoying success, and with the renovation of the Victorian farm house beside it should continue to grow as an educational as well as historical landmark.

Deadline extended

HARRISBURG - Several changes in water quality regulations have been proposed by the Department of Environmental Resources to the Environmental Quality Board. The Board ordered all the changes published in the Pennsylvania Bulletin to receive comments before taking any formal action on them.

Changes proposed to regulations governing erosion and sedimentation control would modify the current July 1, 1977 deadline for development of erosion and sedimentation control plans for agriculture.

The governmental agencies which do the technical work for farmers in drawing up most of the required plans do not have sufficient resources to meet the deadline and thus the Department is proposing that if a farmer has applied to a Conservation District for a plan by July 1, 1977 he would be considered in compliance.

Agronomy meetings set

WEST CHESTER, Pa. - The Chester County ASCS Committee has decided to cost share programs for controlling Johnsongrass and multifloral roses. To legally purchase Tordon and use it for controlling multifloral roses in pastures, farmers must be instructed about its safe use and application. This instruction and certification will be done at meetings to be held on March 15 and March 18 at the Extension Service office and Russellville Grange Hall, respectively.

In order to purchase "restricted-use." pesticides after October, 1977, farmers will need to be certified as private applicators. This certification will be explained briefly at the meetings. Farmers can become certified by passing a test which they can take at home on their own. Penn State has prepared a study manual to help farmers pass this test. This manual will be available at the meetings or from the Extension Office at a cost of $6.00; the test is free.

Pork promotions kept her stepping in 14 states

By JOANNE SPAHR

SCHAEFFERSTOWN, Pa. On March 3, 19-year-old Terri Ward, of LaMoille, Ill., stepped down from her throne as the 1976 National Pork Queen and joined the ranks of pork producers who she had represented for two years, both as the Illinois state pork queen and as the commodity queen on the national level. However, before she handed her title over to Debra Brand of Missouri as the American Pork Congress held in Des Moines, Iowa, nine days ago Lancaster Farming was able to obtain an interview with her.

In that interview, the poised, brown-haired animal science major from the University of Illinois stated that promoting pork over the past two years had been a relatively simple task.

"Except for a few angry consumers who really didn't have anyone but me to complain to about the high cost ot their meat, I found people very receptive to my promotions of pork," she said in earnest. She also explained that her job with the National Pork Producers Council was not to push consumers into buying her product, but rather to find out why the people who don't eat pork choose not to serve it.

"One of our biggest problems," she says, "is people saying, 'It's not good for me," because of the cholesterol level. But, the paradox is that many doctors have informed tneir patients to eat veal as a replacement, and veal is higher in cholesterol than the pork." But, for every person that worries about cholesterol, there is another who doesn't. However, most people do worry about their weight, so Terri found that another roadblock to Americans enjoying pork is their fear that it is fattening.

"All I needed to do to dispel that rumor was to pull out a pamphlet published by Weight Watchers which is entitled, Weight Watchers Primer on Pork, and they eagerly take it," she remarked.

Terri Ward

The pork producers have been working with Weight Watchers for about four years, and the primer which Terri handed out was an endorsement of eating pork while on a diet.

"Pork is 57 per cent leaner now than it was 11 years ago," said the outgoing young woman, and she asserted that the advancement was made primarily because of research and management on the part of the pork producers. In her estimate, the quality of pork is becoming universal over the entire nation.

Terri also found that promoting pork was not too difficult because, as she put it, "We are all concerned with making our hard earned dollars go as far as they possibly can. So, when we have good solid information to tell consumers how to do it, they are more than happy to accept what we have to offer."

In her two years of promotional work, she found this to be true almost everywhere she went - and, seemingly, she went almost everywhere.

"I talked to city consumers, farm consumers, producers, men, and women," she said with a slight roll of her eyes and a smile on her face. And, while she knows that she covered 10,000 miles while working as the Illinois state pork queen, she's not sure how much ground she covered while the national queen. She did make it to 14 states during her promotional duties, with Pennsylvania the last stop before she stepped down. And, during October, which was national pork month, she missed four and a half weeks of school while she was on a rather concentrated tour of states.

Pork promotions

She says her most memorable experience as pork queen took place in Fresno, Calif. Here, she took part in what she thought would be a two or three minute spot on a radio show. In actuality, the "spot" turned out to be an hour and a half call-in talk show.

"What I didn't know before I went was that the announcer was a vegetarian who hated pork," she announced with emphasis. "And, it turned out that many of his vegetarian friends called up to have their say," she continued.

"In that hour and a half, I think I was drained of every ounce of knowledge I had on pork, and some I didn't even know I had," she laughed, almost in relief. In the end, there was only one question which she couldn't answer. That question concerned the date when ham was first cured.

"I looked at it this way," she said. "No matter why people talked with me - whether it was to learn or poke fun, I got attention for the pork industry, and, hopefully, got some information across at the same time."

After two years of doing promotional work, Terri is somewhat of an expert on the subject, and according to her, the best advertising any commodity can get is to "just let the consumer taste it." She is a big advocate of a program which some pork producers are working with entitled, "Pork goes to School." This is a program where home economics teachers are educated on the value of the product, which they then teach to their classes.

"To me, this is saving the time and money it takes to reteach homemakers later," she remarked. "Also, high school girls love to cook, and whether they want to admit it or not, there is nothing a student likes better to do than to go home and say, "Guess what I learned today."

There was one other point which Terri stressed strongly while she was queen, and still firmly believes in. That was the idea that both producer and consumer must work together.

"We must get a basic understanding of what we both want and need, and work from there," she declared. In her opinion, the meat boycott was a result of "misunderstanding and under-eduation."

Now that Terri is no longer a member of the pork industry royalty, she plans to settle down and work as a member of the industry, instead. After her schooling at the University of Illinois, she plans to go into some phase of marketing or with private selective breeding.

Md. alfalfa day to be repeated

COLLEGE PARK, Md. - Last year's first annual Maryland Alfalfa Day, an educational meeting in March for farmers and traders, has blossomed into the second annual Maryland Forage Day.

The 1977 one-day event is set for next March 15 at the same location as a year ago- the first floor auditorium in Windsor Hall at the Brethren Service Center in New Windsor (Carroll county).

Program sessions will again run from 9:30 a.m. to 3:30 p.m., with noon lunch in the cafeteria on the main level of Zigler Hall at the New Windsor location.

Sponsoring organizations, too, are the same as last year - the Cooperative Extension Service of the University of Maryland in College Park and the Maryland Forage Advisory Council. Over-all coordinator is again Dr. Neri A. Clark of the Ednor - Cloverly area near Colesville (Montgomery county), Extension crops specialist and professor of agronomy at the University of Maryland in College Park.

The advisory council is an eight-man group of farmers, Extension specialists and county agricultural agents, and industry representatives set up in 1975 to assist the university's Extension forage specialist in developing forage programs for Maryland.

By coincidence, most of the principal speakers at this year's meeting are residents of the Laurel and Adelphi areas at opposite ends of the sprawling land area occupied by the U.S. Department of Agriculture's Agricultural Research Center at Beltsville (Prince Georges county).

Only charge for the all-day event will be a $3 tab for lunch at noon. All interested persons are invited to attend. Call your county Extension Service office for information on possible car-pooling arrangements.

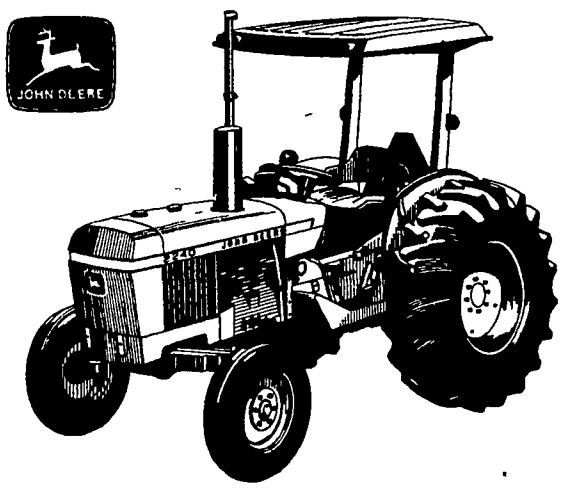
John Deere 50-hp 2240



Its ultrawide job scope leaves few idle hours

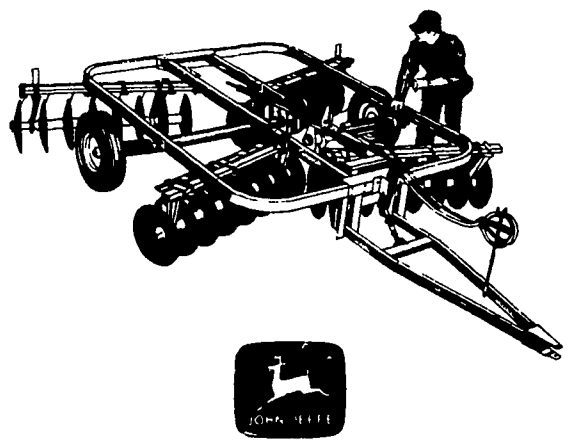
The John Deere 2240 — it's quite a tractor It's fully prepared to serve as the sole power unit on many farms and add new vigor and versatility to most any operation.

This John Deere 2240 is ready — without extra-cost "add-ons" — to take on most any hitch-mounted, drawn, PTO-driven machine job That's only the beginning of a huge array of 2240 "can-do's" Many more base-price features expand and broaden the 2240's job scope to include most every job on your farm

This tractor is so well suited to such a wide variety of jobs, that you'll be amazed how often you favor it over other, possibly larger, tractors The 2240 — it'll see few idle hours, and many highly productive hours

See us today for more details on this "seldom idle" John Deere 2240 Tractor

110 LEVEL-ACTION™ DISK
Ideal workmate for 60- to 100-hp tractors



Here's an ideal disk for chopping light trash, incorporating chemicals, or finishing seedbeds Working weight of 60 to 70 pounds per blade and spacing of 7¼ or 9 inches make this a top-performing seedbed disk

Overlapping front gangs cut away the center ridge old-style disks leave behind, while offset rear gangs pull in the same amount of soil front gangs move out — and feather the soil into a smooth field surface An exclusive self-leveling hitch lets you regulate working weight — as much as 100 percent on every blade at full dis king depth

Here's how to tailor a John Deere Drill to your individual needs

There are many different machines in the 8000 End-Wheel Drill Series You can pick from four row spacings, four drilling widths, five box sizes, and two feed mechanisms

Plant Saranac AR alfalfa and forget about it.

When anthracnose hits a field, ordinary alfalfas fold up and fade away. In the same field, Saranac AR keeps coming on strong to produce the kind of yields farmers expect from an alfalfa named Saranac.

And when it comes to bacterial wilt and hard winters, Saranac AR doesn't give up a thing. Highly wilt-resistant. Able to take the toughest winters. It's the strongest growing alfalfa you can plant.

Saranac AR. The right one wherever anthracnose threatens the ordinary alfalfas. Bred for your kind of land. Bred to meet your seven and eight ton objectives.

Twin Valley FFA holds annual awards dinner

By JOANNE SPAHR

ELVERSON, Pa. - A covered dish buffet was the setting for the 12th annual Twin Valley Future Farmers of America Chapter parent-member banquet held in the Twin Valley High School cafeteria last Friday evening.

Twin Valley's officers - Ted Ford, president; Clarence Jennelle, vice president; Sandy Jennelle, secretary; Dan Mosteller, treasurer; Jan Oatman, reporter; Jim Mimm, sentinel; Gerald Norris, chaplain; and Deb Ford and Sandy Shade, historians - had charge of the evening's ceremony.

Receiving certificates of appreciation from the group were James A. Umble, a building contractor from Honeybrook, who had employed an FFA member for four years and a vo-ag student for two; Jere Brady, Morgantown, who is head of the art program for Twin Valley and who helped with fire hydrant painting and the chapter's safety poster contest; and Lorraine Zajac, who chaperoned a group of FFA'ers to Penn State last year.

Three individuals were also made 1976 Honorary Chapter Farmers by the group. Mr. and Mrs. William Oatman, Honeybrook R1, and Thomas Engle, Honeybrook R1, received plaques of membership. Engle is currently serving as advisor to the Twin Valley Young Farmers as well as the FFA.

As always, for the members of the organization, the highlight of the banquet came with the presentation of foundation awards. The first to be handed out was Star Chapter Greenhand, an honor which is given to the outstanding member of the incoming class. This year's winner was Howard Griest, Honeybrook R1. Griest was also chosen to be the recipient of a $100 cash award designed to help him establish an FFA project. Presenting the award was Ruth Houck, co-owner of

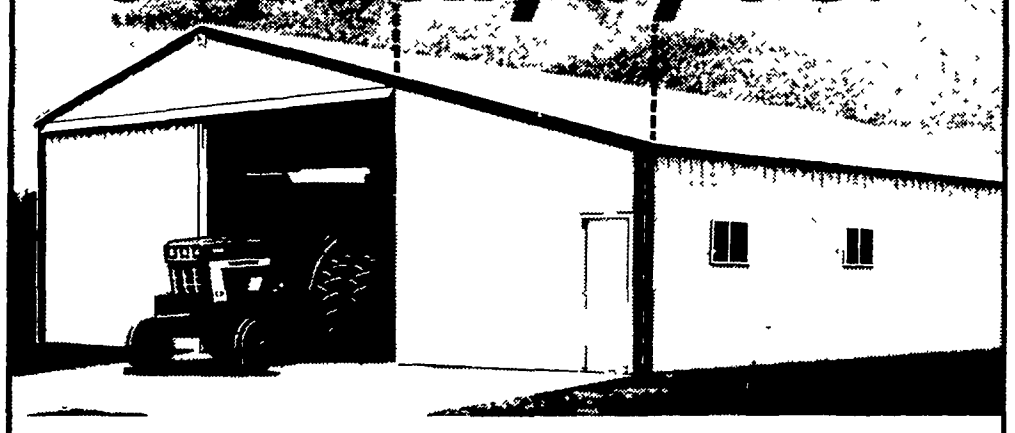
Increase storage Capacity by 50%



...at less than half the price per square foot!

It's quite a buildings — our Off-Peak Wide Span We say 'buildings' because that's what it is, two buildings in one

The big, clear-span part is just what you need to store large, tall equipment — combines, 4-wheel drive tractors, hay balers and other super-size farm tools. The off-peak side bay gives you up to 50% more storage space to 'garage' smaller implements and vehicles — tillage tools, small tractors, trucks, cars, trailers, boats, the family camper, maybe a snowmobile or two A big, wide sliding track door in the clear-span section lets you move big machinery in and out easily, and also provides easy in/out access for smaller equipment without 'jockeying' the bigger stuff around to do it

If you need a new building why not get the one that gives you double utility, plus more space at less cost The Off-Peak Wide Span from Wickes Buildings — it's the best of both worlds

Nevin Mast and his bride of one month received a plaque at Twin Valley's awards dinner for Mast's achievement as an American Farmer in 1976.

Twin Valley

Meadowbrook Farms, Elverson R2. Mrs. Houck sponsors this award which goes to the most deserving individual in the Twin Valley Chapter.

Other foundation recipients were: Ted Ford, Honeybrook, star chapter agribusinessman; Jan Oatman, Honeybrook R1, star chapter farmer; Bill Harris, Geigertown, agricultural elecrification; Steve Kohl, Mohnton R1, agricultural mechanics; Sandy Shade, Honeybrook, and Deb Ford, Honeybrook, agricultural sales and services; Tom Kirk, Honeybrook R1, crop production; Doris Mast, Elverson R2, dairy production; Jim Mimm, Honeybrook, farm safety; Leonard Wenrich, Mohnton R1, farm safety; Bret Reitz, Birdsboro R3, fish and wildlife management; Frank Lilley, Glenmoore, forest management; Jan Oatman, horse proficiency; Howie Griest, livestock production; Heather Scheidt, Honeybrook, ornamental horticulture; Bill Harris, placement in ag production; Nile DeVoe, Honeybrook R3, poultry production; Ken Reed, Mohnton R1, public speaking; Tammy Wenrich, Honeybrook R1, soil and water management; Dan Mosteller, Morgantown, swine production; and Gerald Norris, Elverson R2, state chorus.

As part of the evening, the chapter's outstanding individuals were recognized. Twin Valley's highest honor candidate this year was Nevin Mast, Oley R1. Mast, who is originally from the Oley Valley, attended high school at Twin Valley from his sophomore year on, due to his family's move to Arizona. When this occurred, he lived with a cousin in Berks Co. and became a member of the Twin Valley FFA chapter. His goal in life from the time he went to Twin Valley was to run his parents' farm in the Oley Valley. In 1976 he accomplished his goal, and was named an American Farmer at about the same time. At Fridays ceremony, Mast received a plaque in honor of his achievements.

Also recognized at the family-member banquet were the chapter's two Keystone Farmers -- Jan Oatman and Ted Ford - as well as the greenhands and chapter farmers.

Greenhands recognized were Howie Griest, Scott Haddock, Birdsboro R3; Louis Kohl, Elverson R1; Deb Kercher, Geigertown; Nile DeVoe, Honeybrook R1; and Ed Norris, Glenmoore, R1. Chapter farmers honored were Doris Mast, Elverson R2; James Mimm; Floyd Jennelle, Elverson R2; Kenny Reed, Mohnton R1; and Sandy Jennelle, Elverson R2.

The featured speaker for the evening was Jeff Miller, Kutztown R3, state sentinel. Miller challenged the members present to keep striving toward a higher level of perfection in their organization and asserted that the three most important ingredients to a successful FFA chapter are "congregation, coordination, and cooperation."

"You need coordination because a chapter requires leadership to see that everything is run smoothly," he explained. And, according to Miller, all members must congregate and work together toward chapter goals, which, in turn, takes cooperation.

Also featured in the evening's program was a film entitled, "Four Star Farmers 1976", which was made up of sketches of the lives of the FFA's regional star farmers and agribusinessmen.

After a few closing remarks by Paul Jones, principal of Twin Valley High School, the evenings festivities came to a close.

Lebanon Co. livestock club honors its own

SCHAEFFERSTOWN, Pa. - Presenting of trophies to deserving members was the main order of business at the Lebanon County 4-H Livestock Club's annual banquet held last month at the Schaefferstown Fire Hall, here. During the evening, awards were handed out to many young beef, swine, and sheep raisers from around the county.

Heading the list of beef award recipients was Jay Bomgardner, Annville R7, for showing the grand champion steer at Lebanon Co.'s 4-H roundup. Bomgardner's trophy was sponsored by Keller Bros., Buffalo Springs.

Other beef award winners were: Bonnie Arnold, Lebanon R1, who showed the reserve champion steer at roundup, and Jeff Heisey, who earned the champion showman as well as champion fitter honors at the same show. Miss Arnold's trophy was sponsored by PAG Seed Corn Co., Lebanon, and Heisey's two were sponsored by Umbergers Mill, Fontana, and Burkholders Meats, Campbelltown, respectively. Thomas Arnold, Lebanon R1, owned the champion buddy steer at the roundup and for this reason received a trophy from Evergreen Tractor Company, Lebanon.

Honors were also bestowed to owners of steers going to Farm Show. Scott Eckenrode, Rexmont; Jeff Heisey, and Thomas Arnold all received trophies for their animals. Edris' Garage, Lebanon R5, sponsored Eckenrode's gift; DeKalb Seed Corn Company, Lebanon R1, backed Heisey's; and Tom Morrissey, Reistville, was benefactor of Arnold's.

Champion buyer's trophy for beef went to the Lebanon Valley National Bank of Lebanon. This award was sponsored by Agway Inc., of Lebanon.

Swine honors were divided into three different categories. Awards were given for Lebanon Fair hog winners, 4-H roundup winners, and Farm Show animals.

In August of last year Todd Brajkovich, took grand championship honors at the Lebanon Fair with his hog, and Bonnie Arnold took the reserve champion of the show. She also was the champion fitter. Her brother, Tommy Arnold, was the champion showman. For these accomplishments, each received a trophy. Host Acres Quality Meats, Reistville, sponsored Brajkovitches; BHM Farm Equipment, Annville, and Agri-Service, Lebanon, sponsored Miss Arnold's; and LeeAnn Yorkshire Farm, Lebanon R1, sponsored Tom Arnold's.

Champion buyer's trophy for that show went to Hatfield Packing Co. Hatfield, Pa. This trophy was sponsored by Harry Bachman, auctioneer, Annville.

At last year's 4-H roundup Edwin Houser, Lebanon R5, and his sister Elaine had the grand and reserve grand champion swine. Mark C. Hershey Feeds, Lebanon, saw to it that Edwin received a trophy, for this achievement, and Pioneer Seed Corn, Lebanon R1, sponsored Elaine's gift.

For Farm Show selection, Jay Bomgardner received an award from Lil Dutch Acres, Grantville, and Bonnie Arnold received a trophy from Hauck Manufacturing Company, Cleona. Champion buyer for that show was Hatfield Packing Company, and their plaque was sponsored by Bomgardner's Hampshires, Annville.

In sheep honors, Julie Bow, Annville, received a trophy from Agri-Service for champion pen of market lambs; Nicole Emrich, Annville, received her honor from John Boger, Annville, for champion ewe lamb-ram lamb; and Julie Bow took both the champion showman and fitter. Miss Bow's trophy came from Butler Manufacturing, Cleona.

Entertainment for the evening was the Singing Millers from Dauphin County.

UEP supports target price formula

WASHINGTON, D.C. - In testimony on March 2 before the House Committee on Agriculture, Mike Hirth, Chairman of the United Egg Producers Feed Grain Committee, called for commodity target prices in the new Farm Bill to be pegged at about 80 per cent of the cost of production and requested that finished or processed agricultural products be encouraged under P.L. 480 programs.

Hirth was among 12 witnesses who appeared before the Committee concerning wheat and feed grain issues. His testimony was along similar lines as that presented by UEP to the Senate Agriculture Committee during 1975 hearings on target prices.

Hirth noted that the key to the target price concept was what constitutes the farmers' cost of production. For this purpose, he suggested the House Committee adopt the methods and formula of the Senate Committee on Agriculture, Nutrition and Forestry which was announced January 18 when Sen. Herman Talmadge introduced his proposed Agriculture and Consumer Protection Act of 1977 (S.275). In that formula, Hirth noted that the Committee based land values on a 35-year average of land acquisition costs. He said the Congressional Budget Office figures which used current land value figures were not as realistic as the Senate committee's.

"Our recommendation of 80 per cent of total cost of production will not assure grain farmers of a break-even position should supplies be grossly in excess of demand, but neither will it encourage producers to grossly over-produce since they will know government will not bail them out." Hirth said. "These levels should remove the likelihood of outright bankruptcy, encourage greater efficiency in production, represent sufficient encouragement for grain farmers to produce sufficient supplies for projected market demand, and lessen the need for government intervention."

Hirth told the Committee UEP favors the 35-year average of acquisition cost of land because it will have less influence on the escalation of land values. To use a formula for the cost of production which reflects the immediate land sale values would only add to the inflationary pressures to escalate those values, he said.

"We believe the below-production cost target price levels we recommend will also reduce the need for federally held commodity reserves which later will be used to depress grain prices and encourage over-production in the livestock and poultry industries," the U.E.P. spokesman continued. He told the Committee that UEP would support an extension of time for commodity loans beyond the current one-year period in order to give producers an opportunity to move his product into the market in another marketing year. He said this, too, would minimize government involvement in federally held grain reserves while assuring producers of a cushion against a severe market drop in any crop year.

In concluding his testimony before the House Agriculture Committee, Hirth asked that language be included under both Title I and Title II of the Food For Peace Programs (P.L. 480) "which would encourage utilization of processed agricultural products" in the export programs.

"The egg industry believes it can help meet the world's need for high protein foods with such products as dried egg mix and canned fowl meat," Hirth stated. "We believe both of these products would be excellent relief commodities for the hungry around the world. Our members feel that PL 480 and other export programs should also emphasize products that represent agriculture and labor via the finished or processed state."

Hirth pointed to the outstanding history that egg mix and canned fowl has within the U.S. as part of the USDA commodity programs. They can be packaged in small or large units and all a person needs for preparing a meal is water, fire and some type of utensil for cooking, he added.

Little Dutchmen FFA banquet held

By SALLY BAIR
Feature Writer

ANNVILLE, Pa. - The Little Dutchmen Chapter of the Future Farmers of America celebrated FFA week by holding their seventeenth annual Parent - Member banquet at Annville - Cleona High School.

Nearly 240 persons attended to help the 50-member chapter recognize their accomplishements.

Jay Bomgardner, Annville R3, chapter president, was named Chapter Star Farmer. In making the presentation, FFA advisor G. Lowell Morton recognized his leadership ability and his willingness to help otherrs and to work as needed to accomplish a project.

Bomgardner also won the DeKalb Agricultural Award, the leadership award and the chapter tractor driving award - for the second year. He received a proficiency award in swine production and got a blue ribbon and a state gold medal for his farming enterprises project book.

Bomgardner said, "I realize how good it has been. I wish I could start again in ninth grade and do it all again. Of all the awards I won I like the emblem of the rising sun the best. Being president will help me in all my life."

Each retiring officer received the emblem of his office as a gift from the chapter for the work he had accomplished. Sam Heagy is vice-president; Tom Landis, secretary and Jim Wampler, treasurer.

Steve Wampler, Lebanon R4, was named star agribusinessman. He also received a proficiency award in agricultural production, and in the project book contest he received a blue and a gold medal in work experience.

Star Greenahnd was Robert Kreider, Annville R1, who was also recognized as a winner of the creed contest, and the greenhand contest. Kreider received the scholarship award, and was a proficiency award winner in public speaking.

Keystone Farmer awards went to Jay Bomgardner and Jim Wampler, Lebanon R4.

Harvey Smith, Area Consultant, presented the National Chapter Safety Award to Brian Burkholder who is chairman of the Little Dutchmen Chapter safety committee. The award was bronze, and Burkholder said, "We are going to improve." The award was based on safety activities, including a snowmobile show which features safety information and a certification course. The chapter also teaches safe tractor driving and other instruction in safety techniques.

Burkholder said the chapter will have a service project making available fire extinguishers and smoke detectors to the general public.

Honorary degrees were given to Alice Heagy, a student who assisted with the FFA float and the banquet; Kenneth Parks, who helped organize a trap shoot at the Palmyra Sportsmen's Club; and Warren Wampler, father of one of the Keystone farmers.

State FFA president Randall Ranck expressed appreciation to FFA for helping young people "gain the experience of sharing ideas and problems. The knowledge we gain allows us to have ambition and set goals. Some we reach readily and some we never reach. Through FFA we build the foundation to be useful, productive citizens."

"If we put to use the knowledge we gain we have an optomistic future."

James Campbell, Annville - Cleona High School, principal congratulated the FFA award winners and members, and adddressing the parents, he said, "We appreciate the crop of young men and women you send to school.

Other proficiency award winners are: sheep production, Sam Heagy; ag mechanics, Sam Heagy; crop production and soil and water management, Ellis Meyer; dairy production, Alan Hostetter; wildlife management, Willy Smith; horses, Beverly Cooke; forestry, Debra Longenecker; poultry George Hoffman; home improvement, Luther Early; farm electrification, Bruce Brightbill; farm safety, Bryan Burkholder; outdoor recreation, Doreen Cooke and Luther Early; livestock, Joe Ellenberger; ornamental horticulture, Debra Longenecker and Doreen Cooke. Joe Peters was a state proficiency award winner for horses.

Other award winners were: creed contest, Mike Fair; greenhand contest, David Bomgardner and Mike Fair; Annville - Cleona Kiwanis heifer, Bruce Brightbill; and chapter gilt, Roy Miller.

County Project book contest winners are as follows: Blue ribbons - Willy Smith, Joe Ellenberger, Bruce Brightbill, Jeff Hostetter, Ellis Meyer, Bryan Burkholder, Kevin Reinhold, Tim Fuhrman, and Denis Kettering. Red Ribbons - Luther Early, Bruce Buffenmeyer, Doug Buffenmeyer, Roy Kleinfelter, Reid Hoover, Alan Hostetter Donald Brandt and Jim Wampler: White Ribbons - Jeff Gibson, Tom Landis, Luther Early and Beverly Cooke.

State project book awards were presented by Harvey Smith to the following: Gold - Ellis Meyer, field corn; Sam Heagy, sheep; Reid Hoover, farming program 2 enterprises; Steve Wampler, work experience; Jeff Hostetter, work experience; Rick Kleinfelter.

Silver - Donald Brandt, field corn; Bryan Burkholder, field corn; Tim Fuhrman, home garden. Bronze - Denis Kettering, home garden; Luther Early, truck crops; Kevin Reinhold, dairy cow; Bruce Brightbill, dairy beef.

A slide presentation on the chapter's activites concluded the program.

Swine banquet planned

BLUE BALL, Pa. - The Lancaster County Swine Producers annual banquet will be held on March 18 at 6:30 p.m. at the Blue Ball fire hall. The presentation of Spring carcass awards and youth achievement awards as well as the election of directors are planned events.

WIC standards to be revised

WASHINGTON, D.C. - The U.S. Department of Agriculture has proposed to establish a national income eligibility standard for its Women, Infants and Children (WIC) Program. Applicants who met this income standard would then be admitted to the program according to the degree of their nutritional need.

According to Gene P. Dickey, director of the WIC program, the proposed income standard would ensure that WIC served only the neediest participants. Currently, he said, there is no income ceiling for WIC applicants.

The proposed regulations would require WIC applicants to meet a national income standard based on the Secretary of Agriculture's income poverty guidelines. Currently, the proverty level under these guidelines for a family of four is an annual income of $5700. Under the proposed rules, the cut-off income level for WIC applicants would be 195 per cent of the Secretary's guidelines, or $11,110 for a family of four.

This ceiling, Mr. Dickey noted, is a maximum standard. States could use a lower income standard, he said, subject to USDA approval.

The proposed rules also would create a priority system for certifying WIC applicants, based on the applicant's degree of nutritional need.

Currently, Mr. Dickey said, applicants are certified on a first - come, first - served basis. "We need to give priority to persons in greatest nutritional need," he said.

The WIC Program, operated by local health or welfare agencies, provides supplemental foods to pregnant, postpartum and nursing women, to infants, and to children up to five years old. To be eligible, participants must be judged "at nutritional risk" because of inadequate nutrition and income.

The WIC Program currently serves more than 680,000 participants through over 2300 local clinics. Infants receive iron - fortified formula, cereal high in iron, and fruit juice high in Vitamin C. Infants six months or older may receive fortified whole milk, or evaporated milk, instead of infant formula. Women, and children over one year old, receive fortified milk and - or cheese, eggs, hot or cold cereal high in iron, and fruit or vegetable juice high in Vitamin C.

$250,000 needed for new firehouse

WILLOW STREET, Pa. - The Willow Street Fire Company is conducting a fund raising campaign aimed at financing the construction of a new five double - bay firehouse at Firemen's Field, Hilda Avenue and Route 272. The minimum goal of the campaign is $250,000.

Advanced Gifts from professional and business leaders for top pace - setter subscriptions are payable over a three year period. "Founder" subscriptions are also payable over a three year period. In making the announcement, Stanley Haverstick, president of the Fire Company, said: "We are looking forward to a total involvement and commitment by community leaders and families. This program is a "once in a lifetime" challenge for the entire community designed to provide more adequate fire protection and life saving services to every family and business in the area. With the enthusiastic support by the community, I know we will be successful."

Haverstick continued: "The building will be very functional with a meeting - training room slightly larger than the middle bay of our present fire house where the ambulance is now housed. Floor radient heat will de-ice all equipment at 55 F. and keep the volunteers - both on alert and returning from emergencies - warm. The offices for the president and the fire chief will be modest. The building is designed as a command and disaster center - but without luxury. Number 2 fuel oil will run the fire engines as well as heat the firehouse. The furnace is convertible to gas-hot air. Solar energy was considered but rejected based on costs at this time. The building will enable the fire company to give the greatest protection possible to the businesses and families of the Willow Street area at the lowest possible cost - with full consideration to the use of energy," said Haverstick.

Craft classes set for March

QUARRYVILLE, Pa. - Craft classes for adults as well as children will be held during March at the Southern Lancaster County Library Center, 304 St. Catherine St., Quarryville. Classes held for adults have been so popular, that Fern Entrekin, library center coordinator, hopes area children ages 11 - 15 will also take advantage of the newly offered programs.

Mrs. Doris Groff will instruct interested persons in the art of fabric painting. Children's classes will be taught on Saturdays from 10 a.m. to noon. Fabric painting will be offered on March 19 and 26. Adult classes will be taught Wednesday evenings from 7 to 9 p.m. Fabric painting is set for March 23 and 30.

Class sizes are limited to allow more individualized instruction. Persons interested in participating should register at the library center.

For further information, contact Ms. Entrekin at the Southern Lancaster County Library Center, 786-1336.

Farmers Union passes 37 resolutions

CAMP HILL, Pa. - At their annual meeting held here earlier this year, the Pennsylvania Farmers Union passed the following state resolutions.

1. We recommend a change in the Pennsylvania Vehicle Code which would allow an annual inspection of farm truck with farm truck license in lieu of the semi-annual inspection now required for trucks. These inspections are to be conducted by authorized inspection stations as now required.

2. We request an investigation by the Insurance Commission on the rating disparities now existing between self-propelled equipment and other farm equipment. If these rate differences cannot be justified by loss and revenue figures from the Insurance Commission, we recommend that Farmers Union take appropriate action to equalize the fees per unit of coverage.

3. We oppose the restrictions that will apply on moving farm equipment upon or across public highways, in the Pennsylvania Vehicle Code which will become effective July 1, 1977. We recommend an amendment that would exempt from permit requirements all farm equipment under 174 inches (14 ½ feet) used by the owner and-or operator in his own operation.

4. We commend the advances made in farm truck licensing and recommend that the mileage allowance be extended-unlimited-statewide.

5. Recognizing the regressive taxation method of property tax, we recommend a change in the Pennsylvania State Constitution to allow a graduated income tax as a means of supporting schools at local levels. The revenue derived from this taxation shall eliminate the school tax from property taxation.

6. We recommend the enactment of a state law prohibiting the entry of non-farm corporations, limited partnerships with non-farm interests, or other non-farmer structures into agriculture and forcing those already in agriculture to divest themselves of their agricultural interests.

7. We oppose state farms which have been closed by state welfare and correctional institutions being rented or sold for other than agricultural use. We further recommend that state farm lands be kept for agricultural purposes and that they be taxable by local taxing bodies.

8. We favor legislation that will prohibit the condemnation of prime farmland for certain purposes unless a committee composed of the state planning board, the dean of the college of agriculture, the secretary of agriculture, the secretary of DER, and two active farmers appointed by the governor determine that there is no prudent or feasible alternative.

9. We recommend legislation to amend the Inheritance and Estate Tax Law of 1961 to allow for agricultural land and forest reserve to be taxed for inheritance purposes on its value for such uses.

10. Due to the need for relieving the burden of transferring farm property from one generation to another, we recommend a change in the state inheritance tax to exempt to $200,000.00, which amount shall be increased annually to reflect changes in the cost of living index, for farm property to surviving spouse or direct lineal descendents, providing the land will not be converted to non-agricultural use for a minimum of ten years. If the recipient of the tax exemption would not continue with the provision for exemption, the original tax schedule would apply.

11. We recommend that depreciation should not be considered as income when applying for educational grants.

12. We oppose present income tax provisions requiring payment of income tax on entire sales price of property on contract sales in the year of sale. We recommend a change in the law to allow payments to be taxed in the year payments or income is received on contract sales or any other deferred payment sales.

13. We oppose throwaway and other non-returnable containers.

14. We recommend a change in the Pennsylvania Game Law which would allow farmers to keep deer killed because of crop damage, whether the land is posted or not.

15. Due to crop loss and farm machinery damage (due to burrows) that are imposed on farmers, we urge the Game Commission to change from the present regulated season to an open (year round) season on groundhogs (woodchucks).

Farmers Union

16. We favor protection of land owners from claims of damage made by invited or uninvited persons regardless of trespass notices.

17. We recommend a change in the Pennsylvania Game Law which would allow the hunting, for at least two days, of hen pheasants in counties where they are considered as pests.

18. We are opposed to government by regulation when the regulations are drafted by bureaus and agencies such as DER and are adopted and implemented into law after publication in the Pennsylvania Bulletin or Federal Register. We recommend that regulations affecting a farm operation be subject to review before adoption by a committee comprised of farmers selected by farm organizations in consultation with members of the State Legislature. We recommend that opposition to a regulation should require a hearing and that approval would be required by either the House or the Senate of the Legislature.

19. We recommend an expanded Agricultural Conservation Program, with cost-shares at a minimum of 75 per cent on all practices mandated by the Soil Erosion Sedimentation Act or Environmental Protection Agency.

20. We recommend the investigation of workmen's compensation rules and regulations as they relate to agriculture. We further recommend lower premiums for minimum coverage or an increase in the minimum payroll before pro-rata premiums become effective, and we recommend quarterly or semi-annual payments for corresponding periods for the protection of farmers employing seasonal help.

21. We urge our local governments to plan for their own areas rather than allowing the counties to do it for them.

22. We recommend the improvement of rural bridges and rural roads in Pa.

23. We recommend that township ordinances concerning barbed wire fences not supercede state law in the erection of fences along public highways.

24. We recommend that the Department of Agriculture implement a program to allow farmers to have grain moisture testers checked at the seven regional offices at state expense. This shall not be a mandatory program, but should be a service to farmers desiring to insure the accuracy of their own equipment.

25. We oppose any attempt to change by legislation or regulation existing cooperative laws if such changes will destroy, weaken, or hinder the operation of cooperatives.

26. We recommend that a Pennsylvania-Farmers Union Legislative Director be hired full time. We further recommend that this director be hired at the discretion of the Executive Board.

27. We recommend that the Milk Marketing Board be more responsive to the needs of dairy farmers.

28. We recommend that dairy sanitary regulations should be properly enforced, both before and after milk leaves the farm to ensure quality. The responsibility for the enforcement of these regulations concerning milk should be in the respective states' Departments of Agriculture, Sanitation Division, at the point of sale.

29. We recommend a change in the milk pricing formula. We favor fluid milk prices in the Northeast not be dependent on the Minnesota-Wisconsin pricing formula.

30. We recommend the development of land use policy which will recognize the need for maintaining land in agriculture to produce food and fiber needed now and by future generations. We recommend that farmers be assured representation and input on boards and commissions developing and implementing land use plans. We further recommend that the definition of farm land in land use plans should be "all land that is farmed or can be farmed and is capable of producing a crop of food and-or fiber."

31. We recommend an investigation be made by the Pennsylvania Department of Agriculture into the sale of thistle seed as bird feed and, if the seeds are viable and the plants resulting would be a problem to farmers, we urge an immediate halt of their sale.

32. We urge our legislators not to allow Pennsylvania to become a primary supplier of electrical energy for other states in the Northeast. We recommend that the DER or er independent energy consultants evaluate the power on transmission lines when selecting site locations for tric power plants so that efficiencies can be realized. We uest a re-evaluation of projected energy needs with phasis on conservation before planning and constructing energy sites. We oppose the energy park concept of a sluster of nuclear plants, coal-fired generators, or a combination of both, and recommend that generating plants be built where the need for power exists so that no one community is burdened with all the problems and few of the benefits.

Farmers Union

33. We recommend that the Legislature amend Section 7602, Subsection A, Article VI, Capital Sotck and Franchise, Tax Act, to include an exemption, "for family farm agriculture purposes." This would entitle Capital Stock for family farm corporations to the same exemptions for tax purposes now enjoyed by other corporations, that are organized for manufacturing, processing, research, or development purposes.

34. The National Farmers Union should be 100 per cent farmer controlled.

35. We recommend that the state pay for the vaccination of calves for Bang's Disease.

36. We recommend that when a person files a complaint through any governmental agency such as EPA, DER, SCS, ASCS, SPCA, etc., the party making the complaint be identified to all persons involved, including the defendent.

37. We recommend that someone from Pennsylvania serve on the National Farmers Union tobacco council to work toward quotas for Type 41 tobacco.

Jim Lentz is 'Man of Year'

Betty and Jim Lentz with the Man of the Year trophy at the Conklin Products awards banquet.

MANHEIM, Pa. - Jim Lentz, has been named "Man of the Year" by Conklin Company, a Minneapolis - based manufacturing and marketing firm. He was selected from among 7000 independent distributors of Conklin products for his outstanding sales and marketing leadership during 1976.

The applause of a thousand people greeted Jim and Betty Lantz as they were presented with a giant "Man of the Year" trophy at the Conklin Company's Annual Awards Banquet held in late January in Minneapolis.

"I am very thrilled to have been selected by the awards committee for such an honor," said Lentz in his acceptance speech. He went on to give much of the credit to his wife, Betty, for the tremendous amount of support she has given him.

"I like Conklin because it's a husband and wife business. We like to do things together," said Betty Lentz.

Before becoming a Conklin Distributor in 1973, Lantz had a remodeling and contacting business. Since that time he has been named Distributor of the Month twice, in February 1974 and August 1976, and he was admitted to the President's Club in September, 1976. Jim and Betty Lentz fare the parents of four children ranging from 15 to 21 in ages. The Lentz family is active in Hernley's Mennonite Church, where Jim is a past superintendent and song leader.

Lentz is a great believer in the effectiveness of persistence. "Although defeats occur, one must persist and try harder the second time. We have all the potential to succeed," he says. "Believe in the word 'believe'."

The Conklin Company manufactures lubricants, chemical products and hard goods for agricultural and industrial use. The products are marketed nationally and internationally by independent distributors

Since launching a national expansion program several years age, the Conklin Company has opened distribution centers in Illinois, Michigan, Pennsylvania, Georgia, Texas, California, Washington, Nebraska and North Dakota in addition to Minnesota

Conservation duties clarified

HARRISBURG - The Agriculture Advisory Committee to the Department of Environmental Resources on March 3 clarified the responsibilitites for erosion and sedimentation control measures between the landowner and tenant farmer.

The recommendation, spelled out during the committee's regular meeting here in the Department of Agriculture Building, indicated that the landowner, or the absentee landlord, will be responsible for developing the plan and for the construction of any needed permanent type control structures. The tenant farmer will then be responsible for complying with the control plan.

Chester Heim, representing the Pennsylvania Farmers Association and newly elected chairman of the Agriculture Advisory Committee, presided when Afton Schadel, chief, division of Soil Resources and Erosion Control, DER's Bureau of Soil and Water Conservation, reported that a directory of soil erosion and sedimentation control practices for agriculture has been developed and will be available within six months to a year.

The purpose of the directory, explained Schadel, is to provide information to landowners who choose to develop their own erosion and sedimentation control plan rather than receiving assistance through the local Conservation District.

The Education and Training Committee recommended that DER and The Pennsylvania State University Cooperative Extension Service should jointly prepare a program for disseminating information on the manure management manual. This training type of program would be carried out at meetings within the agricultural community.

A report from the Sewage Sludge Application Committee noted that this goup is currently developing a manual on sewage sluge application to agricultural lands that would meet DER guidelines.

James Benson, of the Bureau of Air Quality and Noise Control, announced that consideration is being given revisions to air quality regulations that would exempt farming practices to a certain extent. He said that DER does not feel the proposed exemptions being considered by the Environmental Quality Board will adversely affect Pennsylvania's air quality standards.

Eugene Eisenbise, director, Bureau of Environmental Master Planning, announced that guidlelines are being developed on implementation of the Environmental Master Plan and urged the agricultural group to take an active part in implementing the guidelines in order to ensure the preservation of prime agricultural land in the Commonwealth.

The next committee meeting is slated for May 5, at 9 a.m., at the Pennsylvania Farmers Association headquarters, Camp Hill.

Bargaining bill up

WASHINGTON, D.C. - Rep. B. F. Sisk (D. - Calif.) has re-introduced his proposal to amend and strengthen the Agricultural Fair Practices Act of 1968. (The bill number is H.R. 3792.) According to his staff, the bill is the same as last year. One of the key provisions of the proposal is to make it a prohibited practice "to refuse to bargain in good faith with an association of producers producing under contract which has been certified by the Secretary of Agriculture."

The amendments would set criteria for the Secretary to use in certifying a bargaining association. Among the requirements is that the association represent at least 50 per cent of the number of producers of the commodity in a given "major area" or represent at least 50 per cent of the volume of the commodity in the major area. A major area is defined as ". . . a single state or an area of production which is readily identified by past practices and which produces at least 25 per cent of the total volume of a commodity in a single state . . ."

(From UEP's United Voices.")

Energy bill introduced

WASHINGTON, D.C. - Sen. Herman Talmadge, (D. - Ga.) Chairman of the Senate Committee on Agriculture, Nutrition and Forestry, has introduced a bill (S. 745) which provides a priority system for certain agricultural uses of natural gas. The Bill, which would amend the Natural Gas Act, has been referred to the Committee on Energy and Natural Resources.

According to the Senator, the bill would provide a natural gas priority for essential agricultural purposes second only to the needs of existing residential and small commercial users. It would include fertilizer and agricultural chemical production, food and fiber processing and packaging, crop drying, and irrigation. It would also apply to those activities related to plant protection, processing, and feed - stock requirements. It would apply to both interstate and intrastate gas supplies.

Maryland corn yield crown taken by 205.37 bu./acre

COLLEGE PARK, Md. - With semi - drought conditions prevailing at many locations on the Eastern Shore of Maryland during the 1976 growing season, members of the Baltimore County Corn Club have captured the first 12 placings in the official state corn yield contest.

They kept the Maryland corn - growing championship west of the Chesapeake Bay for the second consecutive year and the third time in the last six years.

Also for the second consecutive year, the winning state corn yield was acheive under no - tillage cultural methods. Five of the top seven yields in 1976 were attained by no - till farmers.

Current state champion is the farming operation of Chilcoat and Peters, Inc., in north central Baltimore county.

This partnership had a near - record contest yield of 205.37 bushels of corn per acre. The partners are Harry M. Chilcoat and William A. Peters. Both have Sparks addresses.

Their farming operation is spread over several locations in the county, totaling nearly 1600 acres. About 1100 acres are planted to corn each year, 400 acres to small grain, and 100 acres in soybeans.

The official state contest is conducted each year as a part of the corn improvement program of the Cooperative Extension Service of the University of Maryland at College Park and Princess Anne. Yield measurements are supervised by county Extension agricultural agents, and awards to state winners are presented by the Maryland Crop Improvement Association.

Chilcoat and Peters achieved their 1976 state winning yield with Trojan TXS - 114 hybrid. They planted their corn in sod on May 5, using 30-inch rows. Their estimated stand was 23,400 plants per acre.

Soil pH was 6.1, and fertilizer was broadcast prior to planting. The nitrogen-phosphorus - potassium ratio was 150-100-120. Herbicides used for weed control included paraquat, atrazine (AAtrex), simazine (Princep) and dicamba (Banvel). They used carbofuran (Furadan) and chlordane to control soil insects.

According to the 1976 summary, planting dates for the top 12 contestants inthe Baltimore County Corn Club ranged from April 17 to May 22, and row widths ranged from 30 to 40 inches. However the five top no -till contestants all used 30-inch rows.

Plant populations ranged from 18,300 to 23,500 plants per acre. Most test weights among the top 12 approximated 52 pounds per bushel. Five different hybrid companies were represented in this same group, and no one variety was used by more than two contestants.

Average contest yield for the top dozen corn farmers in Baltimore county for 1976 was 187.04 bushels per acre. By comparison, across the state line in adjacent York County, Pa., only one contestant in that county's official contest exceeded the average of Baltimore county's top 12.

Harry M. Chilcoat (left) of Sparks (Baltimore county) receives a congratulatory handshake from Dr. James R. Miller, agronomy department chairman at the University of Maryland in College Park. Chilcoat is a partner in Chilcoat and Peters, Inc., an Upper Bay farming operation which won the official 1976 state corn growing championship with a near-record yield of 205.37 bushels per acre. Chilcoat was honored last month during the annual meeting of the Maryland Crop Improvement Association on the University of Maryland campus at College Park.

Three partners in the Trenton Mill Farms operation at Upperco (Baltimore county) receive congratulations and a certificate from representatives of the University of Maryland's Cooperative Extension Service for consistent high yields with both corn and soybeans. Shown are (left to right): G. Richard Curran of Westminster, county Extension agricultural agent in Baltimore county; partners John P. ("Pete") Devereux of Upperco, W. Clarence Mielke of Upperco, and Charles R. Mielke of Hampstead; and Joseph L. Newcomer of Brinklow (Montgomery county), Extension agronomist at the University of Maryland in College Park. The Trenton Mills group placed first in the official 1974 Maryland and Mid-Atlantic soybean yield contests; first in the 1975 state corn yield contest, and third in the 1976 state corn yield contest.

Women's classes set by York Extension

YORK, Pa. - Spring brings thoughts of refurbishing the home and the wardrobe as well. With that in mind, the York County Extension Service is offering several courses and workshops for homemakers who are interested in furthering their creative talents.

Drapery Workshop - April 19, 26, and May 3; from 10:00 a.m. to 12 noon at the 4-H center. Learn to make your own lined draperies, including figuring yardage, construction techniques and pleat placement.

Enriching Your Young Child on a Small Budget - March 23, 7:30 - 9:30 p.m. at the 4-H center. Recommended for parents of children under seven or eight years. Program will include discussion on toys and toy safety, and will include resource ideas for toy creating in the home, with patterns for some toys.

Intermediate Knitting - March 30 and April 6 from 9:30 - 11:30 a.m. For knitters who know how to knit and purl, this is your chance to learn to make mittens.

Sewing II - April 6, 12, 20, 27 and May 4 and 11; Community Room, York Mall, 9:30 a.m. to 12 noon. Create a dress or top with a collar and set - in sleeves with woven fabric. Also learn to use interfacings, more on zippers, waistlines and more refined fitting. Teacher is Mary Ellen Schmidt. Cost of course is $15.

Pants That Fit - April 8, 15, 29 and May 6 and 13 at the Community Room, York Mall, 9:30 a.m. to 12 noon. Working with a basic pattern, participants will construct and be fitted into a basic pair of slacks in woven fabric. Instructions will be given on converting this basic pattern to knit fabrics. Class limited to 10 members. Teacher is Mary Ellen Schmidt. Cost of course is $10.

To register for the above classes, contact Marceil A. Seckman, Court House, York. For classes requiring a registration fee, the total amount must be included with registration.

'Make mine milk'

By JOHN F. BROOKMAN
Director of Communications United Dairy
Industry Association

ROSEMONT, Ill. - Two years ago, we launched a "Think Milk, Drink Milk" campaign. It was directed toward dairy industry people to urge them to be "milk ambassadors" by drinking milk publicly and enjoying those example-setting glasses of milk.

We wrote articles and sold buttons and were pleased to note that more milk was drunk at dairy meetings. As one dairy leader asked, "How many coffee beans are grown in the United States?"

From this corner, it seems that all of us should drink even more milk today with the soaring price of coffee. That's important, too, because our per capita consumption of milk isn't keeping pace with our population growth, even though this growth has slowed dramatically the past few years.

And we're losing our young milk drinkers. This is alarming because more than 51 per cent of all milk is consumed by youngsters up to 17 years of age. But they're drinking less each year.

Could it be the adults are not setting a good enough example in public? Possibly we drink so much milk at home that we don't want to buy it outside?

If that's the reason, it's not a good one. From this corner, we agree that we should drink milk at home. That's to be expected of dairy people. But we should also drink milk away from home. Let's put our mouth where our future is. Start responding, "Make Mine Milk," whenever you're asked, "What will you have to drink?"

"Make Mine Milk."

Poultry rule changed

NEW YORK, N.Y. - The U.S. Department of Agriculture (USDA) is changing rules governing the administrative suspension or withdrawal of federal inspection from poultry slaughtering and processing plants.

Dr. Fred Fullerton, deputy administrator of USDA's Animal and Plant Health Inspection Service (APHIS), explained these administrative rules will supplement the Department-wide rules adopted in Jan. 1977.

APHIS' suspension - withdrawal procedures are put into effect when a poultry slaughtering or processing plant is charged with violating federal inspection regulations. The rules apply only to proceedings before administrative law judges and the USDA Judicial Officer. They are not utilized when regulatory actions are brought in the federal court system.
